Get Psyched!
A new event in the 1991 Neptune Festival was the street fair, which included Olympics among Beach high schools. Members of the Cox Olympic team Kerri Grant, Teri Lewis, and Sara Weiss get psyched in the opening procession. The Cox team went on to place second in the competition. Some of the events were a tricycle race, a pie-eating contest, and a three-legged race.

At the start of the Homecoming game. the football players break through the cheerleaders' spirit banner.

The annual seventh bell Homecoming pep rally held in the stadium always creates enthusiasm. The seniors cheer on their team in the tug-of-war class competition.

WORTH OUR WEIGHT IN GOLD

"It's the quality, not the quantity that really matters," so the saying goes. At Cox, however, we have both. The complimentary comments of the Self Study Evaluation Committee in November proved that we really are worth our weight. Once again, our athletic teams were heavy competition. The football team made us proud by starting the season with an eight game winning streak, and Lamonte Still breaking the district rushing record. Field Hockey brought home the third state trophy in a row, making Cox the first Beach school to win three consecutive state championships in any sport. All students worked hard and played hard. Honor Roll Assemblies were packed, as were club meetings, especially with two new clubs joining the long list.

As one of the largest schools at the beach, Cox had to work hard to be number one. But with approximately 1700 students equalling about 255,000 pounds, we certainly are WORTH OUR WEIGHT IN GOLD.

Waiting for the graduation ceremony to begin, marshalls Margo Villers, Julie Inman, Jennifer DuBois, and Tuan Vu keep seniors in line.

Showing their falcon spirit, Eric Rivera and Chad McPhatter are the mascots for the Homecoming game. They wore new outfits designed by Mrs. Kim Hux.

SOLID GOLD

"Solid Gold" is the best way to describe Cox students. With such diverse students with all kinds of interests, student life was an interesting part of our school. Many of these interests were brought onto the stage. Talent abounded in the fall play, spring musical, Fashion Show, and Mr. and Miss Cox Pageants. Prom and Ring Dance brought a weekend of magic and fun. Spirit Week and Homecoming were filled with excitement and King and Queen, Lamonte Still and Leigh Goldberg were crowned. The year was busy and fun-filled, but we were left with memories of "Solid Gold."

SPRING AND SUMMER 1991

Some of the most exciting events at Cox took place in the spring. The Spring Musical, A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum, was hilarious with Todd Rutherford stealing the show. Prom and Ring Dance was a whole weekend of fun and excitement. The Mr. Cox Pageant contestants teased us and the Miss Cox contestants amazed us with their talent and beauty. Next, the big day arrived and the seniors received their diplomas at Graduation. Finally, the most exciting event had arrived — SUMMER!

During Prom, Jason Shedlock and Lori Phillips dance the night away to the tunes of Boy O Boy. Toni Lewis laughs at her date Andy Grant's novel outfit, tux shirt, cummerbund, and shorts.

Anxiously anticipating their final act of school, Senior Class sponsor Miss Saw Valedictorian Sarah Gilbert, and Se Class President Spencer Miller reminisc their early years.

COMEDY TONIGHT

WHEN IN ROME

"Something familiar, something peculiar . . ." so said the opening lyrics of the Spring Musical "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum." This Hilarious musical set in Ancient Rome kept audiences laughing long after the curtain had closed. Under the direction of Mr. James Garrett and vocal direction of Mr. William Boyll, the show ran flawlessly.

The show revolves around three houses on a street in Rome. Pseudolus, expertly played by senior Todd Rutherford, is a slave in the house of Senex. Senex and his wife, Domina, played by Sam Friedman and Becky Wolf, embark on a long journey while their son, Hero, played by Dave Shockley, pines for the beautiful courtesan in the house next door. Complications arise when Pseudolus, who is eager to obtain his freedom from Hero, devises a plan to bring Hero and the courtesan, Philia, played by Stephanie Griffin, together.

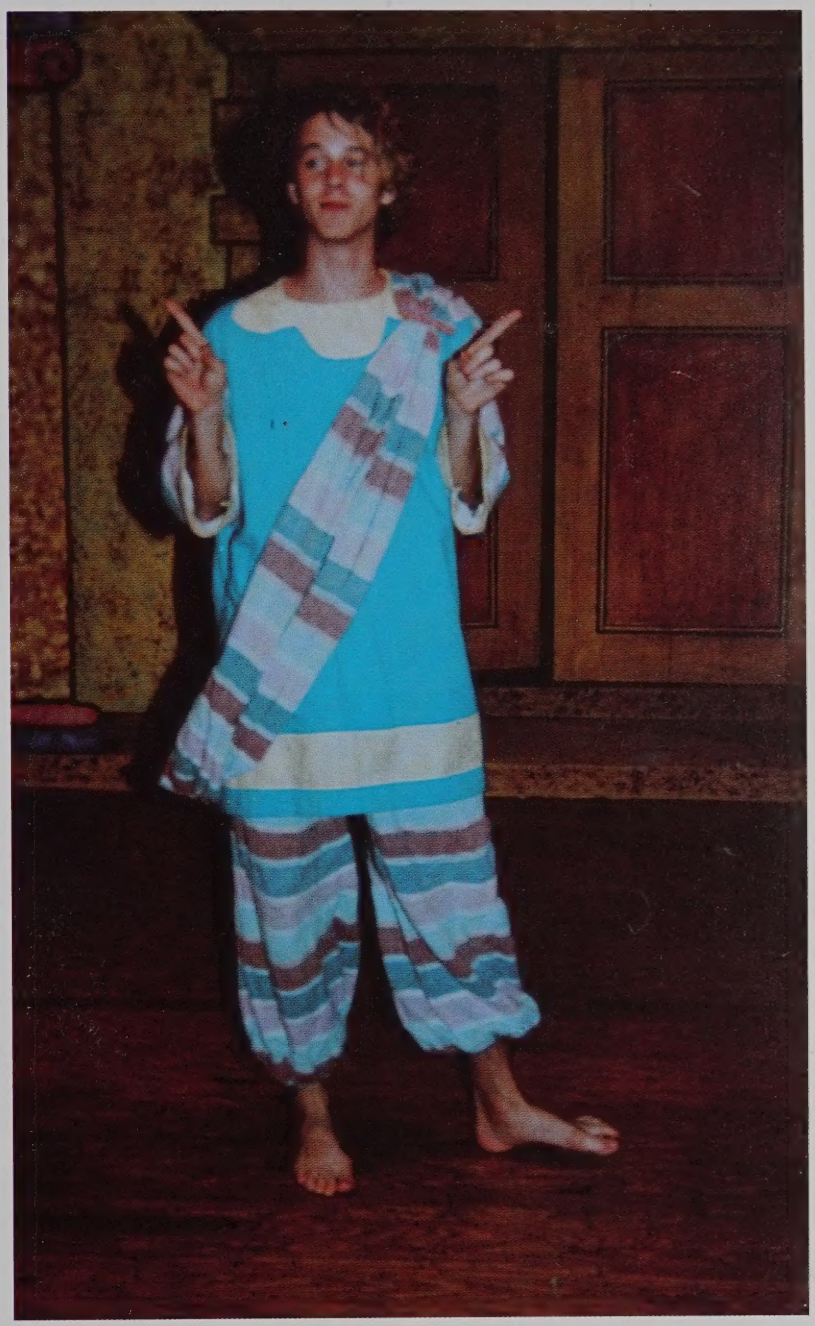
Along with his fellow slave Hysterium, played by Elliot Tyson, Pseudolus finds himself tangled in a web of mistaken identities and other hilarious problems. They must prevent the philandering Senex from pursuing Philia as well as deter the Captain Miles Gloriosis, played by Mike Miller. Philia has been promised, by the "seller of the flesh of beautiful women", to Marcus Lycua, portrayed by Eric Frenck. Pseudolus' encounters with the other six sultry coutesans as well as several Roman Gladiators bring the show to a hilarious conclusion.

Despite the fabulous performances on stage, the show would not have been possible without those behind the scenes and in the orchestra pit. Seniors Ceci Corley and Diane Cheshire filled the spots of student and assistant directors. The backstage crews and stage managers caused everything to run smoothly. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Art Pittman, expertly played the difficult music.

The Spring Musicals of the past have shown the many talents of Cox students, but the cast, crew, and orchestra of "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" proved to be some of the greatest talent displayed yet.

Taking a final bow, the entire cast gathers for a last farewell.

Rebecca Wolf and Sam Friedman, who played the Roman couple, kept the audience laughing with their humorously hollow relationship.



Singing the theme song from "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to The Forum," Todd Rutherford insures a perfect performance.

Miss Cox 1991, Jennifer Scofield, and Stephanie Griffin, first runner up, take time out to show off their dresses.

Jammin' with the rhythm, Chris Richards, Nate Smith, and Andy Grant dance for the audience.

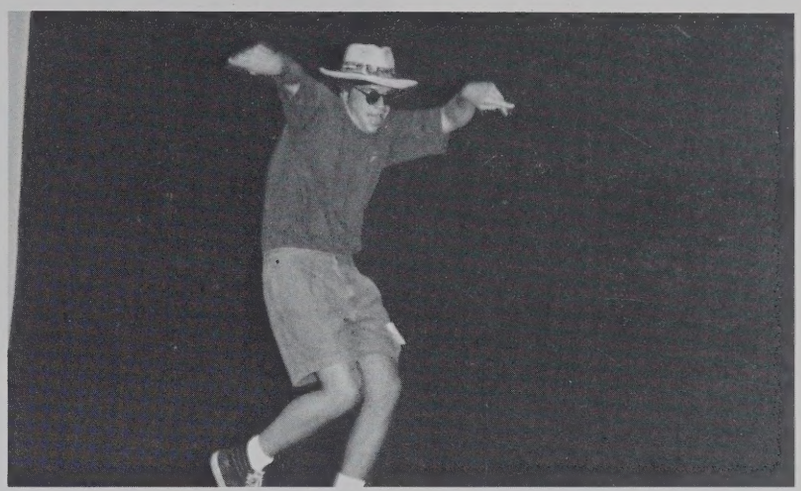
During the evening wear competition, Jennifer Scofield elegantly takes her turn on the runway. Jennifer was later crowned Miss Cox 1991.



Attempting to impress the judges, Nate Smith struts his stuff during the beachwear competition.

ROYAL FALCONS

MR. & MISS COX ARE CROWNED

The spotlight was shining as the curtain rose. A row of contestants appeared. One by one they paraded down the runway, wearing everything from evening gowns to tutus. As the lights dimmed, the judges watched contestants perform. Talents such as ballet, tap, and guitar were demonstrated by the Mr. Cox contestants. The girls in the annual Miss Cox pageant presented talents as varied as dramatic monologue and jazz.

Chris Richards leaped across the stage in a tutu and tights and won the title of Mr. Cox. Blake Thompson won first-runner up with his humorous lip-syncing. Following close behind was Chris Faison strumming his guitar to third place.

Jennifer Scofield stole the show as an accomplished pianist. She was crowned Miss Cox and second place went to Stephanie Griffin, who entertained the crowd with her version of "On My Own", from the Broadway play Les Miserables. Kerry Grant danced her way to third place, and Nancy Pillow won Miss Congeniality.

Every year, the competition among the contestants is high. The judges have a hard time picking the winners, but when they do, the honored girl or boy is proud to represent our school.

If you had to choose a talent for a Mr. Cox or Miss Cox participant to perform, what would it be?

"Men modeling lingerie."
Tiffany Litz, Junior

"Belly dancing in a string bikini, why not?"
Mookie Squire, Senior

"Mud wrestling in a baby pool wearing only boxers."
Heather Atkinson, Sophomore

Gracefully demonstrating his ballet, Chris Richards leaps into the air.

TWISTING THE NIGHT AWAY

JUNIORS TURN BOTH RINGS AND HIPS

You're standing in a very large room. Suddenly you hear your name echoing throughout the room. Heads swivel around and look in your direction. You slowly mount the stairs and as you move underneath an arch, your date leans over to kiss you. Then someone hands you a gold or silver ring with a bright jewel in the middle. As you move off the bridge, you suddenly notice a steep ramp in front of your feet. You gingerly put one foot on it and — Whoa! — slide down. Where are you? At a royal ceremony or at an amusement park?

This was an experience shared by many juniors on the night of their Ring Dance. They found that the walkway was just a little steep and a bit slippery, but nothing could bring down their spirits on this magnificent evening.

So despite the pratfalls, juniors and their guests enjoyed Ring Dance and turning their rings.

Sarah Rufe and Susan Lloyd take time out to chat with Eric Geshekter and Cristin Stebbins.

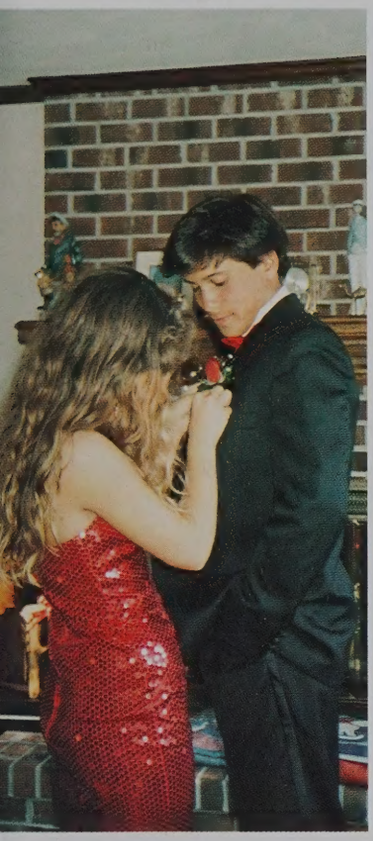
Who would be your ideal date for Ring Dance?

"Axl Rose . . . because he lives dangerously."
Darby Chang, Sophomore
"Tom Cruise because of his . . . um . . . mind."
Katy Nethery, Junior
"Elle MacPherson because she looks good in a swimsuit."
Chip Ellis, Junior
"Jessica Rabbit because she likes short guys."
Brian Wilson, Junior
"Christian Slater because he's very . . . interesting."
Brandy Buckley, Junior
"I would give Cindy Crawford a treat and take her to Ring Dance."
Yates Evans, Freshman

Although he's wearing shoes meant to bowl in, John Haworth still receives a kiss from his date Amy Nessbaum on the traditional Ring Dance Bridge.

Even though they're wearing tuxedos, Brian Jennings and Richard Whitney find that they can still be clowns.

Stacy Buckley attempts to perform the difficult task of pinning the boutonniere on her date Billy Marion.



Amid the excitement and commotion around them, Becky Ross and Adam Sutton get lost in each others' eyes.

The tradition of turning a class ring 92 times is demonstrated as Jeremy Wright turns Sisi Meade's ring.

Tender moments are shared by many couples the night of Prom. Adam Krop and Ginger Andersen take time out from the traditional photo session to goof off.

Announcing Prom and Ring Dance, the marquee is admired by Christen and Cathy Cummings.

Feeling the glory of being chosen by their class as Prom King and Queen, Brett Matthews and Geneice Mathews share the King's Dance.

Living it up at Prom, Kimball Skinner and Kim Lipscomb get into the music.

Karen Sheffler and Esther Dabney enjoy the fine cuisine and the ice sculpture.

GETTING IT TOGETHER

SENIORS' FINAL NIGHT OF FUN

The time had come. After four ears of waiting, the night had final- arrived. In the weeks preceding he big day, sequined dresses had een bought, tuxedos had been nted, and dinner reservations had een made. When the day arrived, air was carefully styled, shoes were ecially polished, and corsages ere frantically bought. As the time rew closer, couples began to get ex- ited at the realization that it was me for their Senior Prom.

The night was May 24, 1991. As vening approached, couples began heir special dates. The band "Boy Boy" played at the dance, which as held at The Radisson. Brett Matthews and Geneice Mathews were chosen by their class to be Prom King and Queen. When the band stopped playing and the couples began to leave, they received a glass with their Prom theme engraved on it. Inside the glass, there were two keychains. All of this was a result of their excellent fundraising. The seniors had sold snow cones at various school events and had sponsored the Dating Game.

For some seniors, Prom is a night looked forward to for years. For others, it's a night filled with nervousness. But for most everyone, it's one of the best nights of their lives.

In what car would you like to arrive at Prom?

"A limousine so that all my friends and I could be together that night."
Kelli Holloway, Senior

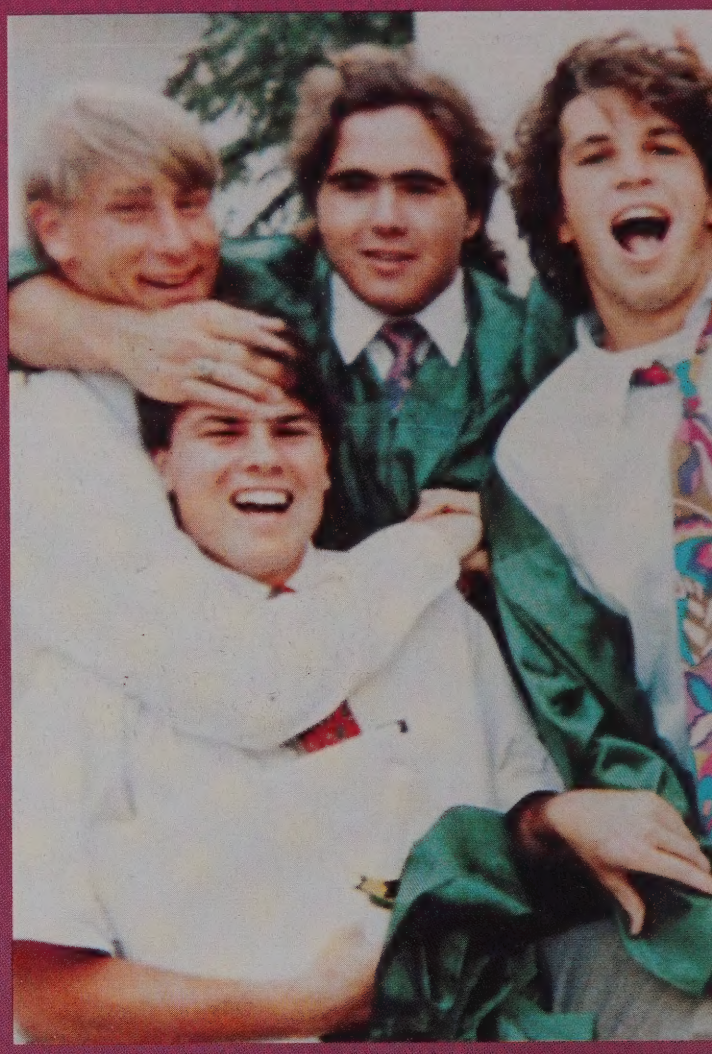
"My big blue Volvo so that I'd be the envy of the whole school."
Matthew Anderton, Junior

"A Lexus because they are so elegant."
Kate Mathers, Freshman

"A trolley because it would be unique and fun to ride in."
Elaine Inman, Sophomore

Shyness doesn't come naturally to Ann Ballard and Aimme Hayes as they show their dancing skills to the crowd.

With her name card in hand, Jennifer Scofield is moments short of receiving her diploma.



Celebrating the occasion are Eric Witcher, John Soroka, Mike Cover, Nate Smith, Andy Grant and Mike Yoder.

FACING REALITY

OUT IN THE GREAT WIDE OPEN

It was the end and also the beginning. The end of what seemed would never end and the beginning of what would last forever. Graduation was held at the Pavilion on June 14, 1991. Friends and families attended the long-awaited event.

Presiding over the 27th annual Graduation was 1991 class president, Spencer Miller. The speaker was Captain Jim Mulligan, a POW of the Vietnam War. He spoke about his experiences and the opportunities that awaited the seniors after their graduation. Sarah Gilbert was Valedictorian and Yasi Ayat earned the distinction of Salutatorian. Stephanie Griffin led the graduates in singing the Alma Mater.

The After-Graduation party took place at the new Recreation Center. There was bowling, table soccer, video games, pool, and even gambling!

The actual Graduation ceremony and the party following it made for an evening to remember, one that seniors will look back on for the rest of their lives.

Who would be your ideal speaker at Graduation?

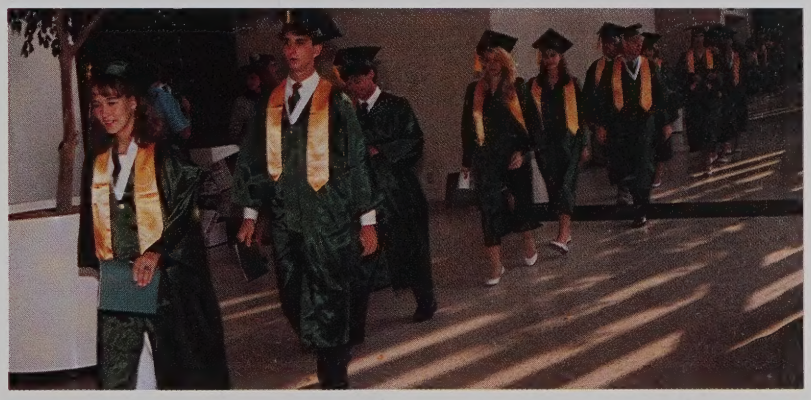
"Perry Farrell . . . indubitably."
Allison Bozeman, Junior

"Tucan Sam or Tony the Tiger because I love cereal."
Megan Milliken, Senior

"Bo Jackson because he's got it together and knows what he wants out of life."
Alicia Davis, Junior

Serving as dealer, Mr. Rixey Wilcher leads the gambling scene at the After-Graduation Party.

Leading the procession, Stephanie Griffin and the other seniors make their way to the ceremonies.



Honor Graduates have the privilege of wearing gold sashes and front row seats.

Taking advantage of the free bowling at the After-Graduation Party, Jonathan Bergdoll attempts a strike.

HOT AND HEAVY

YOU'VE GOTTA LOVE SUMMER

Have you ever caught yourself in mid-November dreaming about those warm summer days? Well, if you have, don't worry — it's normal.

On the first day of school, everyone comes in psyched about the new year. But as days and days pass, it becomes difficult to wake up each morning and go to school. By the end of the first grading period, it becomes apparent that the majority of the school is ready for summer.

The last day of school is filled with excitement and laughter. When the final bell rings, students can't wait for the summer to start. But, many summers are filled with jobs at fast food restaurants or stores in the mall or at the beach. Some students just soak up the rays and relax. Surfers travel to Hatteras or Croatan to catch the best waves.

Summer is a time everyone looks forward to. Whether or not you spend your summer working, vacationing, or just playing, summer is a fun time for everyone.

What do you not like about summer?

"I never do everything I wanted to do."
Meghan Dewey, Sophomore
"Tourists all over the beach."
Corrie Mallery, Sophomore
"What do I hate about summer . . . Nothing!"
Stacy Buckley, Senior
"All my friends are on vacation and I never get to see them."
Barbara Wahab, Freshman

Before the Lollapallooza Concert, Ryan Cool and John Haworth enjoy some fresh watermelon.

At Rodanthe on the Outer Banks, Matthew Anderton catches a hollow wave after Hurricane Bob.

Flexing for the camera, Happy O'Brien, Matt Stewart, Brian Dexter, and Taylor Vann show off the hours spent lifting weights.

Waiting for their heat to be called at the Neptune Festival, Danny Lasmarias and John Blancett anxiously watch the waves.

At Andrew Brothers' house Trey Stafford, Chris Faison, and Matt Gunter relax before a Labor Day Weekend/Back to School Party.

At a Young Life camp during the summer, Allison Smith, Allison Watson, Amy Hunt, and Sydney Lee enjoy the view.

FALL AND WINTER 1991-1992

The weather began to grow cold, but Falcon spirits didn't damper a bit. As always, the Neptune Festival brought students to the beach for one last good time at the beach before winter set in. Spirit Week and Homecoming brought our Falcon enthusiasm and we were proud to elect Leigh Goldberg and Lamonte Still as Homecoming Queen and King. Talent abounded at the fall play, Exit the Body, and at the Fashion Show. In all they did, Falcons remained worth their weight in gold!

Ready for the third quarter, the football team stands by as Leigh Goldberg, escorted by her father Dr. Marvin Goldberg, exits the field as Homecoming Queen.

Pumped up for the Homecoming football game, football players burst through the spirit banner held by the cheerleaders.

NEPTUNE FESTIVAL

CELEBRATION OF THE SEA

The sea was calm, but the Boardwalk swelled with waves of people experiencing the different sights and sounds of the Neptune Festival. There were contests, performances, kiosks, a Neptune King and his Court, and many parades to top it all off.

The festivities were kicked off with the annual Grand Ball. The Royal Court, made up of the King, his Tritons, and Princesses were presented at the Ball. Two students from Cox, Julie Inman and Leah Word, were Princesses along with four girls from other high schools in Virginia Beach. The weekend continued with events such as the Youth Art Show, surfing contests, dance performances, and concerts. Kiosks were filled with food, local artwork, and crafts to purchase. There were many parades including the Strawberry Festival Parade, Powerboat Parades, the Star Spangled Salute to welcome home the troops from Desert Storm, and the Grand Parade, in which the Neptune Court participated. New this year was a street fair which included a "Silly Olympics" among the Beach high schools. Each school sent sixteen students to compete in activities such as pie-eating contests and tricycle races. Cox won second place in the "Silly Olympics."

What was your favorite part of the Neptune Festival?

"The parade because one of my closest friends was a princess in it."
Sarah Rufe, Senior

"The Sandcastle Classic because the Oceanography Club won an award."
Tom Malabad, Senior

"The funnel cakes — definitely."
Shannon Forbes, Sophomore

"The Youth Art Show because I was co-chairman and it's a lot of fun."
Jennifer Balisle, Senior

Working at the Key Club-sponsored parking lot at the Neptune Festival, Amanda Hale collects money for charity.

As princesses, Julie Inman and Leah Word ride on the official Neptune float with the rest of the princesses and their military escorts

Participating in one of the "Silly Olympics," Heather Criswell guides Micah Wisecarver through the cones to win the event.

Winning third place in the Sandcastle Classic, the Oceanography Club worked hard planning and building their masterpiece.

Gobbling down whipped cream pies, Dan Clark attempts to win first place for Cox in the pie-eating contest.

NO PLACE LIKE HOME

BACK IN GREEN AND GOLD

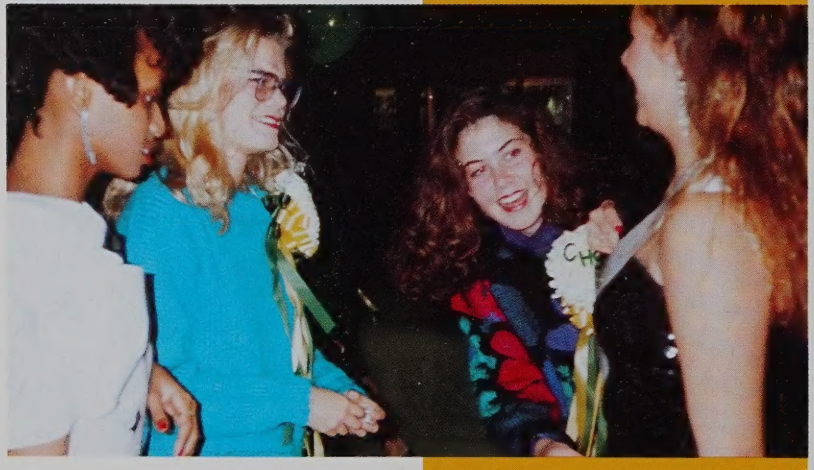
They say you can't come home again; but hundreds of Cox alumni poured through the gates on November 1 to cheer their team on. Students and graduates gathered in the stands despite the chilly air and slight drizzle.

Homecoming Princesses Jennifer Desimone and Emily Teague represented their class. Sarah Krop and Charise O'Shell were the princesses from the sophomore class. The junior class chose Kristen Gaskins and Sheila Wilson. Finally, the nominees for Homecoming Queen were Leigh Goldberg, Leah Word, Iske Barbe, Kimberly Garrison, and Kelli Holloway. Selected for the King's Court were Nick Psimas, Brian Dexter, Chip Collier, Lamonte Still, and Ron Tesnow.

As the floats rolled around the track, the rain failed to dampen the spirits of an excited crowd. The senior class float took first place with those built by the Foreign Language Clubs and sophomore class taking second and third. Leigh Goldberg was crowned Queen, and at the dance later that night, Lamonte Still was crowned King.

If you were coming home from college, what would be the first thing you'd want to do?

"I'd want to go home and sleep."
Anne Boylan, Senior
"Start smooth talking the women."
Todd Weiler, Sophomore
"Get more money from my parents."
Chad Merrit, Junior
"I don't know — I'm a FRESHMAN!!"
Matt Whalen, Freshman



As Kristen Gaskins and Sheila Wilson, the junior class representatives, prepare excitedly for the parade. Homecoming Chairmen Allison Smith and Jennifer Dubois pin their sashes on.

Princesses of the evening, Sheila Wilson, Kim Garrison, Kristen Gaskins, Kelli Holloway, Charise O'Shell, Sarah Krop, Leigh Goldberg, Jennifer Desimore, Iske Barbe, Emily Teague, and Lead Word, share a moment with Miss Tilley.

Lost in a dream world, Amanda Hale and Richard Whitney "imagine" life under the sea. The Senior float later won first place.

Cheerleaders and football players Kristen Garrison, Leah Gerganus, Brett Hale, Jim McMahon, Brad Bray, and David Ayers salute the flag.

FIVE DAYS OF SPIRIT

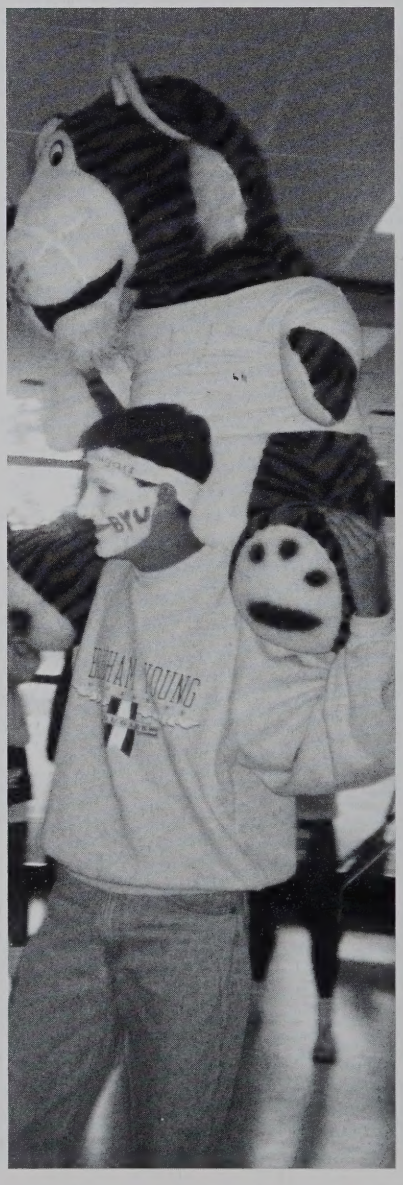
HOMECOMING GETS OFF TO A GREAT START

On the first day of spirit week, the Cox Falcons wore . . . a sweatshirt from a college! On the second day of Spirit Week, Cox Falcons wore . . . hippie clothes and a sweatshirt from a college! On the third day of Spirit Week, Cox Falcons wore . . . alien costumes, hippie clothes, and a sweatshirt from a college! On the fourth day of Spirit Week, Cox Falcons wore . . . Halloween masks, alien costumes, hippie clothes, and a sweatshirt from a college! The last day of Spirit Week, Green and Gold!! Halloween masks, alien costumes, hippie clothes, and a sweatshirt from a college! During Spirit Week, the halls were chaotic with everything from cows to green and gold elves. The winners were Derek Jones, Lynne Davis, Matt Pruitt, Michelle Wright, Liz Canfield, Barbara Reinagel, Vanessa Barnes, Heather Hoehlein, Tasha Bangert, Chad Kent, and Ginger Mitchell.

If you could pick a day for Spirit Week, what would it be?

"Caveman Day — you don't talk all day, you just grunt and dress up like Pebbles and Bam Bam."
Corrie Mallery, Sophomore
"Remember Kindergarten Day — we could all take naps, play with toys, and eat cookies and milk at snack time."
Travis Krause, Senior

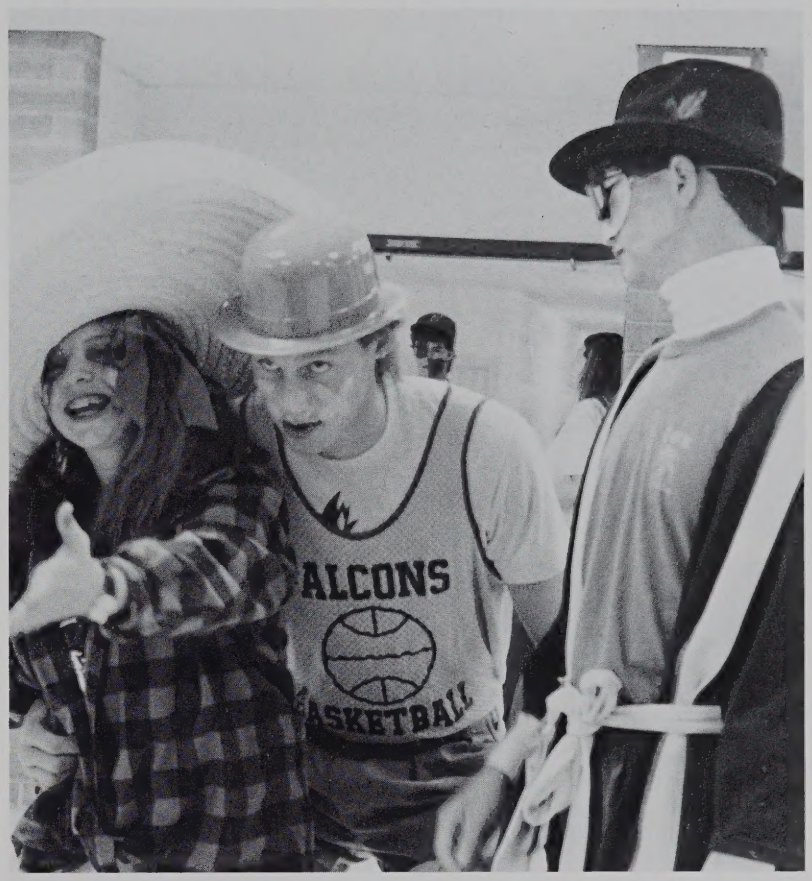
Anne Berling shows off her new hair style and demonstrates outstanding school spirit at the Homecoming game.



Carrying a hugh tiger, the mascot of Brigham Young University, on his shoulders, Geoff Howard takes pride in his favorite college.

The winners of the Green and Gold day competition, Ginger Mitchell and Chad Kent rest after being judged.

Carrie Rhodes, Richard Whitney, and Micah Wisecarver goof off during the Spirit Week dress-up contest.



Selected by their homerooms for judging, students lined up in the cafeteria foyer where Mrs. Mel Hartranft serves as a judge.

EXIT THE BODY

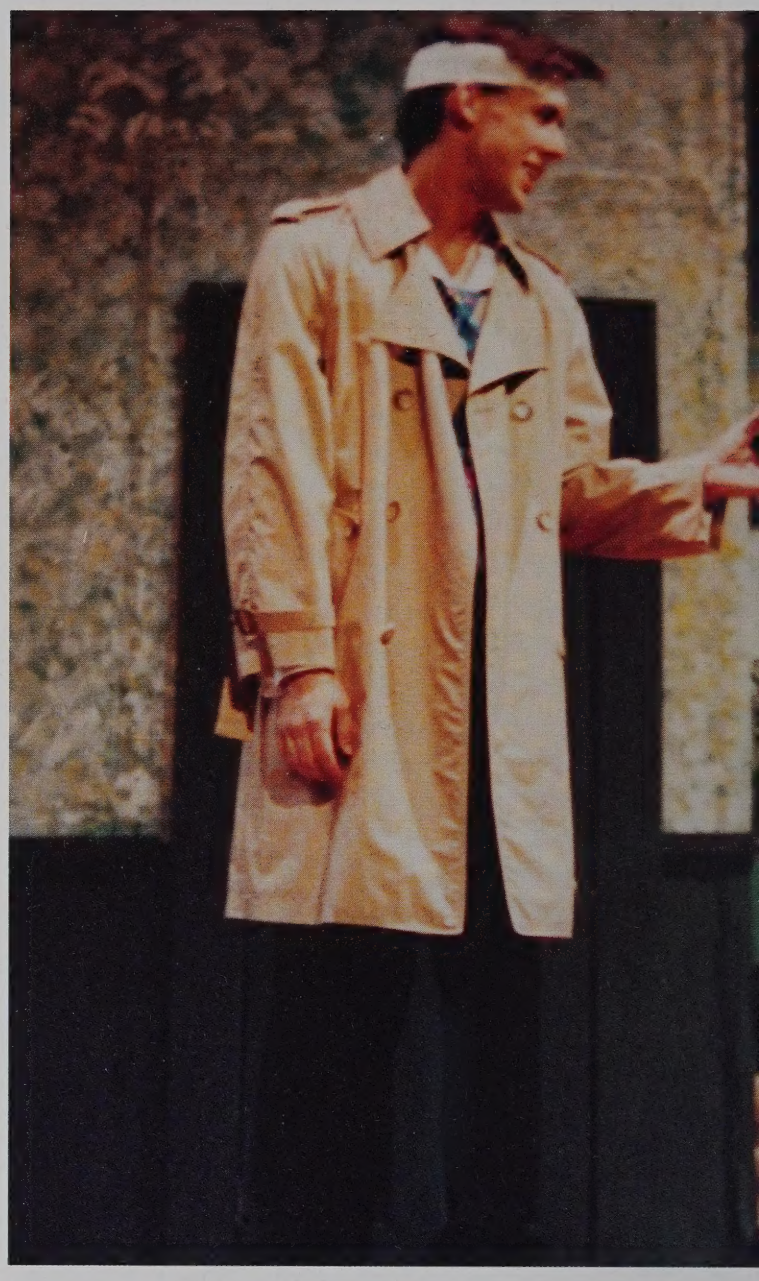
THESPIANS' TALENT IS NO MYSTERY

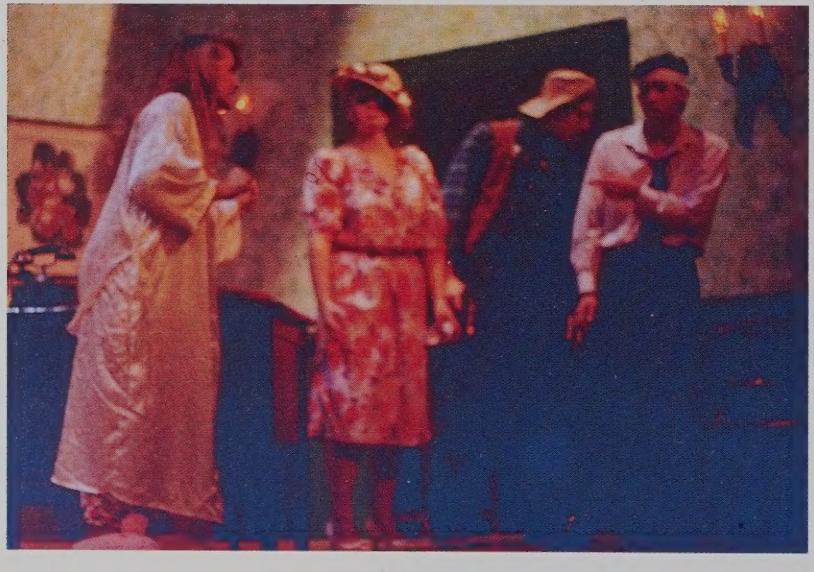
Imagine renting an expensive summer home and finding two bodies in the closet. Imagine having two men pretend to be your husband when you are already married. Then imagine discovering that your summer home is the rendez-vous point for some crooks looking for stolen diamonds.

So unfolds the story of Crane Hammond, the mystery writer to whom all of these things happen. The Thespians' annual fall play Exit the Body was a tremendous hit with both students and faculty at Cox. The hilarious farce evoked incontrollable laughter during its three night run.

The show was unusual in that it had a predominantly female cast. Crane Hammond, played by senior Tiffany Ricardo, and her secretary Kate Bixley, senior Tymberlee Hill, found themselves surrounded by more exhausting events in the sleepy New England town of Birchvelle than they did at home in New York City. Their maid, Jenny, played by Deirdre Carl, personified the dumb blond, and her boyfriend, played by Kevin Wingert, is one of the crooks after the stolen diamonds. Bridget Curry and Sam Friedman portrayed the local real estate lady and sheriff. Junior Anna Taylor played Crane's wealthy friend, Lillian, who was partial to practical jokes. Her husband, played by Lee Field and amnesiac Phillip Smith, played by Dave Shockley, both pretend to be Crane's husband until the arrival of the real Mr. Hammond, junior Ti Cersley. The plot was only complicated further during the two o'clock a.m. search for the missing diamonds involving all of the characters.

Despite some lightning problems and a demanding script, the Thespians once again gave a successful performance. Exit the Body has been added to the long list of hits put on by these talented actors.





After a chaotic night of hiding in closets and behind furniture, Tiffany Ricardo, Bridgett Curry, Sam Freedman, and Dave Shockley confront one another.

newlyweds Lee Field and Anna Taylor
n in on a conversation going on between r characters in the play.

Kevin Wingert paces the floor angrily as he tries to devise a plan to find the diamonds which were hidden in the house.

For both of their sakes, Tiffany Ricardo is hesitant to give up the only weapon in the house to Dave Shockley.

After discovering a dead body in the closet, Tymberlee Hill and Anna Taylor revive Tiffany Ricardo from her faint.

Portraying Miss Crane's secretary, Tymberlee Hill makes a quick phone call from her boss's secluded home.

TIS THE SEASON

STUDENTS FIND REASON TO BE JOLLY

You look forward to them all year. As one comes, you can't wait for the next one. The days in between seem to grow longer and longer as the year goes on. They're holidays and without them, we couldn't make it through the year.

It starts with Veteran's Day. One day of no school — complete freedom. November is chock-full of holidays and students savored each one, dreading the next day of school. Then came the four-day break for Thanksgiving and the holidays filled with friends and family.

Soon, Christmas lights were glowing in every store window. The malls were jam-packed with last-minute shoppers looking for the perfect gifts. Many students took off on vacations skiing or to warmer spots of the country. The holiday was much needed and most students came back to school eager and ready to learn. Spring break eventually arrived and by the time it came, students were ready for school to be over.

Holidays are a refreshing break in the monotony of the school year and a chance to get together with friends.

Do you believe in Santa Claus?

"No, because I know better."
Erich McChesney, Senior
"Yeah . . . I saw him last year at a party."
Ryan Raeburn, Freshman

Showing the more feminine side of their personalitites, Brett Hale and Wes Bruill look beautiful for Halloween.

Since snow is rare in Virginia Beach, Danny Lasmarias, Jason O'Shell, and Brandy Buckley glory in making snowballs in the snow pile at Iceland.

Imitating the Rockettes, Mike Lane, Mark Tietjen, David Mitchell, and Nick Psimas model skiwear.

Wearing one of the year's most popular fashions, Tammy Rice carries a "scottie" to complete the outfit.

Dancing to Christmas carols, the crew of Holiday Escape gathers for the finale.

HOLIDAY ESCAPE

STUDENTS SHOW OFF THE LATEST FASHIONS

The night was Tuesday, December 17. The auditorium was jam-packed with students. They were ready. Ready to escape. This year's fashion show fell around Christmas time, so the show was titled "Holiday Escape." Models wore ski-wear and a variety of winter apparel. In the audience, both girls and guys judged as the parade of popular fashions moved down the runway and decided which outfits they liked best. Applause was the barometer of success.

Plaid was popular and one section of the show was devoted to this fad. Girls in kilts and checked blazers sashayed across the stage, while boys in plaid ensembles escorted them. A Scottish terrier was used to accent the show, while Allen Hadfield entertained the audience with tunes from his bagpipe.

In the evening wear segment, girls wore elegant cocktail dresses, and tuxedos were seen on the guys. Teachers helped to model formal wear and made the show all the more enjoyable.

Door prizes were given out at different times during the show and gifts such as earrings or gift certificates were won by lucky ticket-holders. The fashion show is an annual event sponsored by the Marketing Department. Holiday Escape was a sell-out show, each ticket costing only four dollars at the door.

What was your favortie part of the Fashion Show?

"The shirtless male model."
Lisa Rowe, Junior

"The ski scene, because I was in it."
Talisha James, Senior

"I liked the glitter because it made the scene seem magical."
Patricia Doniewski, Sophomore

"We enjoyed the bagpipe player and the dog in the Scottish scene."
Darcy Stables, Junior
Allison Wise, Junior

Escorted by Mr. Bruce Stewart, Tiffany Davis glistens as she twirls across the stage.

One of the highlights of the night was Allen Hadfield playing the bagpipes. Kelli Holloway admires his ability while holding a Scottish terrier.

CONCERTS

MUSIC TO OUR EARS

From the day we are born, we hear music. As babies, our mothers would sing us songs such as "Hush, Little Baby." In pre-school we sang tunes like "Old McDonald." But, as we got older we found that there is a great variety of music. Whether it's rap, heavy-metal, or alternative, there's always a group to fit your style.

There are a lot of local bands that you can catch playing in clubs, at parties, or at the beach. Many of these bands have promising futures and hope to one day be known around the world. But there are also bands that we listen to everyday.

We buy their tapes, watch their videos, and when they come in concert, we're there. Some kids wait for hours just to get a ticket. And to them, it will all be worth it when the band hits the stage.

What's your favorite band and why?

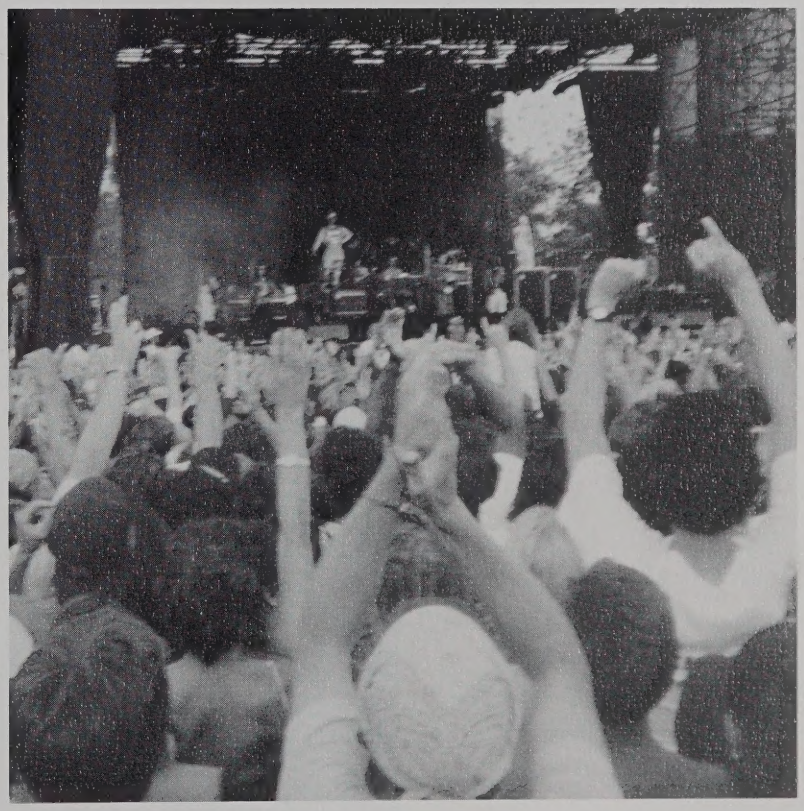
"Soundgarden, because I know what to do . . ."
Bryce Evans, Junior
"Slayer, because they're so evooool."
Ned Dickinson, Senior
"Nirvana, because I finally know the words."
Tracy Ingram, Freshman
"Guns n' Roses, because they're outspoken."
Amy Branum, Sophomore

While waiting for the Jerry Garcia Band to play at Hampton Coliseum, Nathan Largent, Heather Largent, Stacy Buckley, and Kara Rudisi try to stay warm.

The local band "Outside Inn" livens up the Homecoming Dance.. Cox's Jim Mathers plays the drums in this band.

"Rare Daze," natives to Virginia Beach, perform frequently in the area and are a favorite among many students.

Jodi Blaylock and Megan Davis compare tickets excitedly before The Connells concert at The Boathouse.



Many students traveled to Reston, Virginia during July to catch "Jane's Addiction" in the five-band show "Lollapalooza."

IN AND OUT

THIS YEAR'S FADS

Fads change throughout the years. This year, plaid was a popular pattern and Nirvana was a favorite band. Sequined shirts were widespread among the girls and guys were decked out in flannel shirts.

WINTER TIME

A FUN TIME!

"Let it snow, let it snow, let it snow!" This famous line was on everyone's mind when the ski season came closer. Students were excited to see flurries out of the window in late December, but were later disappointed to see that it didn't stick. Many students took advantage of Winter Break and three-day weekends to engage in skiing on the East and West Coasts.

This winter wasn't lacking in parties either. Students always seemed to find a place and time to have fun. Where there's a will, there's a way!

In addition to parties, many went ice skating or cuddled around a fire watching football over the weekends. Students also enjoyed seeing new movies. Some of the favorite movies were: "Beauty and the Beast," "My Girl," "The Last Boy Scout," and "The Hand That Rocks the Cradle."

New Year's Eve was a festive night, which many spent with their friends, as a kick-off for 1992. Many made New Year resolutions, whether it was quitting a bad habit or vowing to make better grades.

Winter was filled with school-work for most students. Teachers assigned research papers as well as compositions and other projects. Whether it was UVA, Tech, JMU, or Radford, seniors struggled to meet the February 1 deadline for their applications to college.

What was your most memorable winter?

"The winter it snowed in Georgia."
Liz Hark, Senior

"The winter Santa didn't come."
Brian Clifton, Sophomore

"This year is the only one I can remember."
Ming Lee, Senior

"The winter I moved here because it's the only time I can remember not seeing snow during Christmas."

HI HO! HI HO!

IT'S OFF TO WORK WE GO

This familiar song was often anted by the Seven Dwarfs as they arched off to their various jobs. As ung children, we looked up to ese little men, and now, as teen- ers we can relate to them. When e get old enough, the time comes nen we must get a job. Whether s for spending money or for col- ge, jobs are a necessity for many udents.

Jobs can also mean discounts. udents working at movie theaters clothing stores can benefit from ss expensive tickets and lower ices on their favorite clothes.

If you could have any job, what would it be and why?

"Marine Biologist because I love dolphins."
Maria Lopez, Sophomore

"I'd be a Chippendale. You make quick money and there would be women all around you."
Joe Hart, Junior

"I'd want to be a teacher because they have so much positive influence on kids."
Kim Gianfagna, Junior

"TCBY because it's so yummy."
Charlene Whitney, Sphomore

Also, friends are often made while working. As Julie Inman says, "When you spend six to eight hours with someone, it's hard not to get to know him and it makes the job more enjoyable to have fun with the people you work with."

Some students involved in the Marketing Program work as part of their education. These students go to school only part of the day, work the rest, and get a class credit.

From bagging at grocery stores to waitressing at fancy restaurants, Cox students find one way or another to make extra money.

Spirit abounded at the Homecoming rally. Even sophomores caught the thusiasm and cheered loudly.

GOLDEN FACES

Faces are what makes up Cox High School. Each and every face is different and reflects a different personality with different interests. Whether a freshman, sophomore, junior, or senior, everyone at Cox is unique and left a mark somewhere around the school, be it as a club officer, athlete, or valedictorian, each and every student let the golden parts of him shine through.

Seniors

Senior Year. These are two words most students can hardly wait to use to describe themselves. Senior Year means only one year, or in some cases nine months, until seniors are out on their own. Senior Year means college applications and making career plans. Senior Year means a few Senior privileges here and there, senior portraits, and prom. The Senior Class officers worked hard to ensure our final year was the best. The Senior Cruise was planned for late November and the majority of the class showed up to party together. Seniors banded together for a tremendously spirited Spirit Week, and easily won the float contest, lunchroom activities, and pep rally tug-of-war competition. Finally, the year came to a close, and seniors came together once more for the long-anticipated graduation. For some graduation meant relief at finally being out of high school. For others, it meant a sadness for all the friends and memories left behind. For some, graduation meant anticipation for the challenges that lay ahead in our new and separate lives. But for all, graduation would live forever the memories of each and every mem of the Class of 1992!

Showing their spirit and unity at the Ho coming pep rally, members of the Se Class struggle to beat the juniors.

Dare to Dream
Senior Officers Take the Lead

Enthusiasm and hard work re the keys to the success of Senior class. Officers ip Collier, Leigh Gold- g, Kim Garrison, Kelli lloway, Cori Martin, and an Lloyd were the force ind the class of 1992's suc- s. The officers worked d, but managed to have as well. As Secretary Kim rrison put it: "I love work- with the other officers and mittee chairs. We are all much alike — very laid k! Our personalities don't flict at all like other ple's would."

As soon as school opened September, the officers were hard at work. The first project was Homecoming. Seniors worked with the theme "Imagine" and came up with a spectacular futuristic underwater scene that managed to take first place. The spirited seniors also won the Spirit Week activities and the tough pep-rally tug-of-war competition.

The most important fundraiser for the class was the winter candy sale. Over 75 seniors sold M&M's, Reeses Cups, Kit Kat, and Snickers to raise money for Prom and graduation. The officers offered incentive for selling the candy, as seniors received five dollars off their Prom ticket for every thirty candy bars they sold.

The Senior Class officers worked together with the committee chairmen to ensure a terrific year for all the seniors. Prom Chairmen Heather Criswell and Susan Loyd made Prom a special, memorable night. Graduation chairmen Emily Walker and Dina Frech spent many hours in order to ensure the ceremony went off without a hitch. Senior year was unique and we will all have our own special memories.

Seniors With Decal Deco

Stickers and Vanity Plates

Many seniors expressed their personalities by decorating their cars with stickers and purchasing personalized plates with messages. These stickers and license plates helped you to either recognize the seniors' cars or get a feel for their personalities. Whether it was their interests in music, colleges, favorite places, views on social issues and animal rights, or just to make a statement, both these ornaments displayed our seniors' interests.

Favorite music groups were made known to the public in the form of stickers and license plates. The students' favorite choices of music were progressive and classic rock. Heather Hollenbach said she liked her stickers because they represented a part of her and her taste in music.

The students' opinions on social issues were depicted on the stickers and plates, as well. Liz Canfield's car displayed two stickers that said, "If you want peace, work for justice" and "Peace is disarming." She said the purpose of these stickers was to raise public awareness on the subject. "Fur is dead" and "Only elephants should wear ivory" are two examples of animal rights stickers. Some seniors felt very strongly on this subject and were actively involved in the SAVE club.

College stickers were very popular. Seniors had stickers of colleges they wished to attend or perhaps their older brothers or sisters were attending.

The Hatteras Lighthouse was a popular spot for seniors to go and if you looked around in the parking lot, you may have found a lot of stickers re resenting the lighthou Some people felt th stickers or personaliz plates were tacky or in b taste, but that did n appear to be the major opinion among senio Many felt it was a way get a message across, show their identity. F thermore, whether th liked stickers or not, seniors who drove school had to displa parking decal. The stick and personalized tags seniors' cars definitely vealed a part of their p sonalities.

World Travelers
Seniors Venture Out

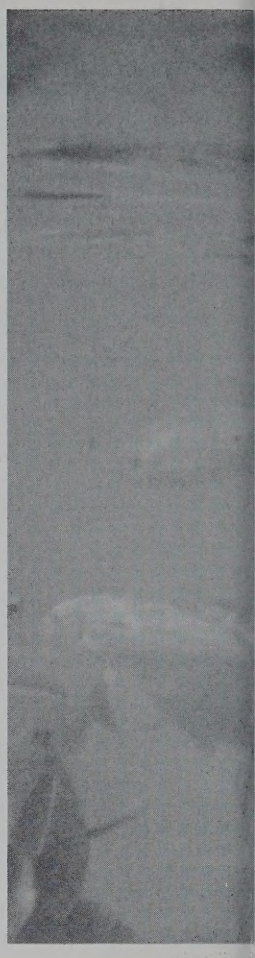
Spending every day on the beach is not necessarily the only way to pass the summer. Many seniors had the opportunity to take vacations with their families or friends. Whether seniors voyaged as far away as Europe or stayed as close to home as Cape Hatteras, they made certain that their trips were memorable.

Traveling through Europe was a dream come true for Tiffany Ricardo. "I had so much fun, and at the same time I learned a lot about different cultures. I enjoyed seeing Italy since my great grandfather came from Florence, and I really liked being able to use my French when I was in Paris."

Unfortunately, some seniors' vacations did not go very smoothly. Karin Hazelwood visited Boston during the summer. "It was terrible. It rained the whole time, and one day my grandmother and I got lost. We had to run into a dry cleaners and stay there until it stopped raining."

Vacations can provide more than one benefit. They allow students to relax, but also educated and broadened horizons. Sarah Rufe commented on her vacation on a cruise to the Caribbean, "It was really neat. I learned about an entirely different culture."

Regardless of where seniors went over the summer, they managed to create memories which last a lifetime.



While on vacation in Hawaii, Jeff and Michael Stine got to experience an unusual side of life. The brothers fed fish as they snorkeled on the coral reefs of Oahu.

Leaving siblings behind

They're the people ou've known the longest. ou've shared everything - parents, clothes, a om, a house. They're ur best friends. This is hat we found about many niors who had younger others or sisters they are aving behind at Cox after aduation. Some of these niors are Brian Carter id his junior brother dam, Jeff Stine and his phomore brother ichael, Leah Word and r sophomore sister Julie, m Garrison and her shman sister Kristin, ck Psimas and his sophomore sister Kathryn, Heather Criswell and her freshman sister Courtney, Julie Inman and her sophomore sister Elaine, Jessica Davis and her junior sister Alicia, and Stacy Buckley and her junior sister Brandy.

Having a younger sibling in the same school has its advantages and disadvantages. Stacy Buckley commented, "Since we're in the Navy it was always nice to have one familiar face in new schools. On the other hand, because we're so close in age and height, people always get us confused and call us each other's name."

It can be really hard for siblings to deal with an older brother or sister leaving home. Elaine Inman is not looking forward to her sister Julie leaving, "Julie did so much in school, and I hate being compared to her. Besides, I've lived with her for fifteen years now, it'll be weird not having her around."

Even though siblings don't always get along, they are an important part of our childhood and will be in our lives forever.

It runs in the Garrison family to be cheerleaders. When captain Kim Garrison's freshman sister became a cheerleader, she had the best person of all to show her the ropes of high school.

The Road Less Traveled

"Be all that you can be. . . " Everyone has seen the Army recruiting commercial and maybe even joked about it. However, the reality is that the armed forces was one of the options considered by seniors who were not going to college after high school.

The armed forces was a popular choice among those seniors. "I do not want to go to a community college and I can not afford to go to a University. The Army is giving me over $20,000 for college," said senior Chuck Lichtenhan.

Not all recruits went into the military for the pay; some just wanted "the experience." "The Army will give me the experience I need to further my career objectives, and while everybody else is in college I'll be getting paid for learning it," said Barbara Reinagel.

The U.S. Army, Air Force, Navy and the Marines have provided a great place for disciplined training which is necessary for any successful job or career. As Randy Brown commented, "It's structured." Those restrictive aspects of the military programs may take the worry out of weekend decisions about which party to attend.

Other options included working full-time or just relaxing and hanging out at the beach. Numerous graduates were just tired of school. "My fifteen years of school was enough for me and I decided to put my college career off for a while," said Trent Herring. He plans to get a job. As Matt Fisher put it, "College is not for me."

One problem seni faced with the job alter tive was the struggli economy. In this doub dip Recession, few bu nesses were hiring a those that were gener wanted the most educat experienced person p sible.

Either in the servi working or just taking ti off, seniors who chose head straight into the r world have futures just bright as those attend college.

Seniors' First Cruise

Maiden Voyage

On the night of November 23, 1991 the Senior class of '92 danced to the music of the local top forty band as the "Spirit of Norfolk" cruised around the Waterside area. At approximately 7 p.m. an array of couples arrived at the dock dressed in semi-formal attire and anticipating an elegant night on the town. Many students were seen running to the dock afraid that the traffic jam due to the parade at Waterside had caused them to "miss the boat." Once the boat had left the dock, refreshments were served and the band began to play.

After dancing to the latest hit songs of the year and mingling with friends, everyone had worked up quite an appetite. Fortunately for the seniors and their dates, the hors d'ouveres were promptly served. The appetizers included buffalo wings, marinated meatballs, nachos, and fresh vegetables with a ranch dressing. Despite the lengthy line, everyone seemed pleased with the food. Some of the partygoers went outside on the deck to enjoy the panoramic view of Norfolk illuminated by the fireworks and the Christmas lights.

The "Spirit of Norfolk" pulled in the dock around 10 o'clock p.m. as many discussed their plans for the rest of the evening. Some decided to attend the Primus/Fishbone concert held across the street at the Boathouse, while others planned on continuing the night at private parties in Norfolk and at the Beach. Everyone seemed to enjoy dressing up and spending time with their friends on the Senior Cruise.

Dating Game
Words of Wisdom

Each student had a different idea on the subject of dating and relationships. Some people thought high school was too soon to get involved in serious relationships, while other people preferred being part of an inseparable couple. There wasn't a definite consensus from those who were interviewed as to whether casual dating or serious relationships were better. However, some people were very particular about what attracted them to the opposite sex:

QUESTION: What attracts you most to the opposite sex?

Rob Sucher: "A girl who understands me — legs, too."

Bruce Liverman: "Her butt . . . and her attitude."

Diana Dayrit: "His personality."

Happy O'Brien: "Legs."

If College . . . The Intricate Process

Before a student becomes a senior, he begins an endless decision-making process. One major choice is whether to go to college after high school graduation. Over eighty per cent of the seniors elected to pursue higher education. The next questions, therefore, become related to the college admissions process. Parents and guidance counselors begin to assess your strengths and quiz you about SAT's and achievement tests, AP courses, GPA, and activities.

In addition, the senior needs to consider what college size he would prefer, whether it's to be in-state or not, a single sex or co-ed campus, public or private, and what specific programs are offered.

A logical approach to this often overwhelming situation is to start talking to friends and looking through the materials in the guidance office. A collection of videos featuring the respective schools is a relatively new aid in this selection.

After writing to about ten schools, many students scheduled interviews and campus tours on approximately six college campuses. Often such college visits were wrapped into family vacation trips, either in the summer or during those long weekends in November.

Generally, applications — complete wih those dreaded essays — were due by February and letters of acceptance arrived by April. According to a national norm, students made their formal selections by the first of May, hopefully for the first-choice school.

One of the pros and cons of Senior year is dealing with Scholarships. Jennifer Faircloth chooses which scholarships she should apply for during a visit to the Guidance Office.

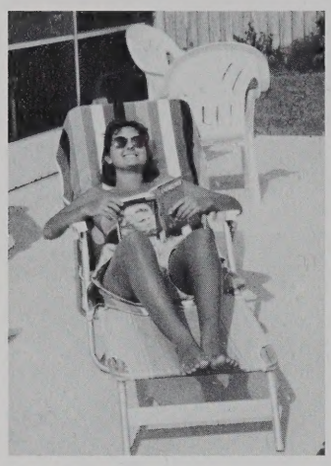
A popular pastime for water-lovers is freeboarding on Broad Bay. Mike Gurdziel displays his outstanding technique.

One of Sarah-Ann Rufe's favorite things to do is lay out under the sun. This is obvious with her year-round tan.



Seniors have always had their preferences. For some, getting in to the first-choice college, such as Virginia Tech or VCU, was the main goal; for others, just trying to pass for the year was the objective. Heather Largent expressed such a college preference: "VCU would have to be my favorite choice because of its great art department."

Most seniors would agree that Mrs. Karen Jenkins and Mr. Tom LaBarbera were the choices for best teachers. This was exemplified by Angela Jackson who said, "definitely Mr. LaBarbera."

Seniors' empathy for Magic Johnson who rais awareness about the AI epidemic reminded about even larger que tions. However, seni year was usually spe hanging out at partie going down to Hatteras, seeing a popular band the Boathouse. Typical seniors who favor wa weather, Mary Cuttit commented, "During t summer I like to hang o at the beach because the is so much to do, like v leyball."

Senior Year Excalibar

Double-Edged Sword

One of the biggest decisions of Senior Year is whether to go to college or not. Kelli Holloway checks out college information in the Guidance Department.

During the fourth year, it was exciting to be the "elder statesmen" of clubs and organizations. It was great to know your way around and be familiar with the bell schedule and the Administration, to say nothing of the formalities of late arrivals, early releases, and prior approvals. It was a welcome challenge to dream of that first-choice college.

However, there were the down-sides, too. There was anxiety about college admissions, letters of recommendation, and applications for scholarships.

Perhaps the following seniors expressed this ambivalence best:

Andrew Kellam: "Pro: It's your last year. Con: You know it and senioritis sets in!"

Joanna Duckworth: "Since you've been here for years you know most of the teachers and students; the atmosphere's a lot more friendly."

Robyn Kim: "Senior year has been fun and stressful. College will be AWESOME!"

Amy Cooper: "This year has been both exhausting and exhilarating. A lot was different this year. College applications, acceptances and rejections; voting; finally realizing that life is starting to count and the future is now. But enough was the same, and has been the same for four years, that college will be a welcome change. The only way left to go is forward. I'm ready!"

Memories
Seniors Remember When

There are many memories that the class of 1992 will never forget. Over the last four years, we've all had so many friendships, relationships, events, and best interesting moments that will stick in our minds forever. Through the good and bad times, we realized that these were the most carefree exciting times of our lives. Many different people and events helped create these unforgettable memories. Here are some special moments that you may have forgotten that helped shape our years of high school. Remember when . . .

. . . Danielle McKnight lost her two front teeth?

. . . we had to take Driver's Ed.?

. . . Kim Garrison was the first freshman cheerleader?

. . . all lunches were 90¢

. . . Kelli Holloway, Liz Hark, and Liz Canfield were Coquettes?

. . . Lamonte Still broke the District rushing record and received a full scholarship to UVA?

. . . Happy O'Brien was class President?

. . . A tree was planted in the middle of the football field?

. . . David Duke almost got elected Governor of Louisiana?

. . . Field Hockey won the State Championship for the third consecutive year?

. . . Heather Criswell rapped to the beat to win elections?

. . . Mr. LaBarbera shaved his head?

. . . John Rodgers and Danny Las Marias had short hair?

. . . Magic Johnson announced he had contracted the HIV virus?

. . . We won eight football games in a row?

. . . We had to take P.E.?

. . . the USSR ceased to exist?

. . . the Cold War ended?

. . . Leigh Goldberg didn't go out with a wrestler?

. . . Julie Inman was the first to beat the bell in her SCA President speech?

. . . Elle McEachern shaved her head?

. . . We had to have football games in the afternoon?

. . . The Boardwalk and Atlantic Avenue were renovated?

. . . The Republicans won seven General Assembly seats?

Both local and international events along with individual people helped shape our four years at Cox. These years were unique and special for every senior and the memories will be cherished forever.

Juniors Made It Happen

New Leaders, New Ideas

Back for another successful year, juniors strived to reach their goals. One's junior year is measured by the success of the Ring Dance. Juniors this year got off to an early start by the sale of candy. This fundraiser was quite profitable; it showed in the great Ring Dance. The theme for this year's Ring Dance was "Into The Mystic."

Acting as the new president Lew Crenshaw gave a different direction to this class. He commented on the productivity of the class, "Although we had a rough start, we soon began to come together less like a class and more like a family." This statement best summarized this year's class. The officers that also composed this junior class were Treasurer, Allison Watson; Secretary, Sheila Wilson; Second Vice President, Carrie Rhoads; Vice President, Matt Pruett, and President, Lew Crenshaw. These five students, along with the active students of the junior class, produced a very powerful class.

Other major events of the class occurred at Homecoming. Proving their spirit, they won second place during Spirit Week. Their float had the theme "Imagine the Fantasies of the Mind." Dressed like fictional characters and riding on board were Jennifer Bullard, Matt Pruett, Carrie Rhoads, Emily Sineath, Amanda Spruill, and Allison Watson.

All of these events made the junior class one of the most remarkable. Sponsors Mrs. Latonya Ferguson and Mrs. Kay Anderson will continue in such roles through graduation, only a year away.

With volcanoes erupting, a tidal wave crashing and magic of the Homecoming Parade, Alli Watson, Emily Sineath and Merlin are seen on the juniors' float.

Rings: Keys To Memories Tools To Unlock The Past

They are as American as apple pie and as much a part of the junior year as report cards and Spring Break. They cost only a small fortune and are available in a wide variety of styles, colors, and shapes. They are on the minds of most juniors every September. Yes, they are class rings, and they seem like quite a hassle. However, they are definitely worth it. Picture it: it's twenty years from now and you are sorting through dusty cardboard boxes in a packed attic full of childhood memories and you come to a box labeled "high school." You turn a key, open the lid, and begin sorting through old yearbooks, yellowed photos and perhaps, a letter jacket, laughing at the fact that you saved programs from four years worth of spring musicals, fashion shows, and honor roll assemblies. Just when you thought you had reached the end, you see it. It is lying in the corner surrounded by frayed remains of newspaper clippings and crumbling corsages: your class ring. You pick it up, dust it off, and slip it on your finger. Instantly, you are a teenager again, roaming the halls and stopping to chat with friends at their lockers, slipping into class just as the bell rings, hoping the teacher won't notice. Ah yes, it brings back memories of those friendships. You lose yourself in thoughts of pep rallies, football games, and cafeteria food until you hear your children call you.

Juniors were asked about what class rings meant to them and gave the following remarks. "It gives us a sense of our upcoming graduation." — Bobby Lee "Rings mean that we have one more year of high school, and they also show that our junior year was fun and important." — San Wright "My class ring will remind me of my high school memories and all the good times I had." — Beth Conner

A class ring is a significant part of your high school years. It is a symbol which can be reflected upon for years to come. The variety of rings is remarkable. However, one thing juniors agreed on is that a ring is a mark of achievement.

Cafeteria Specials
Making It Great

Sometimes the cafeteria could be difficult. Making up your mind whether to buy the chicken pattie or the pizza could be a hair-pulling decision. Juniors, very familiar with the lunchroom, gave their advice on what to do and what not to do.

"Trust me, when you're hungry, stay that way." — Tim Butler

"Eat a big breakfast." — Sara Chandler

"Don't inhale when you walk in." — Amy Chen

"Always bring your own lunch." — Tobi Ellis

"It smells better outside." — Jason Ford

"Buy only packaged food." — Michelle Laird

"Don't lick the spoon." — Hersha Samtani

"Rib-A-Que is number one! But don't eat it without medical supervision." — Jennifer Smalls

"Watch out for flying pizza." — Josh Speckhart

"Stab it a few times before you even consider eating it." — R.J. Wheaton

"If you want to smell really good walk into the bathroom." — Sheila Wilson

Maybe choosing the chicken pattie or the pizza is not the question.

Ride With Pride
Catch It

Many events throughout the year demonstrate Falcon Pride. Ra Ra Ra Sis Boom Ba! Ra Ra Re, a pep rally. Pep rallies are the most widely practiced form of school spirit, but Falcon spirit does not stop there. The first pep rally was preceded by Spirit Week. Every day people came to school dressed as something different. There were many creative interpretations of the themes.

Another sign of spirit was the fashion show "Holiday Escape." Hours of practice and preparation went into this outstanding event. Another production which showed true dedication was the fall play, "Exit The Body."

Sports events also exhibited school pride. Shouting crowds at football games proved just how much enthusiasm the student body had. The crammed gym for the Green and Gold Match was yet another sign of that Falcon Pride!

Falcon Pride was something that everybody showed this year. That is what made our school stand out from all of the others.

In the spirit of Homecoming, Matt Pruett and Brian Steelman run on the field to challenge the seniors in a tug-of-war contest.

Dedicated golfer, Brian Winston, concentrates while making this crucial shot.

Junior Talent
Second To None

The junior class was filled with many talented students from the arts to sports.

Receiving first place for the Classical Period at the regional piano competition was Helen Chen. She has been taking piano for eleven years. Her favorite composer is Chopin. Perseverance is Helen Chen, since she sits two hours a day to practice. Her piano playing has led to many accomplishments.

On almost any given day of the summer, Brian Winston can be found practicing his strokes in order to lead the golf team. Brian has been playing for three years and continues to excel. His highest achievement was winning first place in the Tidewater Junior Tournament. Brian said he liked golf "because it is challenging, rewarding, and frustrating all at the same time." He modestly said he has no hopes of going professional but wishes to continue to play.

As a part of the Old Dominion University ballet troupe, Rachel Cuthrell frequently endured fifteen to twenty hours of grueling practice every week. Rachel is a highly skilled dancer; she preformed many roles in the productions of The Nutcracker Suite. She likes dancing because it is a non-competitive organization. Her favorite type of dance is character. She intends to pursue dance in college but not as a career.

Devotion and practice are needed to show off talent. That was something that definitely existed in this year's junior class.

Staying On Top
Money And Fun

The sophomore class had a returning officer and many new, creative ideas. Dan Clark was elected president of his class and the other officers were Meghan Dewey (vice president), Kristen Andersen (treasurer), and Megan Parker (secretary).

The first major event was Homecoming. The theme was Imagine All The People and the sophomore class float showed people from all over the world brought together in peace. In an attempt to stay on top of their fundraising efforts for next year's Ring Dance, class members sold chocolate santas and snowmen at Christmas time.

The sophomore class definitely exhibited their high energy level. The activities showed true school spirit and enthusiasm; it was how they stayed on top.

The Sophomore Class officers are: (clockwise) President Dan Clark, Secretary Meghan Parker, Second Vice President Amy French, Treasurer Kristen Anderson, and Vice President Meghan Dewey. The officers were fairly new to these leadership positions, as only Meghan Dewey was a returning officer after serving as Freshman Class President. The officers soon learned to work together, however, and produce a successful, efficient class. They were aided by sponsors Mrs. Sarah Horn and Ms. Laura Godfrey.

Buckle Up
Learning To Drive

There comes a time when everyone wishing to drive must be instructed in the proper driving techniques. For some lucky sophomores, and a handful of others, that time has come. During their lunch bells and after school, behind the wheel students practiced their newly acquired driving skills on the range, and every other day they were let out on the road with instructors. As frightened classmates strapped into the backseats of the driver education cars, these students had some of their most memorable driving experiences. Under the watchful eyes of the instructors, students took turns driving through neighborhoods and along the oceanfront, while other drivers cautiously avoided these well-marked cars.

Although everyone was excited when he completed both behind-the-wheel and classroom instruction and was able to apply for his license, there was a variety of opinion about the time spent in drivers' training. Some students were asked to give their opinions about the drivers' education program.

"It was all right except for constantly being told 'make a left;' 'turn right,' 'slow down, you're driving too fast,' 'STOP!' " — Lara Call

"I liked being able to drive around the different neighborhoods, but I didn't like all the commands that the instructors kept giving." — Jenny Hanlin

"I liked it because it was fun to be able to get away from school for awhile, but the instructors were always yelling at me." — Kelly Creighton

Reporting to room 162, J.T. McDonald and Aaron Liles wait to sign up for Driver's Ed. In spite of a change this year by which students have to pay $75 for the behind-the-wheel course, it remains a popular program for the sophomores.

Super Star Sophomores
Lead Falcons To Victory

The athletic teams worked very hard and the many strenuous hours they put into their practices really paid off. Though the coaches had good things to say about everyone on their teams, we asked them to tell us about some of their outstanding sophomores. Since none of the Beach District high schools offer junior varsity sports, an underclassman making a varsity athletic team is a major accomplishment.

The boys' basketball coach, Mike Head, could not choose one tenth-grader with the best performance; he was very proud of all of them. These fresh new faces were: centers John Dellinger and Andy Ward, guards Scott Coleman, Matt Schliske, Robbie Morgan and forward Scott Tesnow.

Lady Falcons' basketball players guard Melani Price and center Sarah Krop were picked by their coach, Stuart Holland, as the most valuable sophomores.

Coach Gary Hartranft recognized three tenth-graders that were big assets to the wrestling team. These young men were Dan Clark, Jason Kramer, and Brian Clifton.

Coquettes captain Kenya Newell, said of sophomore Jennifer Warren, "Jennifer is honest, she is a great dancer and enjoyable to work with. We love her because she is really sweet and not fake." Jennifer enjoyed being on the Coquette squad because she loved to dance for big crowds and the people were really great.

Under the leadership of Coach Tim Webb, the boys' indoor track team had a good record this winter. Some credit for these victories goes to several sophomores who proved themselves to be exceptional athletes. Long distance runners Drew Felty and Robert Leone excelled and Gavin Fox competed in the hurdles, high jump, long jump, and triple jump with much success.

Sophomore athletes contributed to the success of their respective teams on the varsity level.

In preparation for an upcoming wrestling match, tenth-graders Dan Clark and Jason Kramer perfect their maneuvers while Brian Clifton referees.

Jennifer Warren, one of the sophomores on the Coquette squad, spends many hours practicing and perfecting dance routines to perform at school events.

In hopes that her new pony is not April Fool's joke, Kinsalynn Carpenter enjoys her third birthday.

A real New Year's baby, Kathryn Psimas celebrates her fourth birthday with her new Princess Leah doll, a gift from Nick.

You Say It's Your Birthday
Anything Else?

Birthdays can be fun and exciting. Having a party with friends, presents, and food seems to be the usual birthday tradition. But what about the people whose birth dates are on holidays? Sophomores shared their interesting birthday experiences!

"Having a birthday on Halloween is great, not only do I get presents, but lots of candy too!" — Kate Langlois

"People who know me think that it is not a coincidence that I was born on April Fool's Day." — Kinsalynn Carpenter

"When I was little, I used to always think that all of the parties on New Year's Day were for my birthday." — Kathryn Psimas

"I did not learn until later that besides my birthday, it was America's birthday, too." — Jason White

One common problem with having your birthday on a holiday was that you could rarely celebrate it on the actual date.

The most important gift was given by the Department of Motor Vehicles which issued licenses to sixteen year olds. For a few lucky ones, a car appeared in the driveway.

Often given as a surprise party by friends or family, some students celebrated at Pizza Hut or went to the beach for a bonfire.

From New Year's Day to New Year's Eve, there was something more to these sophomores, an interesting holiday birthday that made it particularly special.

Weekend Plans
Picture This . . .

It is almost two o'clock on a Friday afternoon. You are sitting in your seventh bell concentrating on who is doing what with whom over the weekend rather than your work. Finally the bell rings and you quickly meet your friends to discuss your weekend plans.

Many sophomores like Jennifer McCloskey and her friends often hung out at the mall, while others went to movies. Parties, skating rinks, and friends' houses were other popular places for sophomores between seventh bell on Friday and first bell on Monday. Several people tried to have fun on the weekends, leaving homework for late Sunday night. Some sophomores, such as Raymond Lee, preferred to work on the weekends. Early on Saturday morning, sophomores either slept in or watched cartoons. A few dedicated athletes were in the wrestling room or at track meets.

Several students said that weekends were a good break from teachers and classes as long as they didn't have to babysit.

Sophomores' ideas about typical weekends included:

"Party! Party! Party!" — Annette Rauh

"During indoor track season, I spent my weekends at track practice and meets." — Gavin Fox

"Rehearsal for community theater took up most of my weekend. Sleeping and partying came second." — Andi Nolan

Enjoying their favorite weekend vacation, Lisa and Lara Call are ready to take another run down the slopes. Many students organize these "red-eye" ski trips, so-called because you get very little sleep, to Wintergreen and Snowshoe ski resorts.

Heading for Success
Freshmen Off to a Great Start

The first major high school event for the freshmen was Homecoming. Many freshmen helped to construct the float after school at Diana Dayrit's house, contributing to its great success. The float depicted a good environment versus a bad environment. This illustrated their theme, "Imagine the World a Better Place." Emily Teague and Jennifer Desimone proudly represented their class on the Homecoming Court. Even though they didn't do too well in the tug-of-war and class competitions, the whole class was very spirited.

The officers wanted to get the class more involved, so after the Christmas holidays, they sold doughnuts and began to plan many more exciting activities.

Participation was definitely the quality that made the freshmen class stand out. The officers, Diana Dayrit, Kevin Sullivan, Bridget Ingram and Emily Teague, were extremely pleased with the overwhelming amount of participation by all the students.

Freshmen class officers Secretary, Bridget Ingram; President, Emily Teague; Treasurer, Kevin Sullivan; and Vice President, Diana Dayrit draw upon their experiences from Great Neck Junior High School as they prepare to lead the class of '95. They carry the burden of beginning to raise money for their Ring Dance and Prom.

The freshmen class float was divided to show our environment and an undesirable one. Patrick O'Brien portrays a homeless man, reminding us of the plight of the less fortunate.

School: A Rite of Passage

Take a Right at the Pool

Going to a new school can be difficult. Getting acquainted with new surroundings and making new friends was the challenge of the freshmen year. Remember the first few weeks? What was it like? Freshmen comment on their first few weeks of school:

"The school was like a maze. All of the sides looked alike so I got lost easily." — Anonymous

"I wish I was still in junior high." — Anonymous

"The worst thing about the first couple weeks of school was that I tripped on the steps on the way up." — Sean Goings

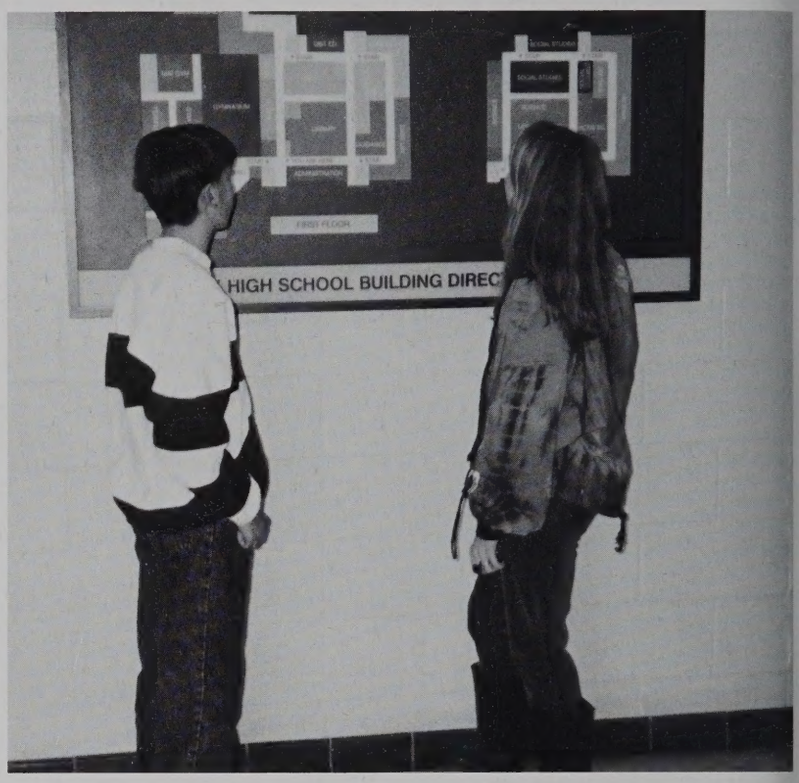
"It was a lot different than I expected. People were a lot more mature than they were in junior high." — Chris Meadows

"The best thing was meeting a cute girl; the worst thing was being rejected by her." — Anonymous

"I loved it." — Ebony Nichols

"I felt so excited about being in high school. It was wonderful." — Kelly Smith

Generally, the reactions were positive. Those who fell up the stairs and took the wrong turns eventually recovered and survived their entry to high school.



Overwhelmed by the confusing floor plan of the school, Sean Brooks stops to ask Joann Nixon if she can help him find his way to his next bell. Adding to the confusion is the erratic system of numbering the rooms. Blandly colored walls, repeating sets of colored lockers, and windowless rooms are also factors which contribute to freshmen frustration. Anyone have an elevator key?

Physical Education

Let's Get Physical

After comparing junior high and high school, the freshmen class discovered that they enjoyed freshmen physical education more than the junior high counterpart.

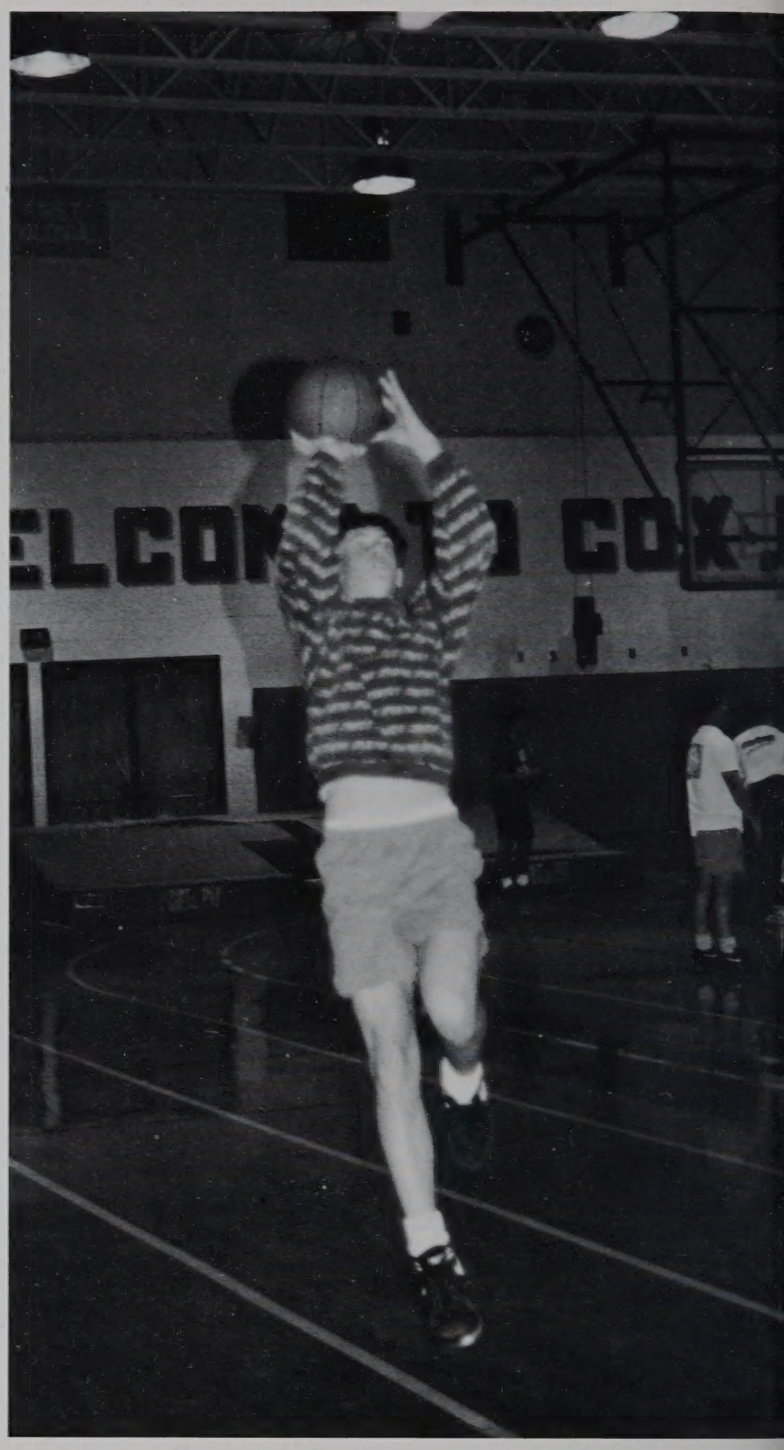
"Unlike junior high, there was no square dancing!" exclaimed Shannon Tripodi a freshmen who preferred high school's more strenuous activities.

Many students appreciated leaving behind the junior high dress code. There were no more mandatory red shirts and blue shorts!" commented Ginette Forsano.

Some especially liked physical education because it improved one's grade point average. Torrie Weeks said that she liked it because "it was an easy grade."

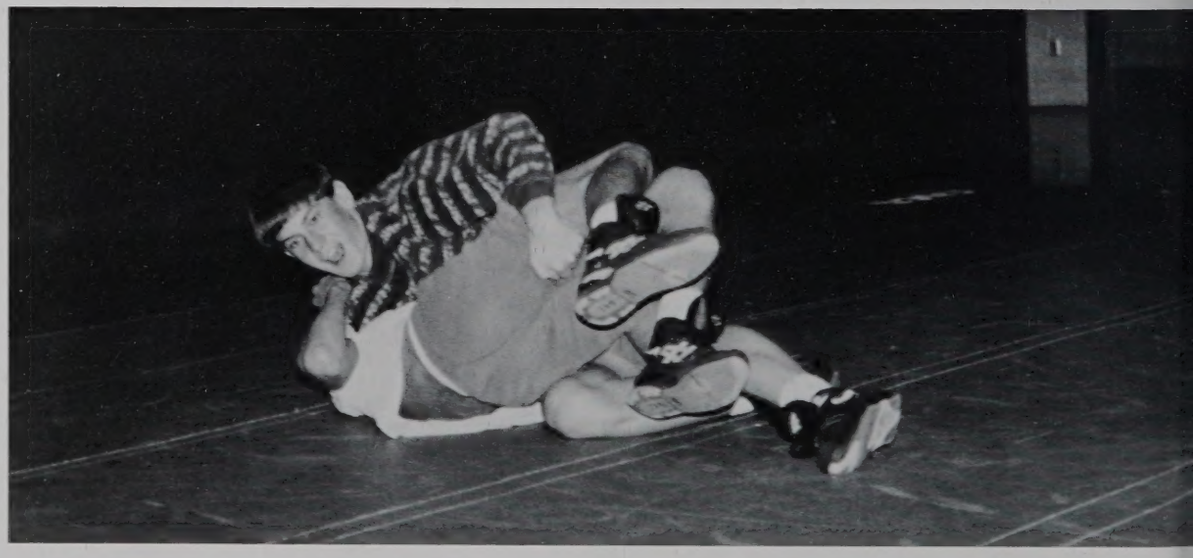
Contrary to popular belief, PE is not always healthy. "I was able to buy junk food in the locker room," responded Theresa Gregory.

Though some students missed things about junior high school, most of them agreed that the old PE was not one of them. They were able to get much more physical with their freshmen physical education classes.



Imitating the style of the greats, Matt Wilbricht takes a shot.

Attired in the best court outfit, Matt Whalen tries to avoid defender Ari Hagan.



Stretching and contorting their bodies, students like Nathan Vrooman and Matt Wilbricht practice the moves they learned in the wrestling unit of P.E.

Double Duty
Twice The Fun

Whether we like to believe it or not, freshmen deserve a little more credit than they are given. How many other people you know would leave one school to go to another and perhaps return again to the first? This year's freshmen class was possibly one of the most involved ever. Many ninth graders were active in clubs, sports, and extra-curricular academic activities both here and at their junior high schools. For example, Diana Dayrit and Erin Schweitzer were on the Falcon's gymnastics team and the cheering squad at Great Neck Junior High. The high schools offered some different activities from the junior high schools, giving freshmen a great opportunity to try something new, selected from a wide variety of clubs. Freshmen were active in such things as Academic Challenge, Math Counts, and sports at their junior high schools and new things such as Key Club, Octagon Club, Model UN and Cox Medical Association here.

A member of the Spanish Club, Jennifer Arnerman, posts a notice on the bulletin board outside of the cafeteria to remind other members of the upcoming meeting. All the foreign language clubs attracted much participation from the freshmen.

Freshmen Aspirations

Future Occupations

Have you ever wanted to dance on Broadway? Pilot a fighter plane? Star in a movie? Be a quarterback in the NFL? Walk on the moon? Or maybe you just wanted to be something simple like a veterinarian or a lawyer? Maybe you have not decided yet what you want to do with your life. If you have experienced any of the above, you are not alone.

Everyone at one time or another had a plan, whether it was a dream or more realistic. We have all dreamed of being a super hero, a famous musician, the President of the United States or something else fantastic, but what do freshmen really want to do when they grow up? Health professions, teaching, real estate sales, and the military were among the most common career choices of members of the freshmen class.

Some students recorded their thoughts:

"When I grow up I want to be a pediatric nurse because I would like to help sick children." — Katie Contrado

"When I grow up I want to be on America's Most Wanted as the most wanted criminal in the world. I'd be pretty popular." — Jerry Temples

"When I grow up I want to a chiropractor because they make a lot of money." — Leah Slaven

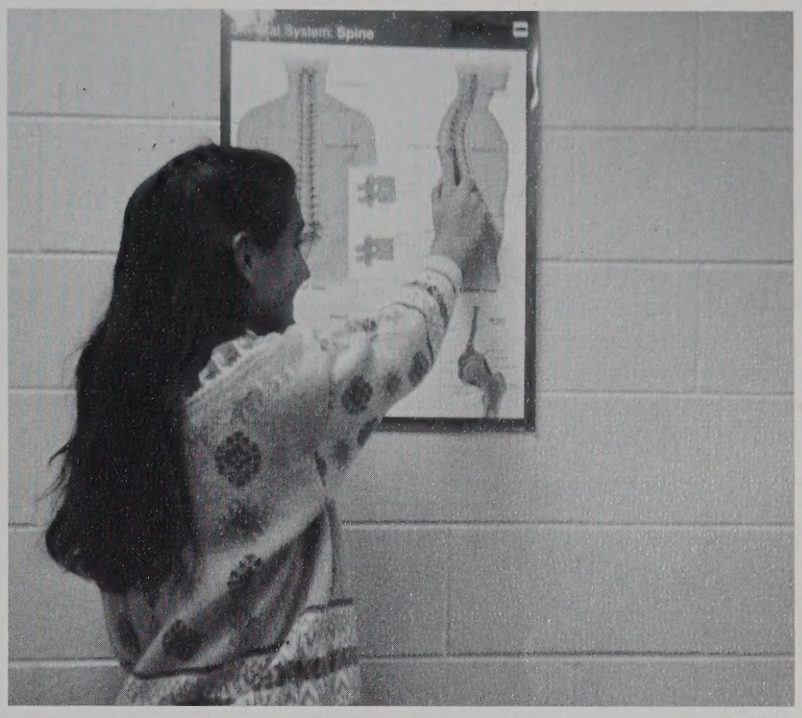
"When I grow up I want to be a garbage man because helping the city is just like helping my family with chores." — Jomo Smith

"I don't want to grow up 'cause if I did I wouldn't be a Toys 'R Us kid." — Nate Largent

"When I grow up I want to work with computers because I think they are really neat to work with and very interesting." — Amy Bates

Well, if you were one of those freshmen who did not know what type of job he wanted, do not worry, you still have a few years to think about it.

Hoping to broaden her knowledge of the human back, Leah Slaven examines a medical chart. Someday she wants to become a well-known chiropractor.



With the computer generation in full swing, many students take advantage of computer courses offered through their schools. Amy Bates spends her free time after school working on a computer program. She hopes to have a computer-oriented career.

Creating the Future
Faculty Leads the Way

Can you imagine school without any teachers or administation? Aside from not needing a hall pass and no homework, there would not be any point to come to school. We are lucky enough to have some of the highest qualified staff of hard-working teachers and administration that help make Cox the terrific school it is. Cox teachers work long hours preparing lessons and grading papers to make our students the best they can be.

The faculty is led by principal Miss Emilie Tilley. As a former teacher and coach at Cox, Miss Tilley can relate to the needs of teachers and students. She is assisted by Mr. Michael Porter, Mr. Cl ford Lewis, and Mr. Bruce Bieh who keep track of such things as di cipline and attendance.

One part of the principal's job is to be present as seniors graduate. At last year's ceremony were Mr. Porter, Mr. Biehl, Miss Tilley, and Mr. Lewis.

Teachers Teachers

What Some Teachers Went Through

Quizzes, tests, and major projects . . each representing one third of the grade are a student's worst nightmare. However, teachers were students themselves and often remember their own instructors.

Ms. Lynn Carson, an environmental science teacher, recalled her chemistry and physics teacher Mr. David Beckmeyer with a human thigh bone attached to his white lab coat. Ms. Carson also laughed thinking of how he called his pupils "messy chemists" when an experiment went awry.

An Algebra II/Trigonometry teacher, Mrs. Joanne Jackson humorously remembered her own Algebra II teacher, Miss Broomfield. She said, "Miss Broomfield was a sweet old lady who wrote with her right hand while erasing with her left." This was not the only pressure she put on the class. "After every test Miss Broomfield arranged the seating chart according to scores so everyone knew how you did."

Just as the former generation enjoys reflecting on their teachers, surely we will remember our teachers as fondly.

Rembering her own school days, Mrs. Jackson has a busy time after school grading papers and answering calls.

Unforgettable
That's What They Are

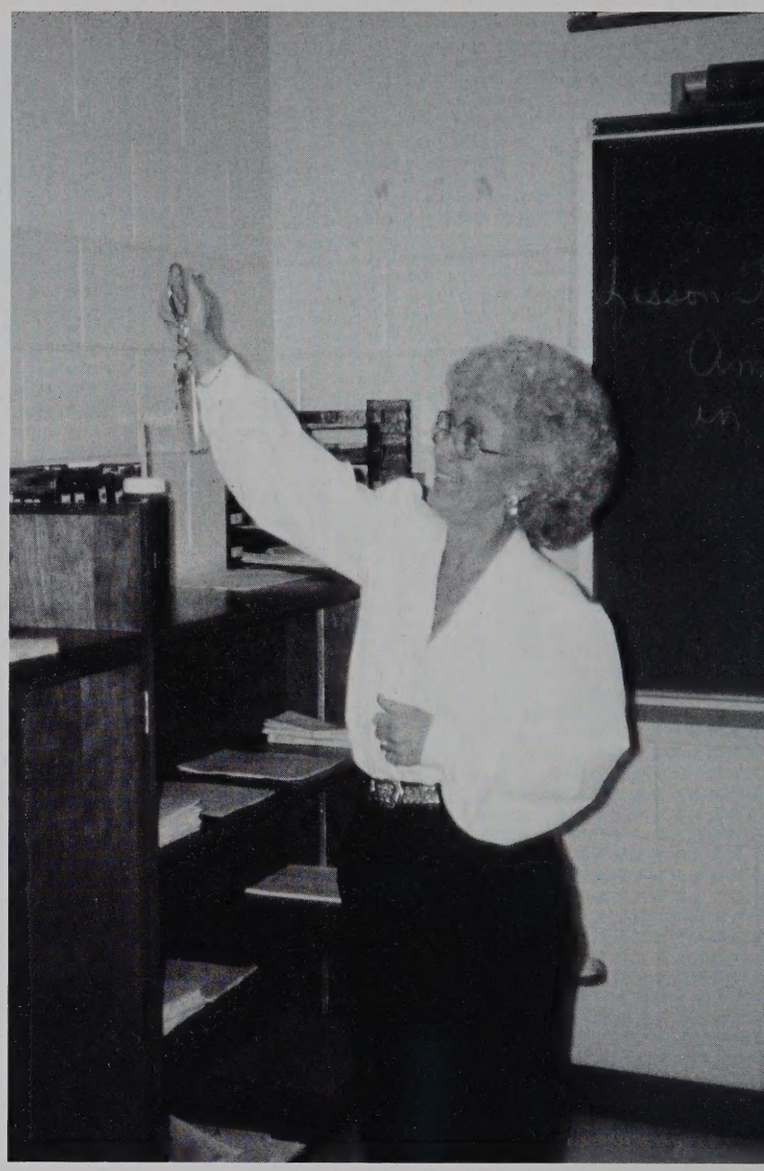
Students sometimes think they are the only ones who had unusual or embarrassing experiences. Yet teachers are human too, and they remember having had these moments. As some teachers will tell you, such times are unforgettable!

Miss Lois Baker suffered embarrassment when she handed her algebra students only the answer sheets to a major test. As she felt the eyes of thirty students staring at her, she realized that she had not given them the test sheets. "My face must have turned fifty different shades of red," she added.

Mrs. Amelia Fermil, history and geography teacher, was aghast when she flushed her school keys down the toilet. "It was very embarrassing trying to tell the assistant principal where I had lost my keys." Fortunately, the assistant principal was not angry, found humor in her situation, and replaced her keys.

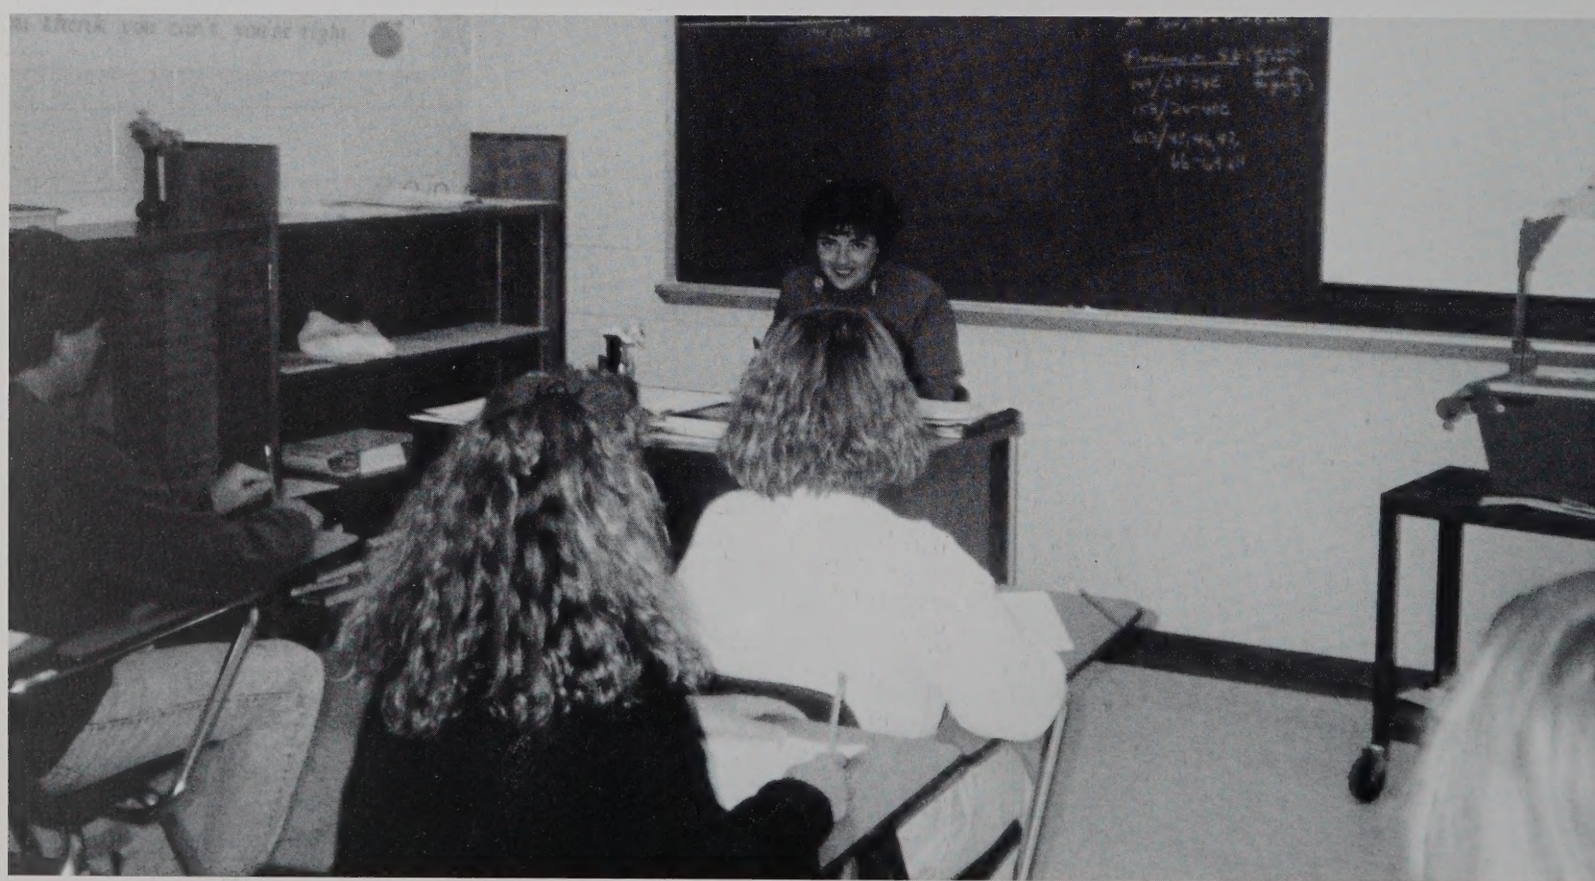
Mr. and Mrs. Woody Beckner were married at the spur of the moment due to Mrs. Beckner's having to go to school the following day. The wedding was so rushed in fact that Mr. Beckner was married without having taken a shower and in blue jeans.

Embarrassing and unforgettable moments can be shared by all. We have all had them, and we will have them again. These moments are what made every one of our faculty unique this year!



Oops! Ms. Lois Baker suddenly realizes that she mistakenly handed out only the answer sheets to a major test.

Holding her new, large key ring, Mrs. Amelia Fermil cherishes its unflushability, since teachers are drilled "Do not lose your keys!"



Mr. and Mrs. Woody Beckner enjoy a long-awaited honeymoon in France.

Beyond The Classroom
Another Perspective of Teachers

Would students be lost without the teachers who sponsored our extra-curricular activities? Do teachers live lives after school? Do they know how to do anything but grade papers? The answer to all these questions is yes!

Mr. Larry Becker, the German Club and German National Honor Society sponsor, facilitated learning about our world without being confined in a classroom. "I enjoyed this because I was able to see the students in different surroundings outside of school," concluded Mr. Becker.

Mrs. Ginny James, sponsor of Yearbook, TARS, and Model United Nations, gave students additional opportunities. She is "committted to the premise that such activities allow for the development of leadership skills and personal growth." "I liked sponsoring Happy Club because the students were working for children who need special care, and they were working for themselves," commented Mrs. Debora Mosher. She praised the students who had compassion for the children in surgery.

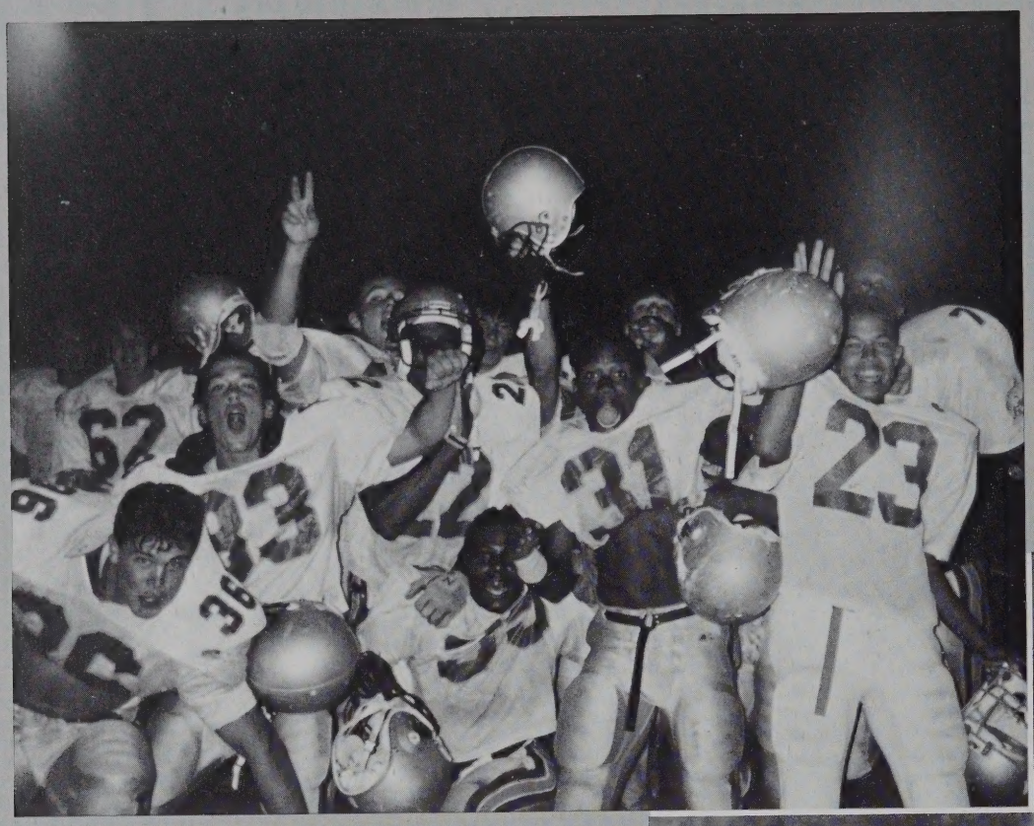
Mrs. Vera Wyche showed students the ticket toward world cultural knowledge. She adds "I sponsored Black Culture Club because I enjoyed the idea of students examining the idea culture of Afro-Americans and their contributions to not only the historical development of the United Sates, but to all world cultures."

We definitely profited from the faculty sponsors. Our education was enriched by the extra-curricular activities.

Not only have teachers helped enhance our lives but their own lives as well. After school, teachers headed off for a healthy "power walk." Some teachers journeyed down by the rec center and others walked in nearby neighborhoods. Miss Jennie Lou Pangle could be seen after hours upstairs walking around briskly with her walkman playing.

Many students never realized that teachers do carry on their own lives and are very busy people, too. One should not be surprised to see his teachers in surroundings other than the classroom.

n this Age of Fitness, many teachers enjoy exercising. Mrs. Hux, Mrs. Gardner and Mrs. Bandy enjoy the fresh air while they walk behind the recreation center.



Celebrating yet another win, members of the football team are excited about their victory. The football team ended the season with its best record in years.

With Kellam runners in hot pursuit, Jason Dunn pulls out ahead in a cross country race at Mount Trashmore.

GOING FOR THE GOLD

Whether bundling up for a chilly Friday night football game, cheering on a basketball team, or catching some rays while watching a baseball game, athletics was a big, and fun part of student life. What better way to show Falcon Pride than to cheer on our hardworking athletes? As usual, we were quite successful in each and every athletic endeavor. The fall sports teams made us proud with a third consecutive state championship in Field Hockey, an outstanding record in Football, and incredible wins in Cross Country. The weather grew chilly, but that didn't stop the winter sports teams from becoming successful in track, gymnastics, basketball, and wrestling. The warm weather during the spring season brought fans out for baseball, softball, track, and soccer competitions. Each and every one of our Olympic hopefuls made us proud as they were "Going for the Gold."

Spring Sports 1991

The spring sports season brought Cox some exciting competitions. The Boy's Tennis Team tore up the courts and Eric Geshekter, Jonathan Hanwit, and David Monger walked away with district titles. The Boys' and Girls' Soccer team had yet another outstanding season as did Track, Softball, and Baseball. Some of the shining stars were Jason Shedlock, Donnell Malone, Mary Dye, Sarah Londoree, and Andrea Chamberlain. Once again, Cox proved to be Number one.

During a home meet, Donnell Malone sets another record as little Sabrina Webb appears to hold a stop watch.

Preparing for a kick straight to the goal, Vanessa Barnes puts all her strength into beating Green Run.

EXPLOSION ON THE FIELD

Soccer Fires Up

Kicking off the soccer season with a bang, the girls' and boys' soccer teams both began what would be a great spring. While the boys' team produced a championship title, the girls' team worked on improving their game.

"We're number one!" That was the chant of the boys' soccer team. From the dramatic beginning to the exciting season climax, these Falcons held their banners high. A solid mixture of great offense, defense, and team spirit combined to make boys' soccer a popular sport. All this plus hours of practice made them the Beach District Champions and then runners-up in the Eastern Region.

Coach Jim Snodgrass was proud of his entire team. However, he noted, "Seniors in the class of '91 were largely responsible for the success of the team. They played beyond their experience level to lead the team to the District Championship."

Seniors Ken George and Jason Shedlock were on the All-Beach and All-Region First teams, and Shedlock continued on to the All-State First Soccer Team.

The girls' soccer team also had potential as a championship team, but many obstacles were placed in their way. The young team was plagued by a lack of experience playing together and many injuries; however, the girls continued to play their hardest, and they finished the season with three wins and only one more loss. The Beach Coach Terri Sawyer used this season to improve the girls' ability and build their teamwork skills. Most Valuable Player Mary Dye and Most Valuable Offense and Defense Players Tami Trent and Brandi Wheeler, along with outstanding senior Esther Dabney, led the younger girls in the games.

The girls know that they learned the skills this season upon which they will build their legacy, and though they did not produce a trophy, they were still champions.

Showing her fancy foot work, Mary Dye, steals the ball and scores a goal just before the half-time whistle.

RUNNING STRONG

Beating a Path to Victory

Boys' and Girls' track both ran that extra mile to have one of the most successful years yet. There were many outstanding team members, such as junior Lori Phillips who broke the record for the 32 meter run, and the boys' track Most Valuable player Donnell Malone, who came away from the State Meet with a coveted silver medal for the long jump event.

Girls' track finished their season in the top three for the Beach District. Hard work and long practices produced state finalists, district champions, and record breakers. In her first year, freshman Jennifer Petykowski jumped her way to second in the district and was viable competition at the State Meet in the high jump event; senior Jennifer Scofield left her mark before graduating by becoming the district champion in the 32 meters. Amy Winston helped boost the team's score at every meet, scoring more points than any other team member.

The boys' track team enjoyed many sweet victories through the spring, with only one loss on their record. The team was led by the experienced "runner of the year" Brett Matthews and anchored by the multi-talented Donnell Malone. Supporting these leaders were top runners such as Matt Legg, Robert Sucher, Jason Rapers, Raymond Ayers, Pat Artis, Damon Burns, and Greg Scovel. "This was the best year ever for Cox Track. Each meet was a complete team effort," Coach Webb enthusiastically stated. It is true, the track teams beat a path to victory for future runners to follow.

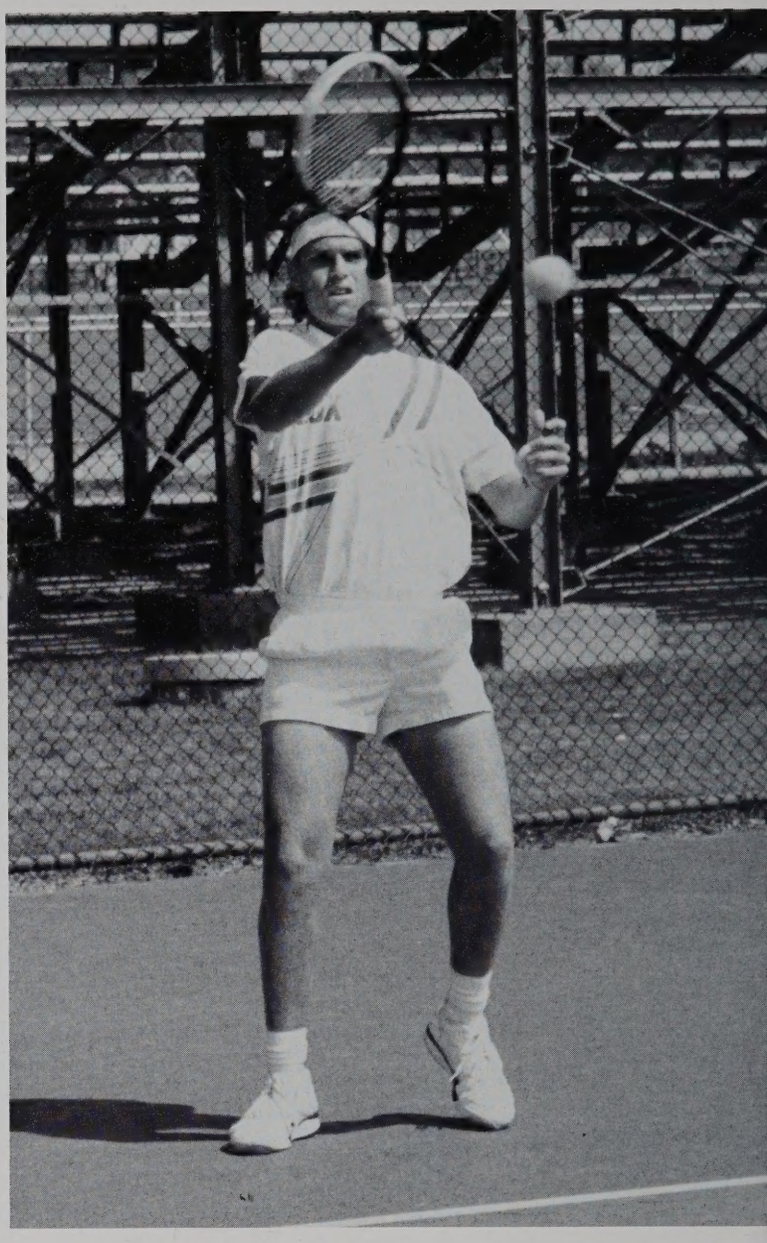
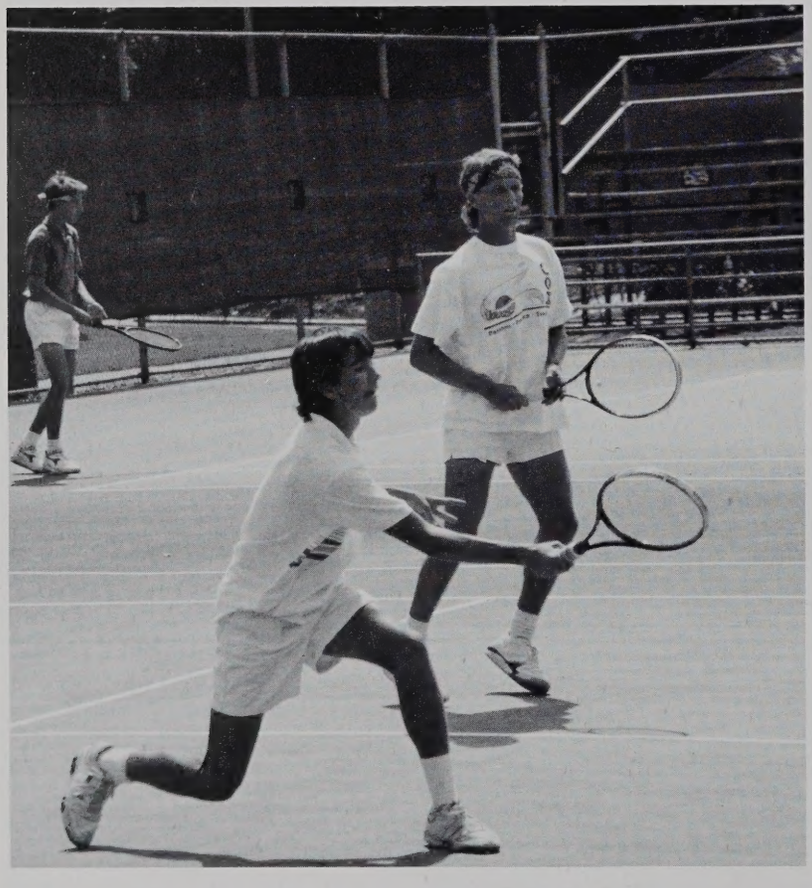
BACKHANDING TO VICTORY

Another Winning Season

The boys' tennis team had good reason to be smiling this spring. Not only did junior Eric Geshekter, the team's Most Valuable Player, win the Beach District "A" Bracket Championship, he and junior David Monger teamed up to win the District Doubles Championship in the same bracket. Also, junior Jonathan Hanwit took the "B" bracket District Singles Championship. Perhaps the sweetest victory though, was that of the doubles team of senior Heath Flohre and junior Nick Psimas against rival First Colonial High School. After being down 5-2, they made a smashing come back and won the match. In doing so, they won the Beach District Title for the team. It was a nice curtain call for Heath Flohre, who was finishing his fourth and final year of outstanding court sessions with the Falcons. Under Coach Leon Hoots, the team has learned to persevere and keep their cool when the heat is turned on. This, on top of the plentiful raw talent, has been the key to the various victories and championship titles the team has accumulated this season and previous seasons. Skill, hard work, and refusal to give in have been the driving forces behind the rackets of the 1991 Beach District Champions, making them, once again, the "Best at the Beach!"





David Monger and Eric Geshekter shows us how to play perfect serve and volley doubles.

HEADS UP!
Here Come the Ladies

Kim Lipscomb came up to bat. "Crack!" the ball went soaring through the air and the crowd cried in victory. This leading hitter was awarded for her effort and leadership, "Most Outstanding." Andrea Chamberlain was on Second team All-District and won the Leadership Award. Other exceptional players were Jeanine Gunther, who came through when the team needed her most and therefore won the Lady Falcon Clutch Award. Tina Sawyer, who won the Coaches Award, also shared Honorable Mention Category with Ashley Bolen.

"There were big shoes left empty, I challenge you to fill them," said former coach Art Koeppen about the team captains' predecessors. Filling these shoes were Kim Lipscomb, Kendra Ward, and Andrea Chamberlain.

The girls spent long hours there running, throwing, swinging, and hitting. As the last ball was caught, the players ended Coach Steve Gedro's final game.

First baseman, Andrea Chamberlain scoops up the ball and makes the third out on a short ground ball.

In the Kempsville game Tina Sawyers pitches to the last batter in the ninth inning.

Kim Lipscomb, a two-sport athlete, forcefully hits a fly ball that sends First Colonial's outfield running.

Catching First Colonial off guard, Jessica Davis, bunts the ball and quickly sprints towards first to load the bases.

HOMEWARD BOUND

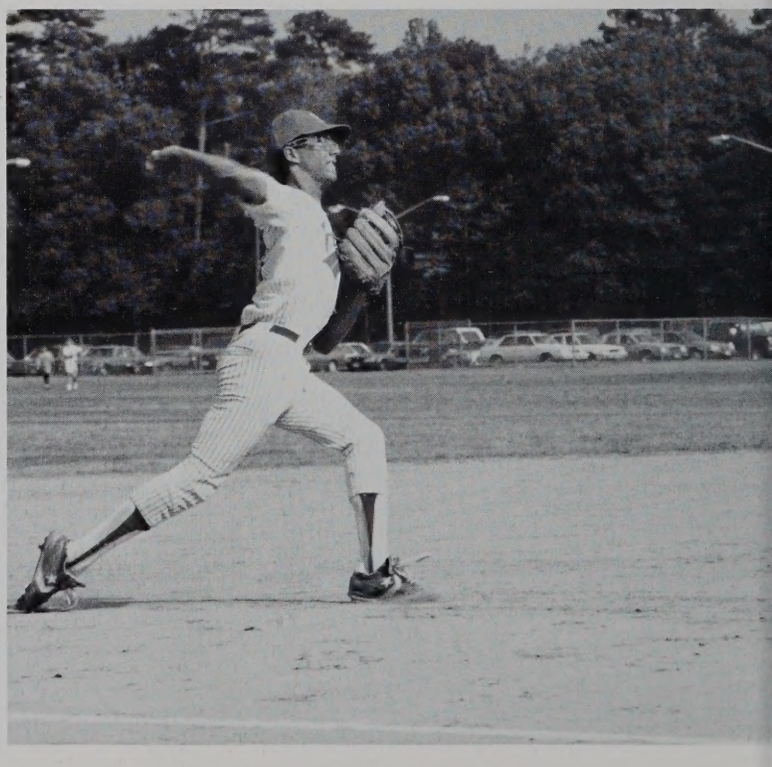
Baseball Strikes Back

The baseball season was characterized by a drive to do nothing but the best. The team demanded only excellence in all of its players. There were also many sophomores who were a definite asset to the outstanding seniors and other veterans.

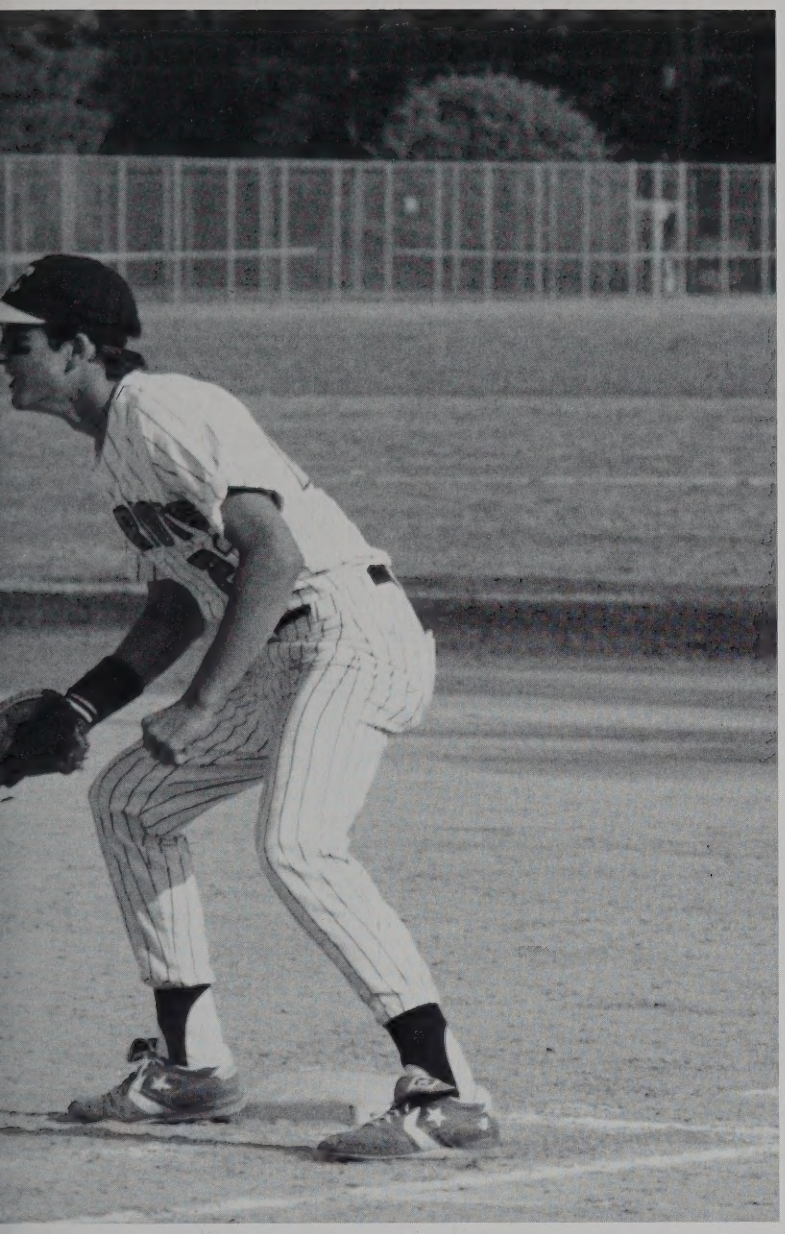
By midseason, the drive had peaked. Especially noteworthy was the Bayside game when the two teams were in contention for first place. "It was the best game I've ever played. When we got those three in the twelfth, the team was acting like we had just won the World Series!" raved Shawn Morlock. It was a very dramatic game and everyone's spirits were high. "The whole team pulled together in that game," Curtis Price added.

Seniors who won coach's awards were Chris Shea, Robby Porter, and Yukihito Ito. Teamwork was essential throughout the season and these seniors helped keep moral up and the team pulled together. "If we are a team and not one person, then we will do well," were the inspirational words of Billy Kachuba.

To avoid leaving his men stranded on base, Robbie Porter hits a perfect line drive, assuring a win over Kempsville.



Geoff Creighton easily throws out the runner at first making the third out of the second inning against Salem.



Realizing that his teammate didn't advance from second, Dave Dierstein, dashes back to first loading all the bases in the 9th inning of the First Colonial game.

In the defensive stance, Yukihito Ito is ready to get the runner out at first, retiring the sides scoreless at the end of the 6th inning.

Fall and Winter Sports
1991

Once again, the fall and winter sports teams dominated the district with their power and strength. Field hockey, football, cross country, tennis, wrestling, gymnastics, track, basketball, and golf all were tough competition and made us proud.

The field hockey team finished the season with a bang, winning the state championship for the third season in a row. The powerhouse for the team, seniors Leigh Goldberg, Kelly Hood, and Heather Hoehline led the team to an undefeated season. The football team made us proud by starting off the season with an eight game winning streak. Troy Ferris, Brian Winston, and Mike Dunn led the golf team to win the Beach District Championship, the Eastern Region Championship, and finally to place second in State. Cross Country and track pushed hard to succeed. Exceptional runners were Robert Sucher, Donnell Malone, Jon Caldwell, Karen Gurick, Amy Winston, and Robert Leone. As always, wrestling made us proud with the strength of Chad McPhatter, Chip Collier, and Eric Rivera. Finally, the Gymnastics team tumbled to victory with grace and agility. Outstanding gymnasts were Allison Wise, Liz Wolf, Trish Hendershot, Ann Ballard and Sam Arnette. Girls' and boys' basketball both dominated in the sport. The teams were led by Tasha Bangert, Danielle DeCandia, and newcomers Pete Green and Jeff Anderson.

Helping lead her team to an undefeat season, Tasha Bangert heads for the ba

Golfers' Greens are Gold

A hush fell over the crowd as the golfer concentrated on the shot ahead. He carefully aimed and putted the ball on the eighteenth for a par. The audience's clapping broke the silence.

This could be any one of our golfers. They dominated with a record of 12-0 overall as regular season champions. They won the Beach District Championship and then went on to win the Eastern Region Championship. They headed even farther up the ladder to place second on the State level.

"Although they played individually, it was a team effort. They encouraged each other to perform their best," commented Coach Stuart Holland. Averaging their five best rounds, Troy Ferris shot a 71.4, Brian Winston shot a 72.6, and Mike Dunen shot a 74.6. Rounding out the team were Ned Dickinson, Chris Florence, and J.T. McDonald.

Some players were given special recognition. Troy Ferris was Medalist for the regular season, placed first in the District and second in the Region. Ned Dickinson received the Coach's Award and Chris Florence was voted Most Improved.

Compiling his best personal average of 71.4, MVP Troy Ferris confidently putts to make par in the Salem match at Bow Creek.

Making a chip shot in the District Finals, the fourth ranked player, Ned Dickinson, prepares to run the ball up onto the green.

THREE TIMES A CHARM

Field Hockey Takes State Again

Most people at Cox are aware that the Lady Falcons field hockey team has accumulated some pretty impressive achievements, but there was doubt as to whether they could obtain a third straight State Championship. This doubt was not, however, among members of the team of Nancy Fowlkes. The only attitude allowed was one of determination and drive that allowed nothing but victory. This attitude led the ladies to a 19-0 season in which opponent teams were shut out in all but three games. Forty-nine goals were scored during the season; only three goals were made on the Falcons by the opponents. The goals were scored largely by seniors Leigh Goldberg and Kelly Hood, with assists by senior Heather Hoehlein and junior Kelly Burch. The team blew away their Beach District competition. Then, they made their victorious season complete and brought home the State Championship Trophy to display at Cox for the third year in a row. Coach Nancy Fowlkes stated, "I think it is hard for people to realize the tremendous accomplishment it is to have won three State titles, which is what these three seniors have done." These seniors: Tasha Bangert, Danielle Decandia, Teri Lewis, Toni Lewis, Heather Hoehlien, Beacon Player of the Year Leigh Goldberg, and Metropolitan Norfolk Sports Club player Kelly Hood led the team. They all worked as a team to achieve an elusive third State Championship title. When they state "We will rock you," their promise is as good as their gold trophy.

After scoring a goal, Tasha Bangert and Kelly Hood give a high-five and head to mid field with Heather Hale, Danielle Decandia, and Heather Hoelein.

Halfback junior Cristin Cummings deftly out maneuvers a Lake Braddlock player in the State Tournament.

Substituted in, right field inner Heather Hale lunges to steal the ball at the First Colonial away game.

Marking her First Colonial competitor, Tasha Bangert tries to get possession of the ball as Leigh Goldberg backs her up.

With a save on goal, junior right half back Kelly McDonald protects the shut-out against Kempsville.

VOLLEY TO WIN
Tennis Serves to District

The girls' tennis team slammed their opponents on the court. Accepting the challenges of other schools, the girls had a record of 8-4, leaving most of their rivals chasing tennis balls. Not only did they place second in the regular season, but they also won the Beach District Tournament.

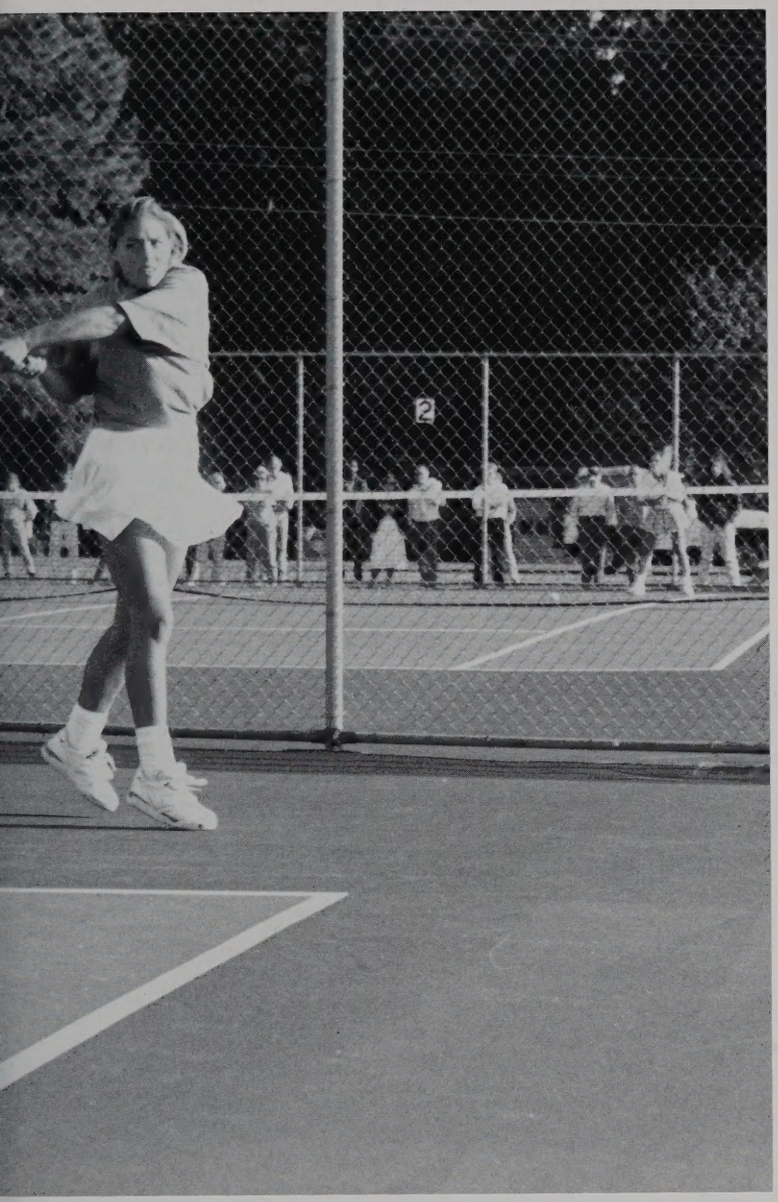
"It was a rebuilding year. We were a young team," commented Coach Glenn LaFerriere. "We had a good season. Our four different District Champions wanted to play against the best to get better. We have started a unity that will carry on next year as eleven of our twelve players will be back." Captain Beth Zonderak was a senior.

The girls' tennis team won awards as a group, but also some individuals received honors. Junior Neda Kalanter was fourth in the District. Playing doubles, Beth Zonderak and Angie White were first in the District, first in Region, and placed second in State in singles competition.

Betsy Barlets, proud of the team's performance, "I have never seen such a unity in a team as this year, even though we came in second in District. We did better than expected with such a new team. But be expecting to hear the quote next year. 'We came, we saw, we won.'"

Using her excellent forehand, Sharon Rassool makes the final point and wins the first set against Amy Flint at home.

Concentrating, Angie White demonstrates the form which took her to a final tournament in Michigan for the top 128.



Against First Colonial's Kaihleen Overman, number four Kathryn Psimas shows great determination in the tie breaker of the first set.

Serving her way to a bagel (6-0) in the first set, Neda Kalantar is on her way to a decisive victory over Laura Johnson.

USE YOUR IMAGINATION

Football Dreams Become Reality

As the ball sailed higher and higher into the air, so did everyone's hope for the football team. Once the ball descended, it was caught many times by Lamonte Still and carried to the end zone for a touchdown. Coach Jim Prince had stated at the beginning of the season that his team would strive and persevere, and throughout the year they did so, a Cox record of eight consecutive wins reaching as high as number four in the State rankings. Through hard work and determination, Coach Jim Prince and his team turned an almost non-recognizable name in Virginia Beach football into the predicted number one team in the District for the 1991 season. Though they did not reach the number one spot in the District, they did achieve many of the goals they had set for themselves. As Coach Jim Prince stated, "This football team allowed the school to imagine things in football that no one thought our school capable of achieving."

There was not just one star player on the football team; it was composed of many outstanding players. Seniors Kelcey Graves, Rodney Johnson, Lamonte Still, and junior Chris Moore were named first team All-District, and senior Rico Singleton and junior Jeremy Davis were named to the second team All-District. MVP Lamonte Still continued on to be named to the first team for All-Region, All-Tidewater, and All-State. As he leaves high school, he leaves his name on the Tidewater season and career rushing records of 2,036 yards for the 1991 season and 3,925 yards for his career. Other talented seniors were Happy O'Brien, the team's outstanding quarterback who continued even after a knee injury; Brian Dexter, the Falcon of the year; Rodney Johnson, who was named most valuable receiver; Rico Singleton and Taylor Vann, the linemen of the year; and Kelcey Graves, the linebacker of the year. It was this abundance of individual talent brought together on one team under the leadership of an extraordinary coach which has turned Cox's football program around and allowed what was once only imagined to come true, such as Lamonte Still's becoming the Virginian Pilot's 1991 Player of the Year.

Lamonte Still cuts to the left when he sees a tackler closing in while rushing through the line of scrimmage.

After receiving a screen pass from quarterback Happy O'Brien, Sam Wright spots his opponents and runs towards the side line.

With an open door from Pat Artis (20), Lamonte Still (37) carries the ball downfield for the score making a victory over Kellam.

Although being held by a Granby player, Damond Burnes (35) gives the second effort in order to get the first down.

DOUBLE THE SPIRIT

Two Squads Dance and Cheer

Unlike other schools in the city, Cox has not one, but two talented squads. Cox supports a hard working cheerleading squad, and it is also home to the coquettes, the only high school dance squad in the city.

The cheerleaders are composed of fourteen of Cox's most spirited Falcons. The girls on the squad cheer at football and field hockey games, golf tournaments, and track meets in the fall. In the winter they rally the girls' and boys' basketball teams, the wrestlers and indoor track team members. The girls, led by captain Kim Garrison in the fall and captains Kim Garrison and Sara Weiss in the winter, practice many hours to ensure perfect maneuvers and safe stunts which raise everyone's spirit and cheer the Falcons on to victory.

The coquettes also spend many hours practicing to perfect their routines which they perform at football games in the fall and home basketball games in the winter. The girls' year began in May with practice for competition at the summer dance camp they attended. At camp, the girls won the spirit stick, fifty-four blue ribbons for various routines, and the Leadership Award. Lee Smith and Tiffany Litz competed in the dance star competition, for which Lee was selected to perform with a dance squad in London, England. Though she did not get to attend, it was a great honor for her and the rest of the squad. Captain Kenya Newell said about the season, "The girls worked really hard this year, and I think we had a great squad."

Practicing at a National Cheering Camp are Kim Garrison, Jennifer Edwards, Teri Lewis, Darcy Stables, and Kristen Garrison.

FINISHING ON TOP
Runners Kick Up Their Heels

Both the boys' and the girls' cross country teams kicked up their heels at the right times. They were given challenges everyday and successfully met most of them.

The boys' cross country team was very dedicated. They jogged seven to eight miles everyday, rain or shine. They also forced themselves to Mt. Trashmore for their meets to run 3.1 miles as fast as they could. "The team had a lot of heart and peaked at the right times." stated Coach Tim Webb. They proved him right by being third in Districts and fifth in Regionals. While Robert Sucher and Robert Leone led their team to State, Robert Sucher said he enjoyed running cross country because of the scenery. Geoff Howard explained, "After a meet I feel exhausted, yet invigorated knowing I have defeated the other team." The MVP was Robert Leone, Most Improved was David Dierstein, and the Runner of the Year was Robert Sucher.

The girls' cross country team fell short of its goal of the championship. "It was a good season, once they got over their midseason slump," reported Coach Glen Barr. They also worked beside the boys, pushing themselves to run miles and miles everyday. The MVP was Karen Gurick, who also set a meet record. Karen Gurick and Amy Winston achieved All-Region honors; they also got All-District, along with Lori Phillips and Kris Burns.

At the two-mile point and realizing the race is nearing completion, Eric Hazelwood breathes a sigh of relief.

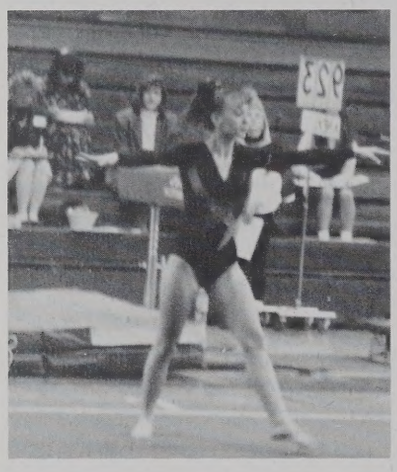
Gymnastics Takes Control

The gymnastics team shone this season, taking the spotlight from opponents as they competed on the bars, beam, vaults, and floor. The ladies placed second in the Beach District, losing only to State champions Salem High School, and accomplishing a victory over Kempsville High School in Districts which has been rare in past seasons.



There were many strong competitors, both new and veteran, on the team. The two stars that shone the most were MVP's sophomore Naomi Shedlock and junior Allison Wise. Wise continued to the State meet for the second consecutive season and bettered her 1991 tenth place finish by making sixth this year. These two girls led the team in scoring, but the other talented gymnasts contributed to help the team to a third place finish in the region. Coach Melody Hartranft, the driving force behind the team, was very pleased by the work and effort that gave the ladies such a great year and put them in the spotlight.

Liz Wolf shows off her balance and flexibility by putting on a terrific floor routine.

Track Goes for Gold

The girls' and boys' indoor track teams got off to a running start this season with a number of returning team members and some talented new editions, continuing their impressive track record.

The boys' team ran away with the gold, sending ten boys to the State meet. Coach Tim Webb was so impressed with the many school records these boys set that he returned to name them the "best indoor team that Cox ever had." There were many stars on the team, such as Co-Captain Donnell Malone who competed in four state events. Robert "everything man" Leone, who won the silver medal in the two mile District race, Jamie Sumnick, who was the District champ and Regional bronze medalist in his first year of pole vaulting, and the 800 relay team of Chuck Vion, Co-Captain Pat Artis, San Wright, and Damon Burns, this team was a dominating force at the Beach.

Not to be outdone by the boys' team, the girls' team, competing with sixteen new members, sent four girls to the State meet, and had an undefeated Regional champion, MVP Amy Winston. Winston was undefeated in the 1600 and 3200 meter run during the season, and continued to become the only girls' Regional champion from the Beach. Also shining were Karen Gurick, a Co-Captain who received the Norfolk Sports Club Award for outstanding female cross-country runner, and Jenny Petykowski, the Field MVP.

These two teams ran the path to victory and came home with the gold!

Showing the form which took him to the State meet, Pat Artis stretches for points in the long jump.

PERSEVERANCE

Pinning Pays

The famed Cox wrestling team, crippled by the loss of many talented seniors, strived to live up to its outstanding reputation as a domineering team in the Beach District, the Region, and the State. This proved to be an awesome responsibility for such a young team, but they did not fail to uphold Cox's reputation. Though Cox suffered a greater number of losses than in previous seasons, these were extremely close matches in which the opposition in every case but one were teams ranked in the top twenty of the United States. Cox still gave an excellent showing, placing second in the Districts, fourth in the Region, and fifth in the State team competitions.

There were a number of outstanding men on the team who represented Cox in the individual championships. Seniors Bobby Sereno, Chip Collier, and Chad McPhatter took the district championships, and McPhatter and Collier continued to win the State championships and a place on the "wall of fame." Talented junior Chad Kent placed an impressive sixth at the State meet.

The boys persevered this year, proving that a rebuilding year did not have to be a disappointing year. Though they were not given a team trophy this season, they were still number one with the faithful Cox Falcons!

In his low stance, Chad McPhatter prepares to shoot a low single against Smith of Princess Anne.

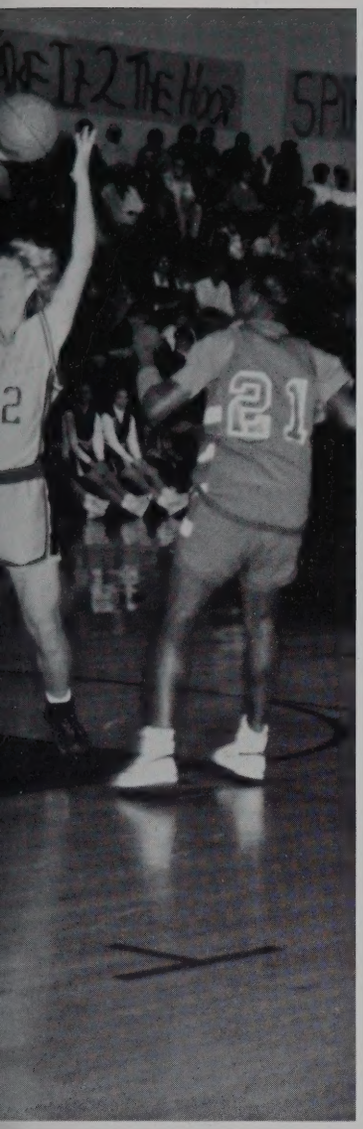
HEATING UP THE COURT

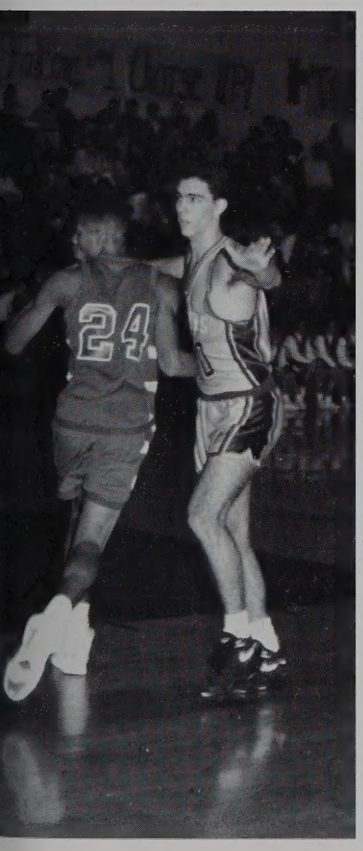
Boys Shatter Records



During the basketball season, which could undoubtedly be called one of the best in a number of years, the boys' basketball team rocketed to the top of the district standings, ranking first in the district during the regular season and drawing a growing number of fans. "This team," said coach Mike Head, "could certainly be considered the best team in school history." This was quite a strong statement to make about the team, but the boys proved their talent by breaking a twenty-two year old school record for victories, ending the season at 18-5. They also finished second in the district playoffs, and advanced to regionals at Booker T. Washington High School for the first time in twelve years.

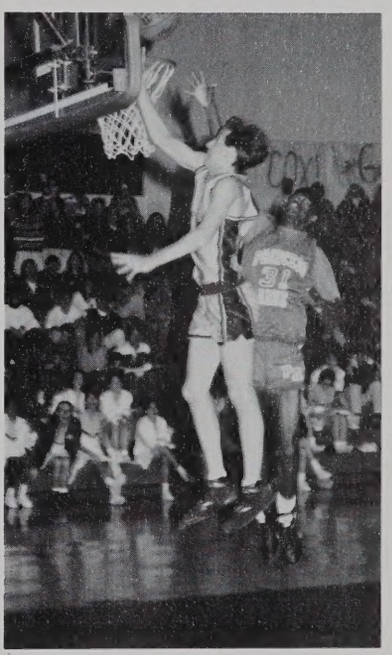
Though there was abundant talent and promising potential, the stars of this season were seniors Jeff Anderson, Mike Raney, Lamonte Still, and Mike Stivers. Anderson was chosen for the first team All-District, and teammates Still and Raney were named to the second team.

The boys' basketball team scored big this season and left a mark on their opponents, heating up the court and blazing a trail to the top.



Pete Green, with his typical defensive pressure, sets the full court press.

As Joe Hart looks on, Lee Ratcliff crashes the board for the rebound.



Getting great height, Mike Raney shows it's not so hard to lay it up with a man on your back.

ON REBOUND
Girls' Win

The Lady Falcons Basketball team brought excitement to the court, playing several close games that had Falcon Fans sitting on the edge of their seats. The ladies' desire and talent always gave them the victory in the end. Under the coaching of Stuart Holland, the ladies rose to the top. Had it not been for injuries that plagued excellent players such as Heather Hale, the team would have risen even further. Still, the ladies remained contenders for the district championship, and placed in the top four. This was quite an accomplishment for such a young team, but the newer teammates played as though they were veterans. First year player sophomore Sarah Krop was the second highest scorer on the team, and she was bettered only by junior MVP Donna Yeaw.

The ladies' team played like pros, persevering through an injury-plagued, rebuilding season, and strengthening their reputation as a new threat in girls' basketball at the Beach.

Landing from a perfect lay-up, Donna Yeaw scores the final points for the win over Wilson.

Fighting her opponent for the rebound, Tanya Dudo receives the ball and makes another attempt for the basket.

Keeping her eye on the ball, Kelly Burton races away from her opponent in an attempt to become "open."

Keeping her focus on the ball, Sarah Krop attempts to gain control over her First Colonial opposition.

WARMING UP FOR SPRING

Athletes Feel the Heat

The Spring sports season began as the yearbook went to press. Therefore, participants offered these remarks about their prospects:

"For the baseball team to have a successful season, our team needs to come together behind our seniors to defeat our toughest teams such as First Colonial and Salem. This is the year Cox will soar above the rest." Curtis Price

"I expect this year's tennis team to be awesome! We are such a solid team, top to bottom." Nick Psimas

"This season promises to be very exciting. We have strong players in all positions and are looking forward to some exciting soccer games." Chrissie Burns

"The boys' soccer team, defending Beach District Champions, will be led by senior co-captains Jonathan Morris and Chris Barnard, both returning All-Beach players. They will be supported by All-Beach seniors Geoff Turner and Greg Wise and returning starters Bob Sereno and Josh Quinter. The team won its opener and has high hopes of securing its fifth straight Beach District title." Jim Snodgrass

WORTH IT

"Is it really worth it?" students often ask themselves after staying up late for a test or coming home from Governor's Magnet School. Many Cox students do put forth that extra effort in their studies, and it usually pays off. Some students even go as far as to take up to five AP classes in order to get that extra advantage on college applications. Those special students who were selected to attend summer academic programs such as Girls' and Boys' State or Governor's School returned with minds bursting with new knowledge and memories. The Foreign Exchange students learned about an entirely different culture and made new friends as well. All in all, those students that strived to achieve the best discovered that it really was "Worth It."

"We used to socialize with teachers during school," says Erik-Jan Kwinten from the Netherlands.

A Home Abroad
Visiting exchange students

What is the benefit of being an exchange student? The Foreign Exchange program gave students an opportunity to experience different cultures. This year, there were six exchange students from various nations around the world who came to the United States. Those students said that school here was more strict. They felt that it was weird to have passes to go to the restroom. However, they stated that classes were easier even with more homework.

The exchange students all liked the fact that students here show school spirit and participate in sports. "We didn't have cheerleaders in my school; we just had soccer games sometimes, but students didn't even come like you all are coming to the football games," said Jan Morlok. Exchange students were excited during Spirit Week and Homecoming which they labeled "totally American" and "fun." Erik-Jan Kwinten pointed out a comparison between his country and the United States. "Drugs were a major problem in the Netherlands. People in Germany come to the Netherlands to get them. But they don't kill each other because of drugs like here." Representing the views of the students, Jan Morlok said, "we wanted to see a different culture, make a lot of friends, and broaden our experiences." Truly, the exchange students gained a broader perspective through their visit to the United States.

Class Outside of Class

Where homework is fun

Permission slips, teachers' signatures, and parental approval. What do these have in common? These are the three main parts in preparing for a field trip. Field trips provided a necessary break from daily classroom rituals. Many of these trips were educational, but for the most part they made fun learning in a exciting way.

The foreign language classes often took trips to see plays and films to expand their knowledge of the culture that they were learning in class. In the fall, the Spanish classes attended a folk dance at Warwick High School. Freshman Stacey Smith said, "It was very exciting and the colors and ritual dances were fantastic."

In October, some of the oceanography classes visited the Virginia Marine Science Museum and Seashore State Park. At the museum, many of the students found the water display and the Chesapeake Bay creatures very fascinating; senior Kelli Holloway was amazed that there were "so much interesting stuff under one roof."

The government classes attended an annual Court Docent Program to learn about the judicial system. Senior Karin Hazelwood commented, "The case we sat in on was interesting because all the witnesses kept contradicting each other." Junior Statesmen organized a field trip to visit Washington D.C. in November. Robyn Kim, president of the organization, said, "The Washington D.C. trip was fun as well as educational since the majority of the people had not toured the various monuments since elementary school."

Overall, students thought that field trips were welcomed excursions that provided "class outside of class."

Getting A Head Start

Advanced placement classes

Who worked the most diligently in academics during the year? The answer is A.P. class students. This group of students all had a desire to challenge themselves by completing college-level courses. Believe it or not, they enjoyed every bit of A.P. courses. The teachers were great, classes were small and students got a chance to "smell the college atmosphere." Even though they had many advantages, they worked extraordinarily hard to earn them. According to surveys, students studied approximately one hour a night for each A.P. course. This schedule was flexible depending on tests. People complained that the pace was so fast and the reading load was too heavy. They preferred to go to school sick rather than be absent. However, all the efforts were paid off when they received college credits after passing exams in May.

Taking A.P. courses was a good way to experience college life. And most important of all, these students knew they were ahead of the game.

Maggie Cho taps Cherene Sellers into the National Honor Society by surprising her first bell. When that fateful knock at the door occurs, those who aspire to NHS hope to be given a carnation.

Expanding Their Horizons

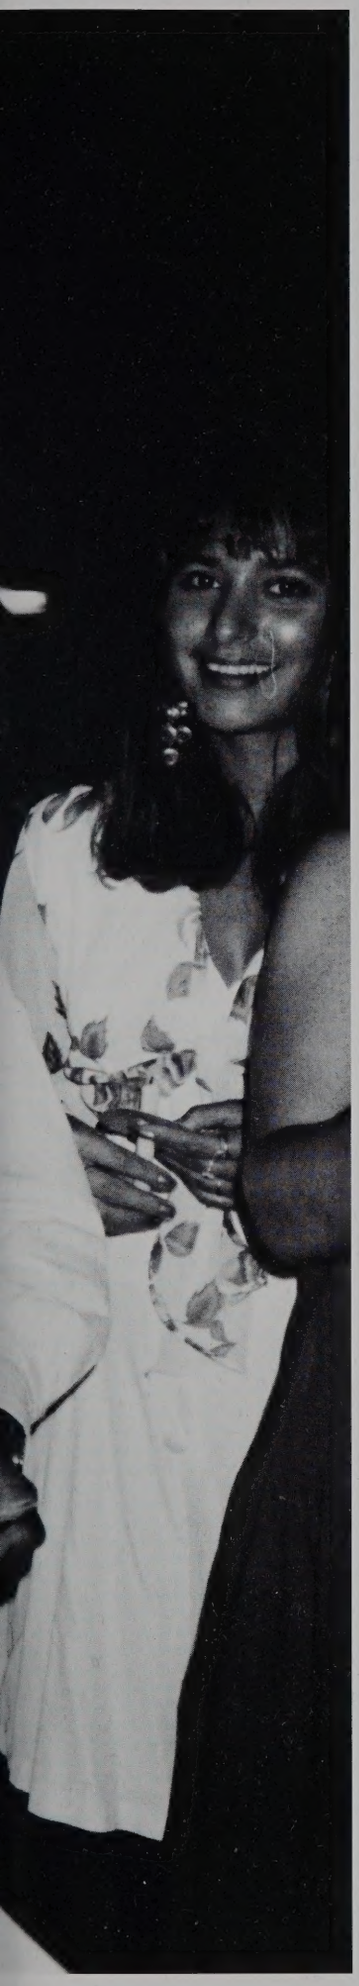
Striving to be the best

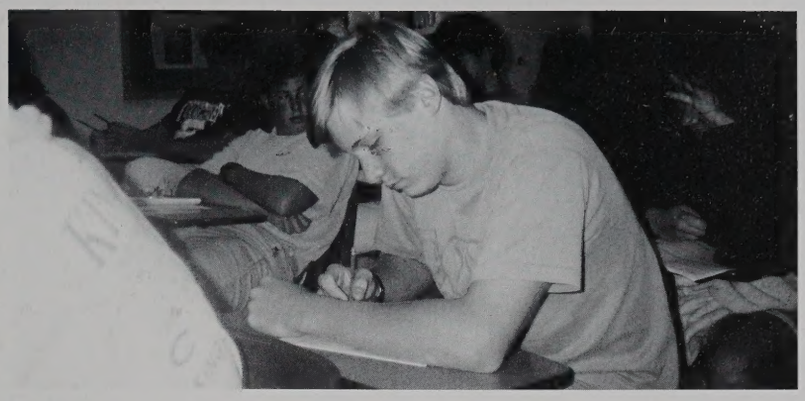
Of the many clubs, it is most prestigious to be a member of the National Honor Society. To even qualify for this high distinction, members are evaluated based on four criteria: leadership, scholarship, service, and character. Candidates who have demonstrated these qualities must also maintain a high grade point average in academically challenging courses. Members were inducted in formal ceremonies held twice a year.

Other honor societies included the foreign language honor societies. In the spring, the French, Latin, German, and Spanish Honor Societies held a very elaborate ceremony to induct members. The candidates must have maintained high grades as well as excel in their language.

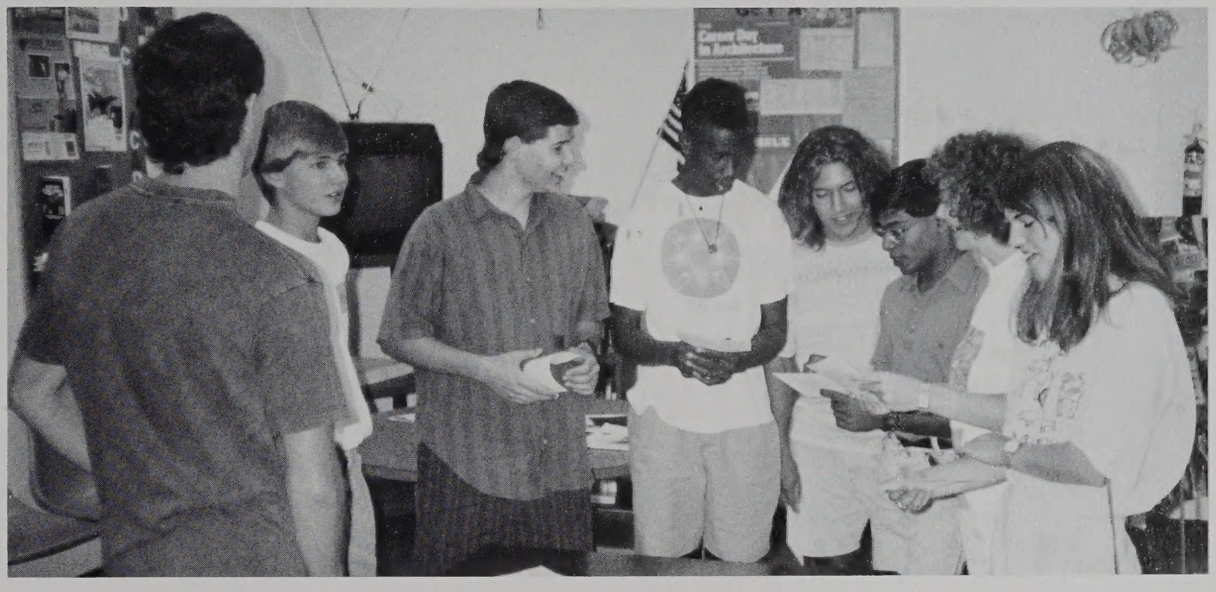
During the summer while many students spend their time relaxing, others chose to attend schools to increase their knowledge of the arts and leadership. The latter included Boys' and Girls' State which were held at Lynchberg College and Longwood College. Senior Maggie Cho valued the program, "I thank Girls' State for an incredible experience and for terrific friends."

The Governor's Schools included the humanities, languages, and technology; participants were nominated by the high school and they boarded for a month at various universities within the state. About the humanities school held at University of Richmond, senior Margo Villers commented, "I learned so many things. Not just during my classes, but by talking with friends and being with other people." Junior Idine Ghoreishian who attended the Governor's School for German remarked, "The Academy was the most exhilarating experience of my life. The last day, I did not want to leave, but they made me."





Junior Sean Morlork concentrates as he begins his PSAT, given each October to juniors.



Because of their high scores, Ben Bowers, Bryan McDonald, Shawn Dodd, Adam Darby, Ryan Carr, Vargis Mathews, Margo Villers, and Sam Arnette are recognized by the National Merit Program.

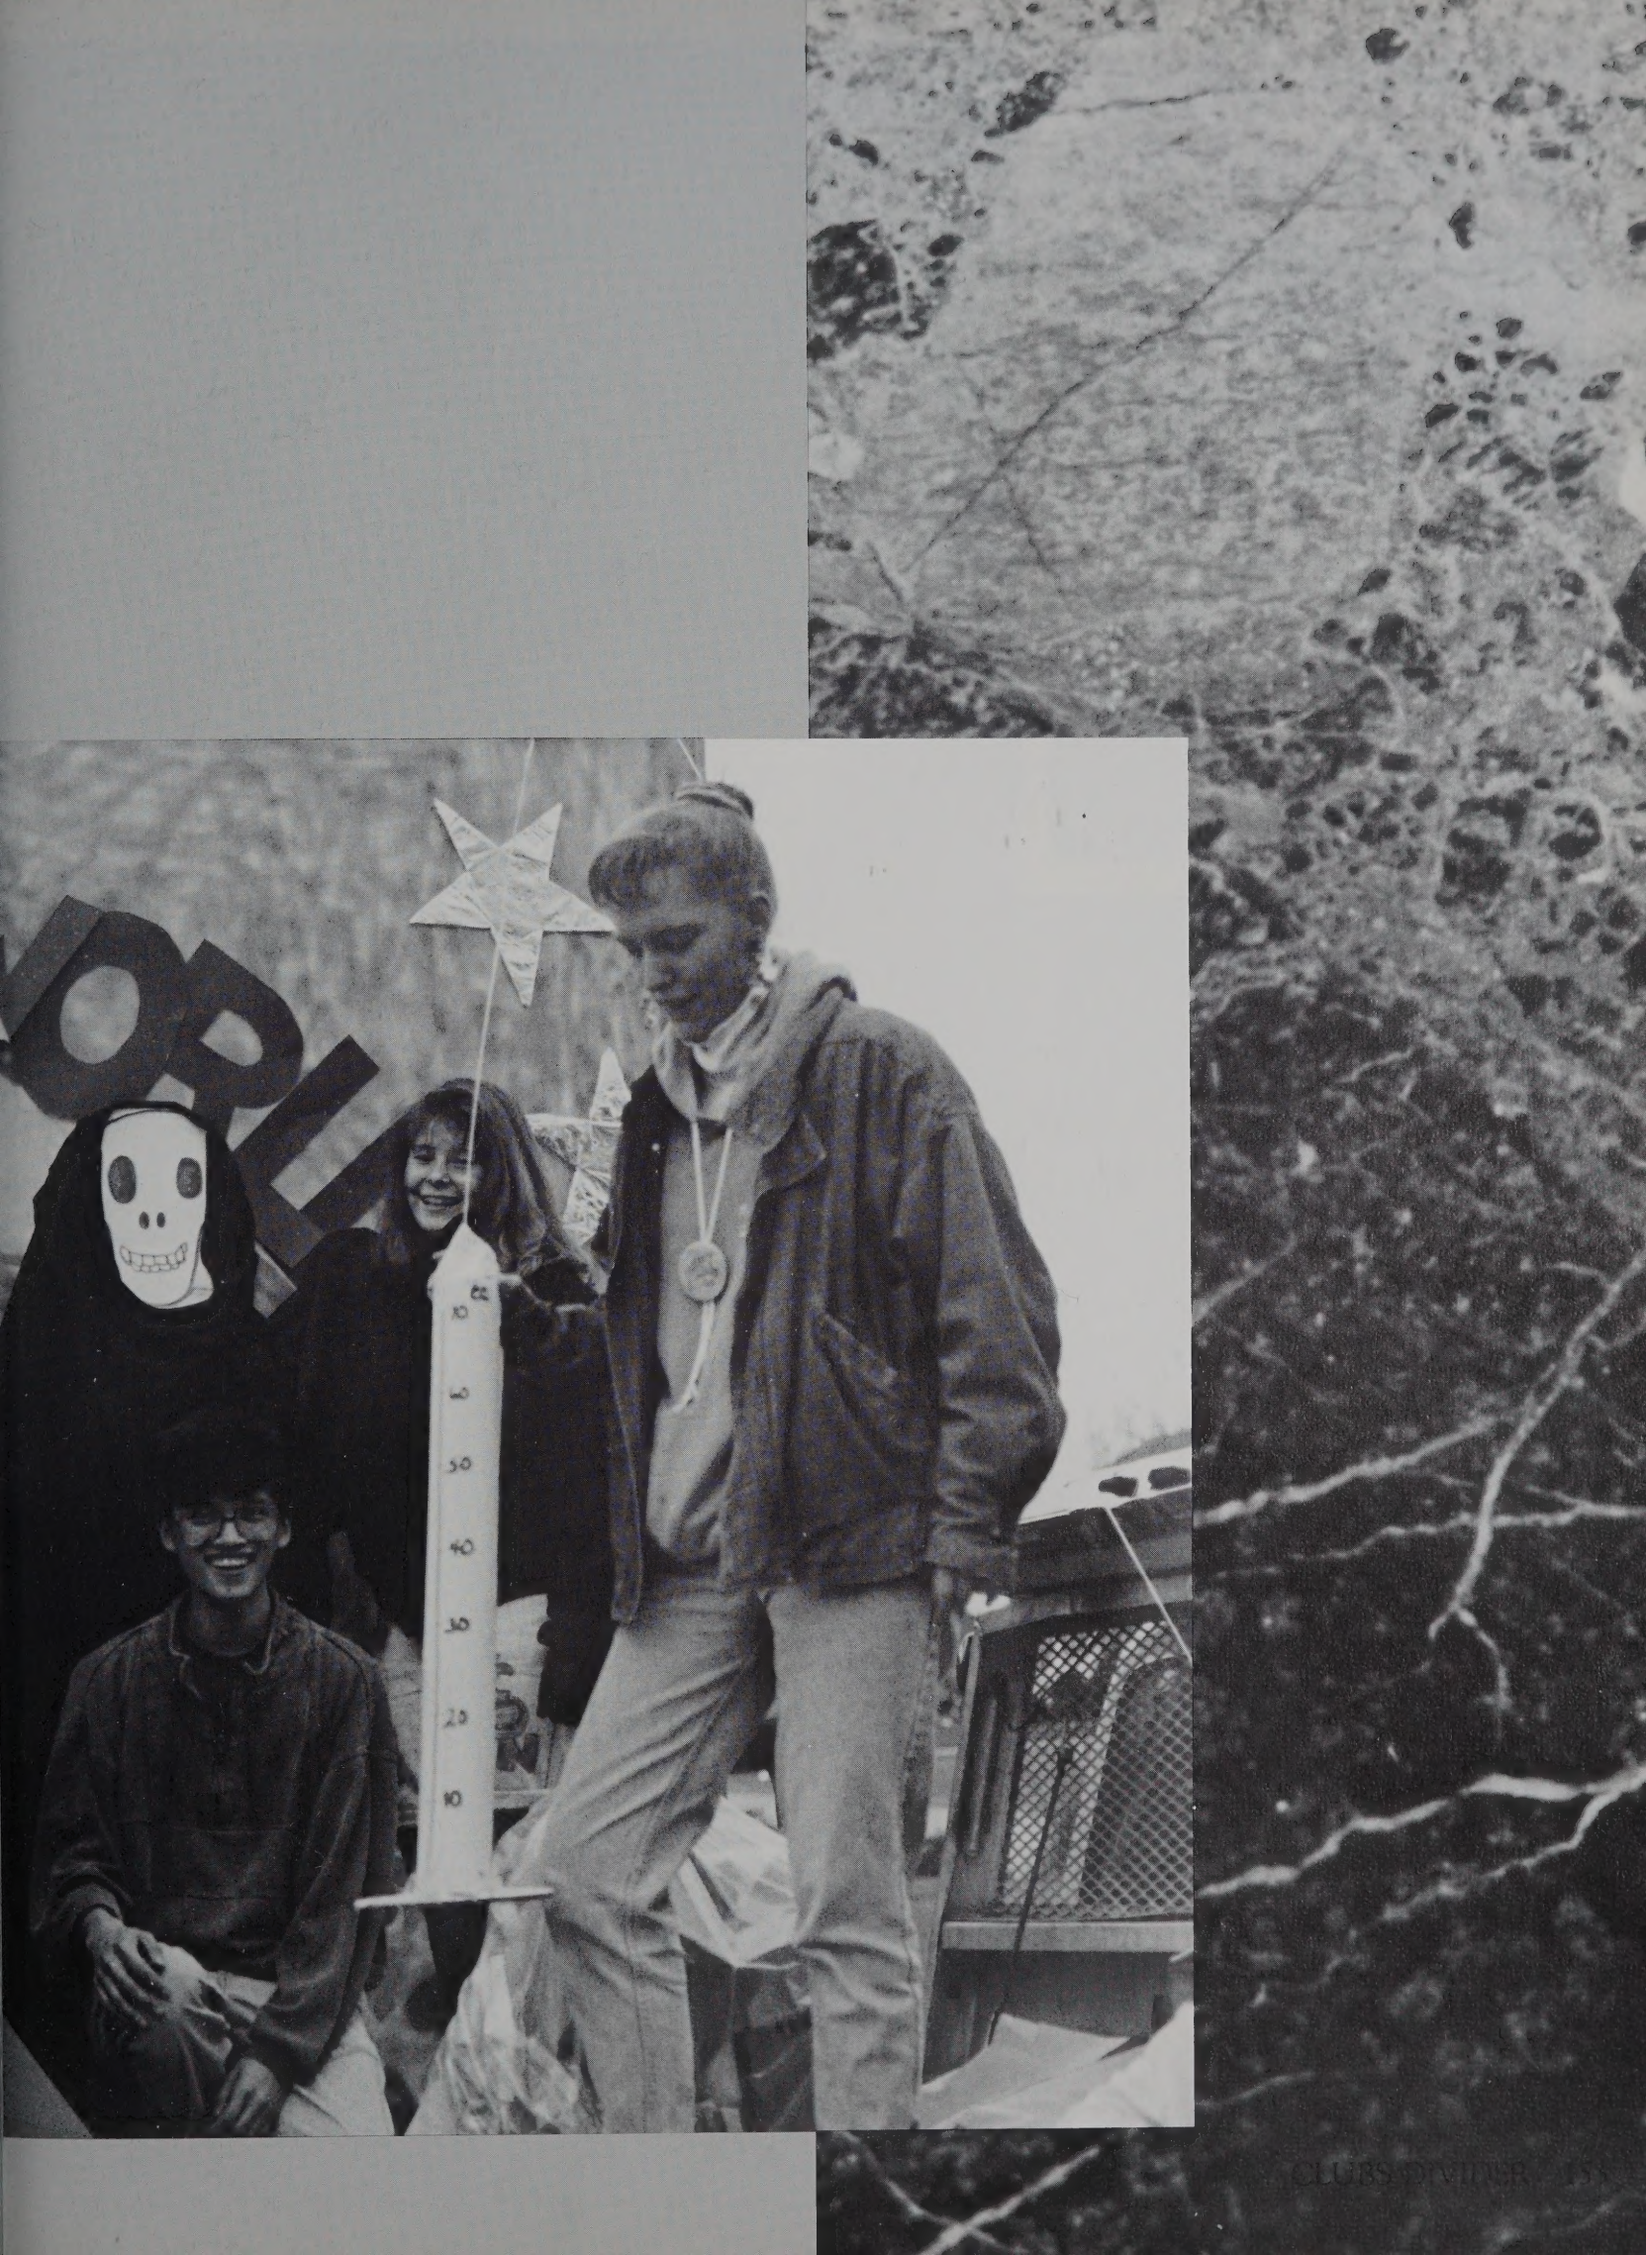
After the spring inductions of the Foreign Language Honor Societies, Mrs. Lorraine Bennett, Mrs. Margaret Beckner, and Mr. Larry Becker enjoy the reception.

Struggling to finish a layout on time, Mrs. Ginn James and Winnie Hu work on a yearbook dea line. The yearbook staff often stayed at school un four o'clock or later to meet deadlines.

All five foreign languages pulled together to parti ipate in the Homecoming parade with a float pc traying potential dangers to the world. Represen ing the clubs are Kim Gianfagna, Tuan V Jeanette Danaher, and Carin Davis.

GOLDEN OPPORTUNITIES

Clubs and organizations provided "golden opportunities" for students. Cox offered about fifty organizations, so each student was sure to find a club that catered to his or her special interest. Some clubs, such as Debate, Forensics, Thespians, Band, and Color Guard, practiced hard for performances and competitions. Every foreign language offered a club in order to further students' knowledge of different cultures. Other clubs that allowed students to extend class interests beyond the classroom included DECA, FBLA, FHA, TSA, and the Geography Club. Students interested in helping others could participate in service clubs like Key Club and Octagon Club. Finally there were many other special interest clubs to please just about any interest. These included Happy Club, Fine Arts Club, SADD, Young Democrats, and Cox Medical Association. All in all, students could find "golden opportunities" wherever they looked.



Imagine All the People
SCA, ICC, and Executive Council

The student governing bodies provided structure for the school. Elected the previous spring, officers worked through the summer to develop a theme and outline the major goals.

The SCA provided the students with many activities for fun and education but mostly fun! Ms. Nancy Fowlkes served as sponsor, assisted by President Julie Inman, Vice President Sarah Anne Rufe, Second Vice President George Talton, Secretary Heather Criswell, Treasurer Sisi Meade, and Reporter Robert Sucher. While improving community relations, increasing school spirit, aiding student faculty relations, and stressing school pride, the SCA was responsible for significant events. Among those were Homecoming activities, the Mr. Cox Pageant, the United Way Fund Drive, spirit week, and the Homecoming Dance.

The ICC sponsored by Ms. Nancy Fowlkes, and Mr. David Rhodes met every two weeks. Chairman Sarah Anne Rufe and Secretary Carrie Rhoads gave students a chance to voice an opinion on club activities. It published a student activities calendar and insured that all clubs met standards.

Nancy Fowlkes, the sponsor of Executive Council, and the SCA officers worked with as many as fifteen different committee chairmen and the class President and Vice Presidents to plan the upcoming SCA meetings. Other than the regular meetings the group also held social events and planned for SCA workshops.

The student government organized traditional activities for the student body and provided structure for the school year.

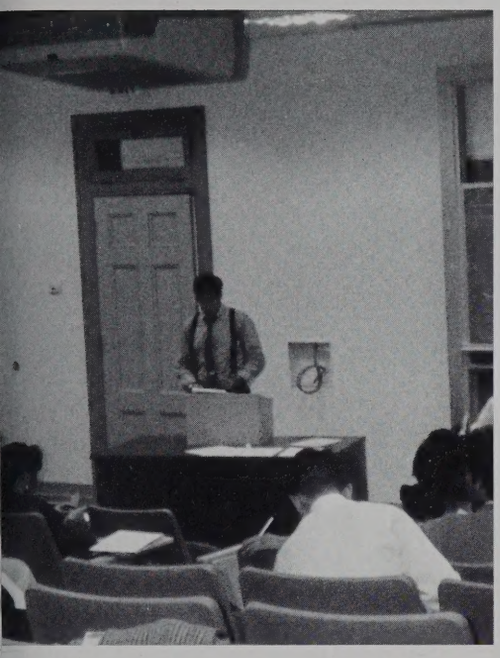
Political Profiles

Junior Statesman, Young Democrats, Model UN, and TARS



Dan Drummond offers a resolution at the William and Mary Model UN conference. Held in October, the Colonial Capital was particularly humming with students since about 1,000 also attended Open House. All students enjoyed the traditional deli sandwiches and campus tour.

Junior Statesman, Young Democrats, Model UN, and TARS offered students a look at politics and government through guest speakers, field trips, and other fun activities.

Sponsored by Mr. Gary Leagan, Mr. Sylvester Smith, and Ms. Karen Jenkins, Junior Statesman worked toward getting more students involved in the political process on a non-partisan basis. The officers, President Robin Kim, Vice President Cori Martin, Secretary Kelli Holloway, and Treasurer Carin Davis, were very motivated and organized. They had many guest speakers throughout the year and held two trips to Washington D.C. The second of these was for an annual convention for similar clubs around the area.

The Young Democrats Club was sponsored by Mr. Joel Trammell and led by President Robert Mahini, Vice President Andrew Kellam, Secretary Jennifer Pleacher, and Treasurer Charles Odell. The club gave members an opportunity to get a first-hand look at Democratic principles and government. Among the many activities were guest speakers, letters to elected officials, and a computer program which told the student if he was a Democrat or Republicant.

Model UN was sponsored by Ginny James. The officers, President Ranjeev Guliani, Vice President Dina Frech, Secretary Ann Ballard, and Treasurer Robert Barnuevo, worked to teach research skills, organization, and appreciation for the work of the UN committees. For the first time the club attended the Ivy League Model UN conference in Philadelphia. Other conference sites included the College of William and Mary and Virginia Wesleyan College.

TARS helped students become more aware of the political process, allowed them to meet and work with political figures, and to see the seats of National and State governments through field trips. Sponsor Ginny James and the officers, President Christopher McCallum, Vice Presidnet John James, Secretary Scott Fletcher, and Treasurer Ned Dickinson provided opportunities for members to perform campaign work, attend field trips to Washington D.C. and to the General Assembly. The club had many guest speakers, as well as sponsoring the Republicans at Homecoming.

These government-based clubs gave members a fun way of learning about government. They helped students gain knowledge of the competitive political spirit.

Brain Trust
Forensics, Debate, and Odyssey of the Mind

Forensics, Debate and Odyssey of the Mind provided members the opportunities to use their talents in a creative way.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Dorian Newell and Mrs. Marylin Wiley, the Forensics team became a member of the Tidewater Forensics League and went to several tournaments in the area. Members did well at the November seventh Western Branch Tournament and one in Hampton on December fifth. All these were in preparation for the District Tournament in February. The categories for Forensics included Extemporaneous Speaking, Original Oratory, Story Telling, Poetry, Prose, Humorous Interpretation and Dramatic Interpretation.

The Debate Team was sponsored by Mr. Tom Fisher and led by Captain Jason Gordon. The team did well at six local tournaments and travelled to tournaments, including those in Washington D.C., James Madison, and Monacan High School in Richmond.

Odyssey of the Mind was sponsored by Mr. Rixey Wilcher. The club promoted divergent thinking and challenging problem-solving outside of the classroom. The team took part in competitions around the area and did well in many of them.

These clubs allowed their members to use their creativity and imagination in speaking, arguing, and problem-solving.

Working Today For a Successful Tomorrow

DECA, FBLA, TSA, FHA, and Computer Club

DECA, FBLA, TSA, FHA, and Computer Club gave students a foundation for many future occupations.

The Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA), sponsored by Mr. T. Jenkins, Mrs. Sara Winters-Horn, Mrs. J. Nopper, and Mrs. S. Molloy, made students more aware of opportunities in the future. President Jennifer Sexton, Vice President Chuck Lichtenhan, Second Vice President Bill Shellito, Secretary Becky Oremosmith, and Treasurer Heather Brandis, provided many activities for the members. Among these were the annual 25 foot banana split, class tug-of-war at the Homecoming Pep Rally, Thanksgiving Fund Drive for Adopt-a-Family, and the annual Fashion Show.

The Future Business Leaders of America were sponsored by Ms. Peggy Washington and Mrs. Jane Tugman. The officers which included President Nikki Bardell, Vice President Alison Baer, Secretary Christine Wood, Treasurer Emily Wu, Reporter Sheila Wilson, and Historian David Greiber, helped the club to receive state recognition as a "Gold Seal Chapter." Members took part in a wide variety of activities such as visiting Lynn Shores Manor Convalescent Home, playing AT&T Stock Market Challenge, and making financial contributions to Disabled Veterans of America and Virginia Beach's Operation Sunburst.

TSA, sponsored by Mr. Willis Alexander and Mr. Ken Jansko, allowed students to learn about technology and its effect on society. President Chuck Vion, Vice President David Gordon, Secretary Gavin Fox, and Treasurer Erik Hazelwood arranged several lectures, conventions, and field trips for members.

Future Homemakers of America was sponsored by Mrs. Kim Hux and Mrs. Harriet McCallister. The officers provided members with the chance to learn about creating a good home life.

Computer Club was sponsored by Ms. Bridget Hampson. The officers included President Anil Palat and Vice President Chris West. The club taught students about computers as well as giving hands-on experiences.

DECA, FBLA, TSA, FHA, and Computer Club prepared students for their future occupations and lives.

Saving The Planet

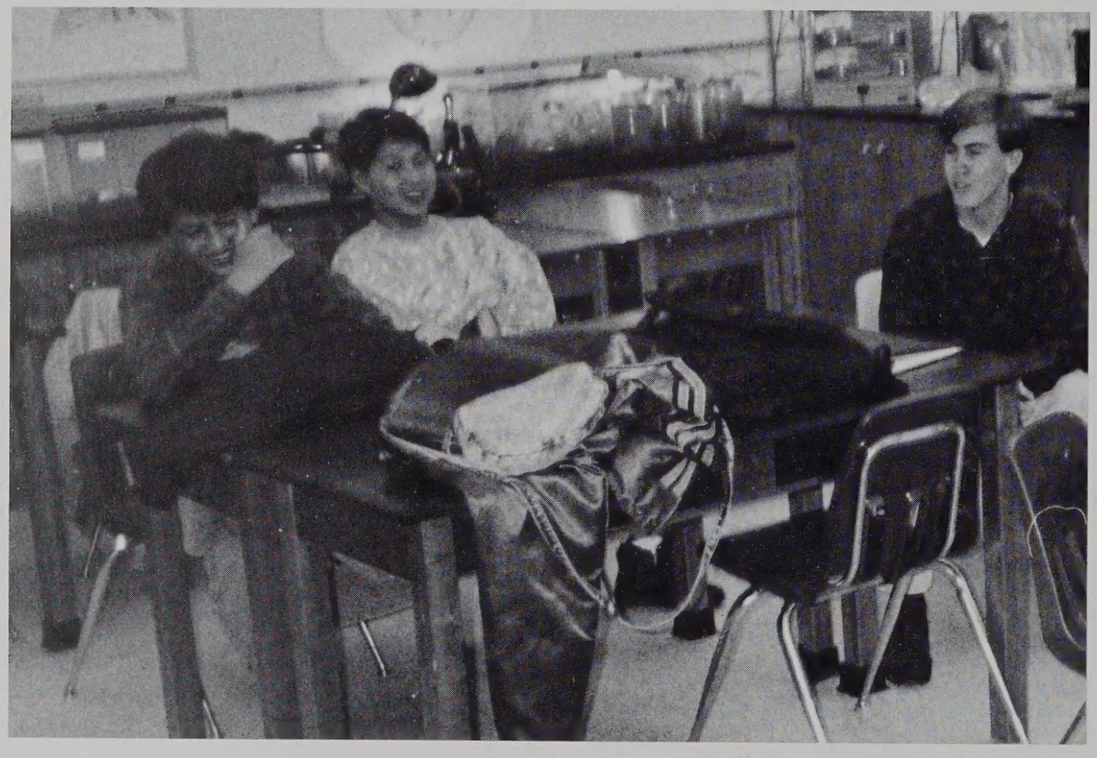
Science and Ecology, Oceanography, and Geography Clubs

Science and Ecology Club, Oceanography Club, and Geography Club provided informative meetings for students interested in nature and our environment.

Sponsored by Mrs. Lynn Carson, Science and Ecology Club organized old and new activities. Among these were field trips to NASA, Seashore State Park, and Virginia Marine Science Museum. The Officers, President Libby Rasnick, Vice President Grant Fischer, Treasurer Theresa Oubre, and Secretary Catherine Hart provided successful projects such as the recycling service and Science Week.

The Oceanography Club was sponsored by Mrs. Debora Mosher. President Karl Majors, Vice President Joe D'Acquisto, Treasurer Grant Fischer, and Secretary Bridgett Curry helped make the club successful. A few of their successes included third place in the sandcastle division at Neptune Festival. Guest Speakers were a common sight at meetings and several members took part in an introductory course of scuba diving at Lynnhaven Dive Shop.

The Geography Club, sponsored by Mr. Gary Miller, presented an assembly featuring a local astronaut, CDR. K.S. Reightler, who showed slides from his Discovery mission in September.



Science and Ecology members, Grant Fischer and friends, listen to sponsor Mrs. Lynn Carson as she lectures about the responsibilities of "World citizens."

Good For You and Fun Too

CMA, RUNNING CLUB, AND VOLLEYBALL CLUB

By actively participating in the clubs, students learned about health and fitness. This opportunity to learn by doing gave students a chance to experience in high school what might be a future occupation or a leisure activity.

C.M.A.(Cox Medical Association) allowed anyone interested in a medical career to do special programs through the school. President Melissa Fuller, Vice-President, Katy Nethery, Secretary, Dana Robinson, Treasurer, Neda Kalanter, and Reporter, Catherine Steele, with much assistance from their sponsor, Mrs. Elizabeth McBride, were able to achieve the record high in membership, and active participation in the wide variety of activities. Such activities included, two blood drives, field trips to local hospitals, and the Save-A-Sweetheart campaign.

The Running club was sponsored by Tim Webb. The club provided an interesting social outlet for runners. The club provided support for Special Olympics and junior high school track meets.

The Volleyball Club allowed students to practice volleyball and have fun. The club, sponsored by Ms. Terri Sawyer and led by President Jeff Sabado, played on the beach or in the gym all year long.

CMA, Running Club, and Volleyball Club provided fitness and fun to all who were interested.

President Melissa Fuller holds a club discussion on future medical opportunities at a CMA meeting.

At a CMA meeting, Mrs. Elizabeth McBride introduces a speaker from the American Cancer Society.

Working to Make a Difference
BCC, SAVE, CHROME, and Happy Club

The Black Culture Club (BCC), Students Against Violating the Earth (SAVE), CHROME, and Happy Club led students to make a positive change.

Sponsored by Mrs. Vera Wyche, the BCC was formed to see Black Culture first hand. In March the students held a "Showtime at the Apollo" talent show for which the winner was determined by the applause of the audience.

SACA changed it name to SAVE in order to incorporate a broader base in the club. Sponsored by Mr. Jim Mallarney-yano and led by President Kelly Conedera, Vice President Carin Davis, Secretary Jennifer Quinn, and Treasurer Amanda Fordyce, the club informed the public about environmental problems and cruelty to animals.

Sponsored by Mr. Lee Hurley, CHROME allowed students to better understand their futures in engineering related fields. The club held many lectures and attended conventions dealing with engineering.

Sponsored by Mrs. Debbie Mosher, The Happy Club worked in coordination with Operation Smile. President Neda Kalantar, Vice President Debbie Parksey, Secretary Katy Netherly, and Treasurer Allison Watson served the community and our neighboring countries.

BCC, SAVE, CHROME, and Happy Club helped students make a difference in the school, community and world.

Katy Netherly, Neda Kalantar, and Idine Ghoreshian plan the Christmas Happy Club schedule.

Attending a SAVE meeting, members, Jamie Robertson and Tom Malabad express their support for an international moratorium on whaling.

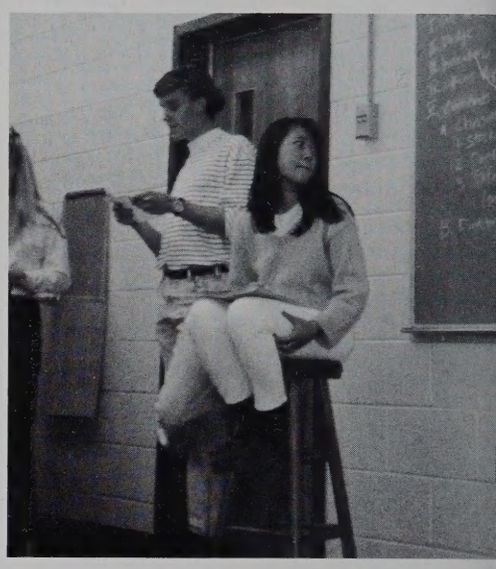
Serving School and Community
KEY CLUB, OCTAGON CLUB, AND SADD

Sponsored by Mrs. Pamela Cummings and Mrs. Judy Bandy, the Key Club involved many students in community service. President, Maggie Cho, Vice-President, Andrew Kellam, Secretary, Cherene Sellers, and Treasure, Vicki Tsui, prepared many activities for the whole club including the Miss Cox Pageant, Special Olympics, Thanksgiving food drive, and volunteering in the Neptune Festival.

The Octagon Club also served the community. Sponsored by Dianne Sergent, the club promoted self-esteem through such activities. President, Lara Call, Secretary, Kim Rodriquez, Treasurer, Melissa Porter, and Historian, Angela Ellerman, led the club in many things including helping in a soup kitchen, Christmas carolling and adopt-a-school.

S.A.D.D.(Students Against Drunk Driving) continued to increase student awareness of the dangers and the consequences of drinking and driving. They informed students and faculty with their posters and tried to encourage an alcohol free Prom and Ring Dance. Sponsored by Renee Williams and led by President, Susan Lloyd, Vice-President, Beth Zondorak, Treasurer, Sara Rufe, and Secretary, Christan Cummings, S.A.D.D. helped keep the students and roads safe.

Students helping students. That is what these three clubs share as a goal. They all involve students in their community and by doing so they increase awareness and give students a strong sense of commitment and responsibility.



Addressing the Key Club, Andrew Kellam and Maggie Cho explain the "new" business.

Lights, Camera, Action
Thespians, Madrigals, and Fine Arts

The Thespians, Madrigals, and Fine Arts Club provided unique experiences in our culture and others as well.

The Thespians, sponsored by Mr. James Garrett, held performances during the Fall and Spring and performed well at the one act competition. Before Christmas the club held Storybook Theatre for the school and area Junior High Schools. President Liz Wolf, Vice President Shawn Pinnel, Secretary Tiffany Riccardo, and Treasurer Jennifer Iman provided leadership for the club.

Led by Mr. William Boyll, the Madrigals held several concerts throughout the year. Among the concerts were PTA open house, church concerts, and a Christmas concert in cooperation with the Band and Orchestra.

The Fine Arts Club was sponsored by Mr. Art Koeppen. The club attended performances of several local artists as well as some of the larger concerts. The club provided students the experiences of music, theatre, art, and dance.

In the Fall play, Lee Field and Anna Taylor portray a married couple who get caught up in a murder mystery.

One of the successful productions put on by the Thespians was the fall play, Exit The Body. In this murder mystery, Tymberlee Hill played Tiffany Ricardo's secretary.

Practicing the "Star Spangled Banner," Jennifer Faircloth of the Madrigals will sing at a basketball game.

Practices began at band camp in August. Mary McKeon, Kieboye Odumga, and Jennifer Cornell show that early season rehearsals don't always mean perfect posture and correct horn angles.

In Perfect Harmony
Band, Color Guard, and Orchestra

Band, Color Guard and Orchestra provided sights and sounds for us to enjoy all year.

Under the direction of Art Pittman, President Mina Digonis, and Vice President Christi Huey, the band did exceptionally well at area competitions and entertained the crowds at football games and the Holiday Concert. Drum Majors Tymberlee Hill and Wendi Kennamer led the way to several award-winning performances, including second place for Drumline, Drum Majors, and overall band at the Kecoughtan Band competition. The band also entertained at several concerts including the Holiday Concert with the Chorus and Orchestra for parents and administration, State Marching Band Festival, District Concert Band Festival, the Solo and Ensemble Festival and a Spring Concert. A spring trip to New York City was also planned after hard work on fundraisers. Outstanding band members included Matt Dunsmore who placed first in State on the euphonium and Jamie Kennamer who was drumline captain. Thirteen students placed in the All-District Band which was the most students in twelve years.

The Cox Color Guard performed very well with the band at football games and competitions under the guidance of captain Karen Espina. It performed to the music from the Broadway production "Miss Saigon," and had different props to set a scene of Vietnam during the war. The Color Guard's performance took second place at the Menchville Invitational Competition.

The Orchestra made beautiful music under the sponsorship of Miss Stephanie Holmes. It performed for holiday shoppers at Lynnhaven Mall and participated in the Holiday Concert with the band and chorus. Several members made Regional as well as All-State Orchestra. Joanne Yun was the Concert Mistress, Marcy Bourne was principal second violin, Ryan Featherer was principal violist, and Melissa Zarn was the principal cellist.

The Drumline leads a group of woodwinds in follow-the-leader fashion, always attentive to the Drum Major.

Exploring an Old World
German Club, Latin Club, French Club, Spanish Club

The language clubs worked together to provide cultural experiences for foreign language students. Their cooperative effort led to many victories such as the second place Languages Homecoming Float.

Showing a little of the wild side of foreign languages, the German Club provided cultural experiences, good food, and great fun. Sponsors Larry Becker and Pamela Swail, assisted by President Paul Michals, Vice President Keith Norman, Secretary Brock Frey, and Historian Idine Ghoreshian, held many activities. Among these were Folk Dancing, German cooking, and participation in the Foreign Languages Homecoming Float.

The Latin Club was sponsored by Mrs. Lorraine Bennett and led by President Jennifer Houle, Vice President Kim Gianfagna, Secretary John Caldwell, and Treasurer Carly Moritz. Members were given the opportunities to learn more about the Roman Culture, attend the National Latin Convention and a field trip to Busch Gardens, and celebrate the Roman Saturnalia. Club members also helped build the Foreign Languages Homecoming Float.

The French Club was sponsored by Mrs. Margaret Beckner and its officers included Jennifer Pleacher and Amy Laderlurg as co-chairman, Tiffany Riccardo as Vice President, Megan Milliken as Secretary, and Margo Villers as Treasurer. They worked with other Language Clubs on the Homecoming Float. Other activities included Halloween and Christmas parties, Adopt-a-Family, and preparing a food basket for the needy.

The Spanish Club, sponsored by Mrs. Karen Limperis and Ed Garvie, fostered an awareness of the community. The officers, President Roslyn Wilis, Vice President Joriel Foltz, Secretary Tonya Duelo, Treasurer Amy Cooper, and Historian Jason Jeffries, helped to plan the social dinners at Mexican restaurants, Christmas carolling, the donation of a Thanksgiving food basket to a needy family, a spring trip to Busch Gardens, and the Homecoming Float.

The Language Clubs enabled students to take part not only in their language's culture, but in others as well. There was a large cooperative effort throughout the year.

How do you work this thing? Sharon Silverberg and Jennifer Hoale are the first to begin trying on their new togas.

The Languages Float at Homecoming won second place, surpassed only by the Senior Class Float.

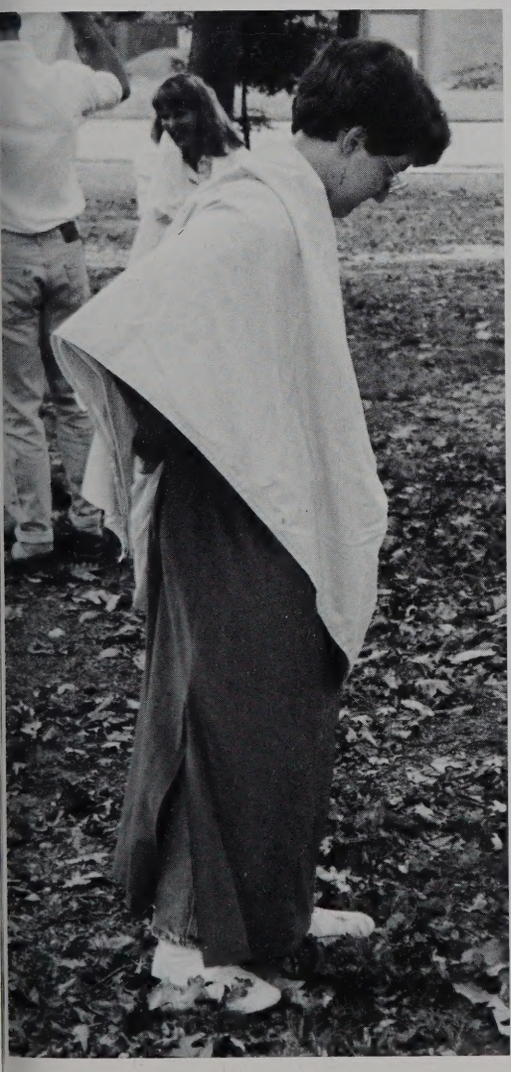
Damien DeSormeioux and Sam Grose come close to burning the burgers at a Latin outing.



Sara Hutchinson wraps herself in a toga for a Latin picnic. Adding ivy to the toga-sheet gives Sara a patrician touch.

Donna Brun, Mary Dickieson, and Tico Hamby taste their creations at a "German Kitchen."

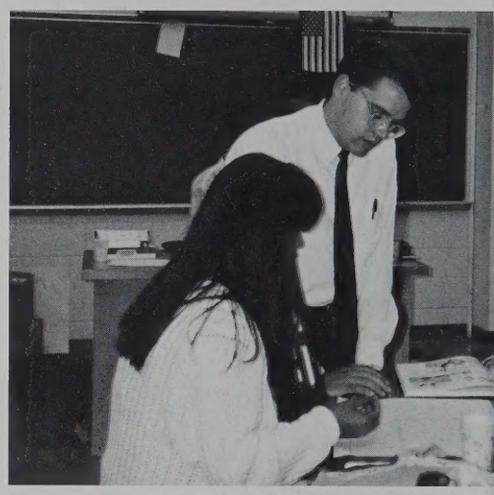
Remember When
Wingspan, Talon, and Falcon Press

Wingspan, Talon, and Falcon Press captured every aspect of the school and student body.

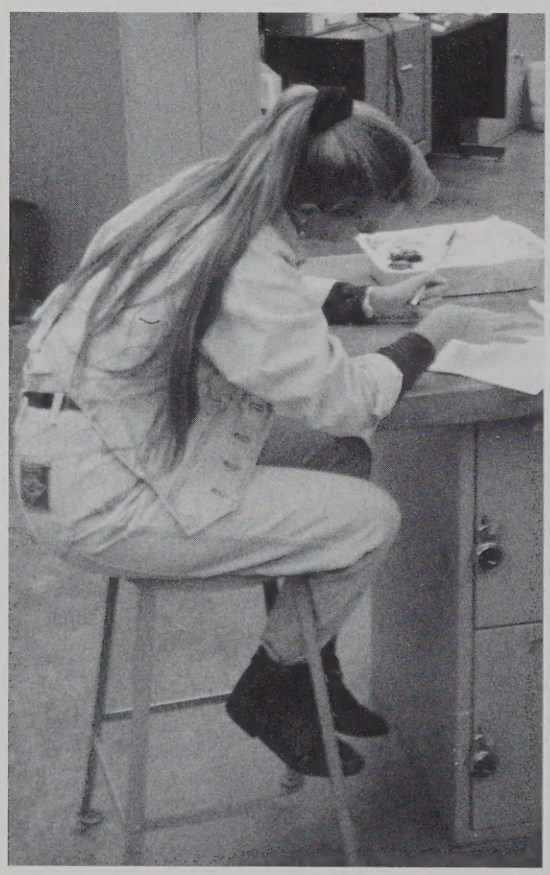
The Cox literary magazine, Wingspan, sponsored by Mrs. Lynn Carson, allowed students to submit literature, art, or photography. Edited by Margo Villers and John McLain, the club organized the pieces of art and literature into the annual magazine.

Talon, the yearbook, was co-edited by Julie Inman and Stacy Buckley. Staff members could often be seen frantically working on deadlines. The club was sponsored by Mrs. Ginny James.

Falcon Press produced four publications of the school newspaper. Under the leadership of Miss Lois Baker, it covered the school with accuracy and impartiality at all times.



Jostens representative, Alex Blackwell reviews a layout for the January Yearbook deadline.

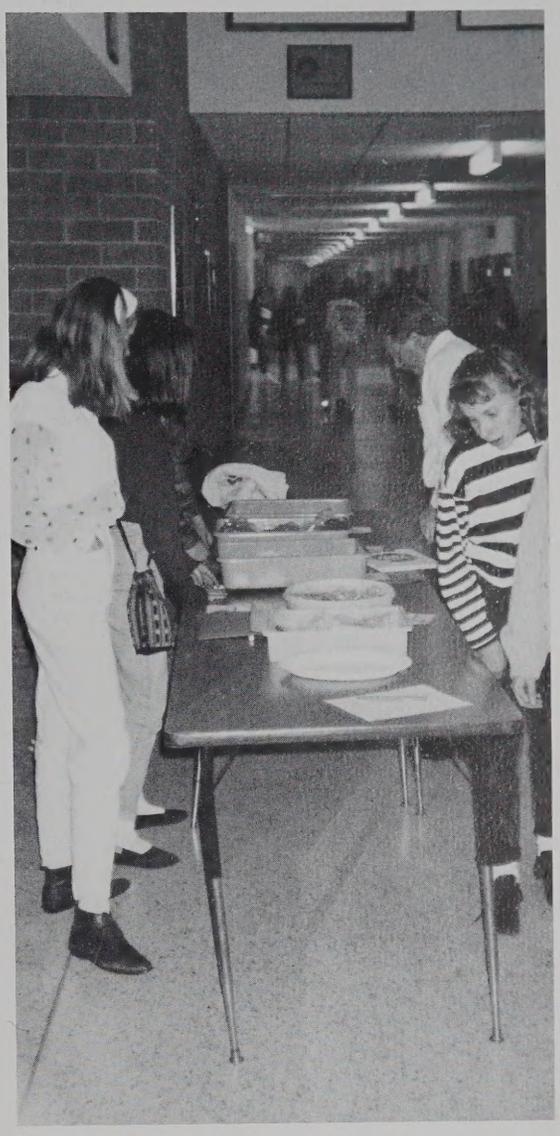


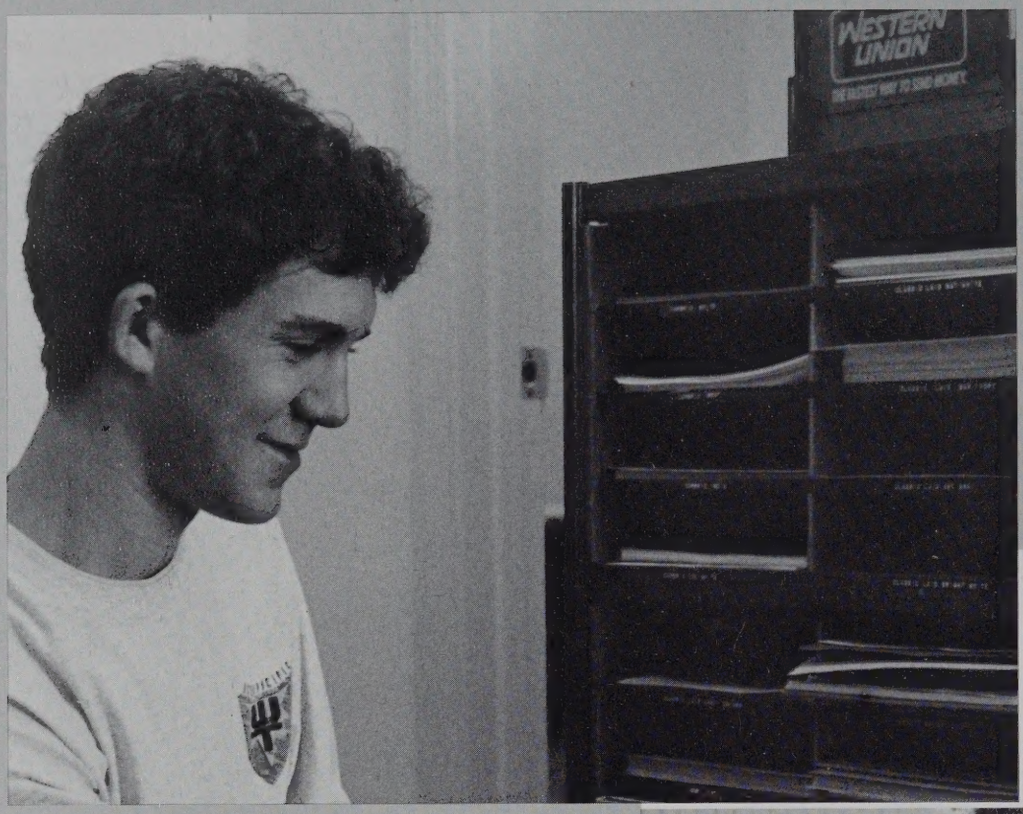
Year book member, Libby Rasnik attempts to finish her story for the December deadline.

Set up in the auditorium foyer to catch students on the way to the parking lot, David McLaine, Shannon Tripodi, and Theresa Gregory conduct a Wingspan bake sale.

Editor of the Falcon Press, Ming Lee, prepares copy for the fall issue using the Microsoft Word program.

Offering cookies and brownies during a Wingspan bake sale, Theresa Gregory and Shannon Tripodi hope to cover the printing costs of the literary arts magazine.





Working for his parents at Spectrum Print ing, Danny Cheshire stocks shelves on a Sat urday afternoon.

While participating in the Neptune Festiva Street Fair Olympics, Dan Clark chats wit Neptune Festival Triton, Bill Baldwin.

WORTHY CAUSES

Activities in the community were often an important part of many students' lives. Activities such as Helping Hands Day Camp, ODAC swimming, community sports, and local festivals allowed students to enjoy safe, school-related pastimes, while also strengthening the school's relationship with the city. Adopt-a-School partners such as Jostens and Virginia Beach Federal Bank provided support throughout the year. The community support helped make us aware of the many "worthy causes."

Good Starts Good Turns Good Times

Some swimmers continue the sport through the bitter winter months. For instance, twenty teams competed in the RK Chevrolet-Geo 25th annual Optimist High School Invitational swim meet at ODU in January. Although competitive swimming is not an interscholastic sport, Mrs. Sarah Horn organized a Cox team and was pleased with the results. The girls came in third and the boys placed ninth. Paced by first place efforts by Darby Chang in two events and Nonie Bailey in two others, the team showed up well against teams from Virginia, North Carolina, and Maryland.

Seniors: Touch the Future

Side by side they sit, the High School Seniors,
Tolerating the teachers who challenge their thoughts
Defying the parents who demand their time
Ignoring the decisions that must be made
Shunning the confusion that frightens their nights
Avoiding the responsibility that engulfs their days
Discovering the adult that lurks within each soul
Searching for the happiness that eludes their hearts
Loving the eyes that caress their egos
Living for the weekends that fulfill their dreams
Waiting for the June day that emancipates their being
Anticipating the future that awaits their accomplishments.

ODAC

Darby Chang is one of several Cox students who swam for the Old Dominion Aquatic Club. Team members competed in meets at least once each month year-round and Darby competed in the Olympic Trials.

Students attended rigorous practices under Coach Bill Peak. They are scheduled three times a week from 4:45-6:15 PM, five afternoons a week and every Saturday morning. ODAC members also make excellent grades; surely they were a disciplined club!

A member of ODAC, Darby Chang participates in a State Meet where she swam the 100 M Butterfly in 1:02.6

The Yearbook

I never realized the power of a yearbook
Until the cold winters' day when my friend went away.
Then suddenly I knew without a doubt
You can't lose the friends on these history pages
Nor can the precious memories fade with the ages.

For in the record book prepared by caring hands
The treasures of Cox High School will forever stand
A tribute to youth and their desire to achieve
Will be forever frozen for all to perceive.

FIRE-FIGHTING FALCONS

Have you ever wondered what it's like to be in one of those loud, commanding fire engines roaring down the street to save lives and homes? Well, two Cox students, John Beliveau and Lee Field decided to find out. After an extensive 3½-month training program, consisting of three classes a week on Tuesdays, Thursday, and 8-hour Saturdays, John and Lee became the only high school volunteer firemen in the City. The training took place at the Virginia Beach Fire Training Center across from Ocean Breeze Festival Park. John, a junior, has participated for two years, and Lee, also a junior, has participated for one. Volunteer firemen are required to work twenty-four hours a month, but Lee says he and John usually work about sixty.

John and Lee say they get kidded for being "youngsters" around the station, but are generally treated well. Lee who plans to make a career out of firefighting, recommends the program to anyone interested. As he puts it, "I find it exciting to be in danger, but at the same time saving lives. It's fun!"

CREAM OF THE CROP

Out of the almost 90% of Cox graduating seniors that continue on to higher education, Valedictorian and Salutatorian Vickie Tsui and Amy Cooper probably had the best selection of the nation's top schools. Vickie and Amy consistently pushed themselves to succeed in their challenging classes. All the hard work obviously paid off. Congratulations Vickie Tsui and Amy Cooper.

Valedictorian Vickie Tsui's list of accomplishments is quite impressive. Vickie took first place in the Forensic competition statewide for 1992. Serving as secretary of the National Honor Society, treasurer of Key Club, and President of the German Honor Society, Vickie has displayed the high standards of an exemplary Cox High School Student. Vickie plans to attend either Yale, Berkeley or Cornell in the fall of 1992.

Amy Cooper, the salutatorian also achieved a large number of accomplishments. Amy served as NHS President, Debate captain, placed as a National Merit Finalist, and served on the Executive Council as the Election Chairperson. Amy was accepted to Harvard, Princeton, Yale, Brown, and Rice University. Amy summed up her high school years: "So much has changed during my four years at Cox. Ryan Carr grew hair (lots of it). Reo Maynard got taller. People moved away, people moved in, we became Seniors and finally took over. Now it's time to move on — Like Simon and Garfunkel sang, 'I am leaving, I am leaving, but the fire still remains. Yes, it still remains.' "

After years of hard work and significant achievement, Amy Cooper and Vickie Tsui leave school to prepare their respective speeches for Baccalaureate and Graduation.

Berly,

Thank you for driving me everywhere. Thank you for being the cheering captain who led me in the right direction. Even though you're my sister, I really must say you're like a best friend. Thank you for a wonderful experience this year. I hope you have a great year at GMU. I'll miss you!

Love,

REDBOOK: #1 IN VIRGINIA

Cox was recognized in the April issue of Redbook Magazine as one of the nation's top 140 high schools and the best school in Virginia. The panel of judges consisted of representatives from the National Education Association, The National Art Education Association, Columbia University's Teachers' College, and the U.S. Department of Education. Cox was cited for its outstanding achievements including: state championships in boys' soccer, field hockey, golf, wrestling and tennis, as well as involvement in the Fine Arts. Cox actors received top honors in district and regional one-act play competition. The article in Redbook stated, "A rich tradition of athletic excellence (school teams have won 70 percent of their contests) is coupled with a topnotch visual and performing-arts program at this school for 1,743."

Eric Geshekter, a Cox tennis state champion, summarized, "I feel very fortunate to be able to attend a school with the credentials of Cox and participate in a fine athletic program."

Representing the areas of Fine Arts and Athletics, Anna Taylor and Eric Geshekter meet Miss Emilie Tilley on the set of the Spring Musical.

Surprised by a parent's camera, Cheerleading Sponsor Mrs. Kim Hux leaves another athletic event.

Thank You, Mrs. Hux!

Thank You, Miss Pangle

We, the parents of the Cox High School Cheerleaders, would like to thank Mrs. Hux for watching over our girls, keeping them safe, playing second mother, and enforcing the rules. Her constant care has been appreciated.

We would also like to thank Miss Pangle for sharing many hours of responsibility and care. We appreciate the quality time that both Mrs. Hux and Miss Pangle have spent with our girls.

We hope that next year is as successful as this past year. Many thanks!

Sincerely,
The Parents

LYNNHAVEN MALL ART SHOW

Lynnhaven is just one of the many shows in which Cox students participate. This show, an annual event, took place at the end of March, Youth Art Month. More than thirty students were present for the early set up, which began at eight o'clock a.m. on Saturday. The art was attached with T-pins to black-papered display boards in a wing of the Mall. "Take-down" occurred the following Saturday night at nine o'clock p.m. "Setting up my own work and taking it down was a good experience for me because it was the first time I displayed my own work. Lynnhaven Mall Art Show is one of the most important contests this year since it involves all Beach schools. It's seen by all of Virginia Beach and anyone who happened to be in the Mall," Heather Largent, a senior, observes.

Our students took home the largest number of awards in the city, an accomplishment achieved by a large margin. Winnie Hu, Mrs. Gallacher's Art I student, won first place with her weaving entry. There were four Merit Winners and six Honorable Mentions. "Thanks to all who came to help with the display boards, easles, and positioning of the work," offered Mrs. Sue Frost.

After completing their pieces, matting wrapping them in acetate, AP Art V Students Jennifer DuBois and Amy Laderberg prepare the nametags for each piece of art. They hope that the judges will mark those nametags as "selected for judging."

Retirees: McPatience, McPatients

This spring marked the retirement of two ladies who had served Cox so well: Mrs. Theresa McNamara, the bookkeeper, and Mrs. Elizabeth (Boots) McBride, the nurse.

Mrs. McNamara, who signed her receipts "Mac," took care of numerous vouchers for fundraisers, keeping the books for about fifty clubs. Infinitely patient with students for whom she held report cards, Mac decided to apply some of that patience toward her grandchildren. We shall miss her and hope she enjoys her retirement.

Mrs. McBride has been virtually the only nurse for Cox. She has served as sponsor for the Cox Medical Association, one of the most active and the school's oldest club. She also provided leadership for the faculty's hospitality committee and "wellness" efforts. Always anxious to help a student involved in a mishap or taken sick at school, Mrs. McBride has used her elevator key or called parents at every bell of the day. We thank you for your devoted care.

"Working at Cox has been the best part of my career."

Theresa McNamara

"It has been a wonderful 27 years for me. To be the nurse at Cox High School is an honor. Thank you for letting me share your days and memories."

Wow! I can't believe this year is over. It seems like yesterday we were just starting to organize this yearbook and now it is actually published. After two years as Co-Editor, I can say it was a very stressful job, but I am extremely grateful for the experience and opportunity. I never could have lived through two years without the constant support of a lot of people. So at this time, I'd like to thank . . .

— First and foremost, Stacy. Stace — you were the best co-editor I could have ever wanted and probably better than I deserve. Thanks for being so understanding and never forget the Eagleton's Traffic Jam! I am grateful not only to have worked with you, but to be lucky enough to call you my friend.

— Mom and Elaine. You guys have the toughest job of all, you have to live with me and all my mood swings! You guys are the greatest! I love you! Buggie — good luck in all you do! Special thanks to Bernie, who cheered me on from UVA.

— Mrs. Ginny James. Thanks for being so wonderful and caring. Yearbook wouldn't have been the same without you! I will miss you.

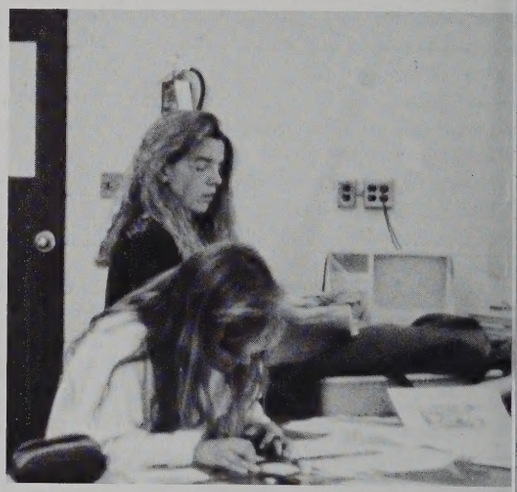
— Ms. "Nance" Fowlkes. Thanks for being so understanding about my busy schedule. I hope I have proved that you can be SCA President and yearbook editor! You're the greatest!!

— To all those who have stood by me in the toughest year of my life, all things considered. Especially Sarah, Leigh, Heather, Susan, Graham, Kim, Cherene, Stephie, Amy, and Jennifer. Thanks for keeping me sane — I love you guys!!

To the Talon staff. A yearbook can't be made by just two editors. Thanks to the dedicated, hardworking staff.

— To Alex — the best rep we would ask for. Your patience and understanding with all our screw-ups is truly a thing to be grateful for!

— Finally, to Cox High School. Thanks for giving me four memorable years. I will never forget all the good times, bad times, stressful times and fun times. Good luck to you all — I will miss you!



As sisters only one year apart, Stacy and Brandy Buckley have worked side by side for the past three years on the Talon. For their first two years on staff, the sisters worked on the Sports section, one of the years as Editors of the section. Although Stacy and Brandy look very much alike, they would like to say one last time, "We ARE NOT twins!!"

Staff photographer Ming "GQ Man" Lee develops one of his many rolls of film. Ming's nickname came as a result of the many days he came to school in a suit and tie "just because."

COLOPHON

The 1992 Talon, volume 31, was published by Jostens Publishing Company in Winston-Salem, North Carolina. Mr. Alex Blackwell was the publisher's representative. The press run was 1400 copies. The cover was done in a marble print with green mission grain texture and contrasting gold lettering. The majority of the type used in the book was Goudy Roman. The body copy was 10-point type, the captions 8-point type, and the kickers 12-point type. Most Senior portraits were taken by Vacarro Studios, while most underclass, faculty, and sports pictures were taken by Lifetouch Studios, both of Chesapeake, Virginia.

Thanks from Stacy

This year has flown by so fast and I will miss all, yes all of it. I am going to be lost without the stress! I have learned so much and believe it or not had a great time. A big thank you goes to:

— The staff, because people just don't realize the time and effort it requires to put a yearbook together. You guys did a super job. Best of luck next year!

— Julie, Eagleton's will always be ours! I think we did a beautiful job — because we are beautiful! I have enjoyed the Saturdays we have spent slaving away before our never missed deadlines. You are a strong person, and a true friend who will never be forgotten!

— Mrs. James for keeping me in line and always looking out for me (New York). I look forward to coming back for your short chats!

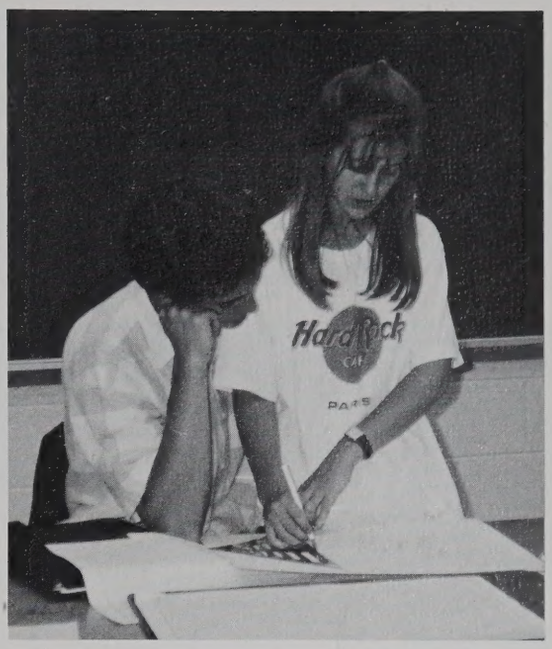
— Mrs. Sue Frost for providing a hideout and for all the art knowledge. I am waiting for the day I get to come show my work to your AP class next year!

— To the best rep., Alex, sorry we caused so much trouble. A special thanks for all the help!

— To my family for everything. I love you all more than could be expressed. I could never have done it (LIFE) without ya'll!

— To the man far from home for listening to all my yearbook complaints. I love you. What if there was no such thing as a time or a curfew? 13-14

— To all of COX, for making the past three years unforgettable. Best of luck to all! Good riddance room 160!



The two "lovebirds" of the yearbook staff, Danny Cheshire and Kim Gianfagna, often worked together on their separate sections. Kim and Danny learned to put up with constant teasing by the staff.

The two hardworking Editors-in-Chief, Stacy Buckley and Julie Inman take time out of their busy afternoons for a picture.

MEMORIES WORTHY OF GOLD

The weather grew warm, lessons were finished, exams were taken, diplomas were received, and the doors to Frank W. Cox High were closed for another summer. What had the school year brought? What goals were accomplished? The answers to these questions were different for each individual student; but as for Cox High School, there were a great deal of noteworthy accomplishments. The self-study visiting committee accredited the school with flying colors and compliments. Lamonte Still set the All-District Rushing Record, the Field Hockey team set another district record with three consecutive state championships, the Boys' Basketball team went all the way to the Regional competition, and to top it all off, Redbook magazine named Cox as the best school in Virginia.

Each student had many successes and hopefully few failures, happy moments and sad moments, fun times and stressful times, exciting times and not-so-exciting times. But every student, be it his first year or last year of high school, created his own "memories worthy of gold."

As yet another day ends, the sun sets over the Chesapeake Bay.
